Fresh Water From Ocean Seen Feasible

U of C Engineers Say Experiments With 3 Methods Advancing

RICHMOND, Calif. — Experiments indicating that it soon will be feasible to produce fresh water from the ocean at reasonable cost, were announced Saturday by University of California engineers.

Everett D. Howe, director of the Sea Water Desalination Project here, announced that experimental results to date "indicate these methods should produce fresh water at attractive prices under conditions which exist in some parts of California."

He warned, however, that many technical problems must be solved before a commercially practical process can be developed to relieve drought-ridden areas.

Howe said two types of experimental units are being used, a solar still and a low-temperature-difference combined power plant and still. A third type, a triple-effect distiller using waste heat from a diesel engine, will be in operation soon, he added.

Howe said fresh water in amounts up to 100 gallons a day have been produced for more than a year from the solar still.

"Nearly 2000 gallons a day can be recovered using waste, warm water in the low-temperature-difference distiller," he said.

Howe said the research money comes from the state legislature, university funds and the federal government. He added that this year the state legislature is providing $100,000 for further work on the entire saline-water program here and at the Los Angeles campus.

He said that at present units of solar stills are too expensive and complicated for practical application.

"The solar still lacks a practical design for producing quantities of low-cost water," he said. "And the thermal-difference plant involves use of conventional designs for the turbine and evaporator and air pumps. There are some of the problems we are trying to solve now."

Howe, who is associate dean of the college of engineering, said that the experiments on low-temperature-difference combined power plant and stills are being co-ordinated with work done by the French in French West Africa. The French started work with this type of power plant-distiller in the 1920s.

The principle involved is that power can be developed in any system in which even a small temperature difference exists.

Dean Howe noted that a satisfactory solution to the problems involved would benefit industry considerably, too. Big industrial plants, he said, build large cooling towers to dispose of waste heat. If a satisfactory design for a practical thermal-difference combined power plant and distiller can be worked out, he said, it should be possible to make use of this waste heat.

Lockheed Strike Decision Today

LOS ANGELES — (UP) Members of the AFL International Association of Machinists at Lockheed Aircraft Corp. will vote today on the company's "final" wage offer and a strike authorization.

The union, bargaining unit for 27,500 Lockheed employees, has scheduled a meeting for 10 a. m. in Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Lockheed has offered the union a 6-cent-an-hour pay increase and other fringe benefits. The union negotiating committee has recommended rejection of the company offer and is seeking a "package" increase of approximately 24 cents an hour.

Fair Weather Friends

When political going gets tough, you soon find out who can take it and who can not. It is apparent Fulton Lewis Jr. is one who just can't take defeat without blaming it on everyone but himself. The day before elections in New Jersey, Virginia and New York City he was quite mellow. The day after, he started calling the Eisenhower administration more names than even Harry Truman ever thought of. Lewis referred to them as "stumble-bums" and a long line of similar names. He said he liked them personally, but they were impossible, so he was going to start telling them just what was wrong, so it would help them. For the next several nights he continued in his arrogant manner to condemn Eisenhower for not cleaning out department after department. He said Dulles was just another way of spelling Acheson. The things Lewis has said about Acheson make that the greatest insult he could possibly throw at Dulles. Altogether it appears Mr. Lewis is like a lot more Republicans who fail to recognize the cold fact that you just can't win.

Repatriation Boss Defies Red Demand

By JOHN RANDOLPH

PANMUNJOM (Sunday)—(AP). The Indian Command today refused to bring out the balance of bally Chinese prisoners from Compound C22 as the Reds demanded this morning. The Indians told the Communists to name another compound for the interviews Monday.

Back Benson and Principle, GOP Urged

SAN FRANCISCO — (UP). Sen. Wallace F. Bennett said Saturday night the Republicans must seize the initiative from the Democrats in the "furor" over Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's farm program if they want to be victorious in the 1954 elections.

The Utah Republican told a dinner-meeting concluding the opening business of the two-day GOP Western Conference, "Iago," find symbolized four of the challenges we must meet in the current furor that beats around my friend and fellow Utahian."

Bennett said these challenges are:

- 1—"Are we capable of standing and fighting on the high ground of principle, or will we panic and run when faced with political expediency?"

- 2—"Are we capable of standing together as a political party, firm in support of our great leader? Or, at the first challenge, will we split into selfish groups, each seeking to settle for personal victory?"

- 3—"As we go into the '54 campaign will we have the initiative? Can we get it now, and hold it?"

- 4—"Can we keep faith—with firmness in the right?"

Bennett said the President and Benson have been working since last January for a new farm program "developed on the broadest possible base of solid economics and farm-level experience. The President assures us that such a program will be ready for us in Congress when we meet next January."

It was the first major act of defiance in the new Indian "get tough" policy, laid down in diplomatic tones last Friday by Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission.

Thimayya said Friday that Reds would have to interview either complete compounds at the time or else forget about the un-interviewed remainder. Otherwise, Thimayya said, he would be forced to "throw up his hands" and conduct the screening by himself.

The Indian refusal underscored a growing opinion that, in the prisoner exchange controversy the United Nations and the United States have won their greatest moral victory in Korea since they took up the Communist armed challenge 40 months ago.

The victory was the smashing defeat of the Communists last week in the prisoner of war explanations before the eyes of the three truly neutral nations serving in Korea—Sweden, Switzerland and India.

Long delayed in coming, costly in blood and treasure, it will remain one of the brightest achievements of the Free World. It is the establishment and living proof of a principle of free

Stroller Finds Dead Woman Beside Pier

Sick with worry over her husband's illness and the loss of their business, Mrs. June Odell, of 1603 Atlantic Ave., walked into the ocean and drowned Saturday night, according to police.

Officers said the woman entered the water at the foot of 39th Pl. They listed the death as a suicide.

A tiny prescription bottle floating in the surf near the body was the clue which led to her identification. It carried her name and the name of a pharmacy. Police checked and the pharmacist gave them Mrs. Odell's address.

The prescription was for sleeping pills for her husband, Ralph D. Odell, 65, who is confined to a Redondo Beach hospital with a heart ailment.

Identification of the body was made by Fred Wiesenbutger, 35, of 5270 El Cedro, a relative.

The body was first seen floating in the surf alongside Belmont pier, by Ernest Preston, 60, of 21528 Moneta Ave., Torrance. Preston, his son, Ray, 17, and Larry Morgan, 17, of 3212 W. 186th St., Torrance, were at the pier going fishing.

Preston said the two boys had remained briefly in a cave at the foot of the pier while he started out to the end. As he walked, he idly flashed a spotlight on the churning surf below. The beam disclosed the woman's body.

Preston said he ran back, got the two boys and they all ran down the beach to the water, pulling the body ashore. The two boys administered artificial respiration until the Fire Department ambulance arrived. Ambulance crewmen took up the effort, but it was unavailing. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Community Hospital. The body was taken to the Loper Funeral Home.

Comic Finish Foils Escape By 6 'Experts'

BOSTON — (UP). Escape Artist Theodore Green and five other desperate convicts stormed a wall of Massachusetts State Prison with bullets and Molotov cocktails Saturday, but the escape attempt failed when the convicts all tried to climb an escape ladder at once.

Their daring flight ended a few feet from freedom after they had changed shots with guards on the wall and hurled flaming gasoline bombs into a turret to cover their getaway.

One man was nearing the top of the 20-foot wall, when his anxious companions tried to follow too quickly and the ladder collapsed, toppling the convicts inside.

They were driven back by a fusillade of bullets and surrendered without anyone being hurt.

80-Mile Wind Hurls Seas Inland as 10,000 Flee Flood in Snow

NEW YORK — (UP). A hurricane and 40-foot Atlantic Ocean waves lashed the snow-blanketed east coast Saturday, causing floods that forced more than 10,000 persons from their homes and swept resort piers and buildings out to sea.

At least 22 persons had been listed as dead and 18, some of whom had been feared dead, were rescued in storms that struck with unusual fury on the eastern seaboard and in the northern plains states.

In New York City, Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive, formerly known as the East River Drive, was flooded from 34th to 90th Street. The inundated area included the stretch of super-highway running under the United Nations Building. Subways, also, were flooded.

Residents of Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas dug out from under an unusually heavy blanket of snow which stranded hundreds of motorists in crowded hotels. But farmers rejoiced over the beneficial moisture for their drought-parched winter wheat.

Easterners fought off first snow, then rain and sleet and finally winds up to 80 miles an hour. These were coupled with unusual tidal forces that swelled tides to 20 to 30 feet above normal, flooding hundreds of homes in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Three men were rescued after their tugboat broke up and sank several hundred feet off Clinton, Conn. Six men were rescued from a stricken yacht a mile off shore.

Three persons in Pennsylvania suffocated in a stalled, snow-covered automobile.

Ten duck hunters who had been missing and feared dead on Long Island were rescued from flooded marshes. Police also saved five children who were stranded on a rock on a flooded beach.

The famous resort cities of Atlantic City and Asbury Park, N. J., were hard hit by the rampaging ocean. A 200-foot section at the end of the famous steel pier was washed away and an Asbury Park beach club was carried out to sea.

An insurance executive estimated damage at Atlantic City at $1,500,000 to $2,000,000—more than that caused by the 1944 hurricane.

Damage elsewhere along the seaboard was running into the millions and more than 3700 persons were given shelter by the Red Cross in New Jersey, New York and Connecticut.

Other persons, evacuated from flooded homes by city buses, rowboats and Army "ducks," were given shelter in schools, churches and other buildings.

Emergencies were declared in Stamford, Conn., and in all New Jersey towns from Monmouth Beach to East Keansauke—an area of about 15 miles.

A natural gas main in the Black Hills of South Dakota exploded, leaving residents shivering in the coldest weather of the season. The heavy weight of snow broke a roof support of a garage at Phillipsburg, Kan., smashing a gas line and filling the structure with fumes that exploded. One man was injured slightly.

More than 50,000 telephones on Long Island and 5000 in New Jersey were knocked out of service and more than 1000 repairmen were sent out to mend the damage.

Auxiliary police were ordered into Milford, Conn., to prevent looting of abandoned homes.

Lakewood Boom Still Makes News

Construction will be started soon on a 100-bed hospital in Lakewood Center as another step in the fabulous story of the growth of the area. And with the hospital there will be 10 buildings constructed to house suites for 68 physicians. Work has just been started on another section to house some 35 shops in another mall in the center, some of them already leased.

Details of the Lakewood construction story and other news of building activity in this area will be found in the realty section of today's Independent-Press-Telegram.

Brownell 'to Prove' FBI Told Truman Aide Was Red Spy

Oust British Trieste Chief, Italy Urges

Pella Advises Action After London Blames Italians for Riots

(Compiled from AP and UP)

ROME—Italy has told the United States that quick removal of British Gen. Sir John Winterton as Allied commander in troubled Trieste is the best way to ease anti-British rioting erupting across the country, reliable sources said Saturday night.

Premier Giuseppe Pella made this clear, they said, in a 45-minute meeting with U. S. Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce after another day of riotous anti-British demonstrations in Rome and other Italian cities.

Winterton heads a 7000-man occupation force made up of U. S. and British troops.

Under his control are the Trieste territorial police, a British-trained force of Italians and Slavs who have killed six persons and wounded others with carbine fire the past week in the port of Trieste to break up pro-Italian demonstrations.

Britain angrily accused Italian neo-fascists of sparking the three days of rioting in Trieste. Italy retorted that "excessive action" by territorial police was at fault.

Through Ambassador Alberto Tarchiana in Washington, Italy declared to the U. S. government her "deep concern, grief and displeasure" over the killings.

All the dead were Italians. (State Department officials in Washington said Saturday that Livingston Merchant, Assistant Secretary of State, told Tarchiana the United States had full confidence in the zone commander and the United States and Britain were not responsible for the events.)

(In London, a British Foreign Office spokesman said that department had no knowledge of any Italian request to fire Gen. Winterton.)

Trieste itself, focal point of the Zone A which the Allies decided Oct. 8 to turn over to Italy's administration, was quiet.

Hundreds of red, white and green Italian flags, decked with black stripes, fluttered at half-staff in cold, Adriatic winds.

The dead demonstrators will be buried today. Fears were expressed in Trieste of new rioting if police or soldiers try to interfere with plans for a huge funeral procession. In Rome, a simultaneous memorial will be attended by Premier Pella and his entire cabinet.

Trouble flared Wednesday in Trieste after Gen. Winterton refused to let Italians raise their flag over the Trieste city hall in

Son Stolen, Sailor Told as Ship Docks

NEW YORK — (AP). A 20-year-old sailor reached his crying teen-age wife by telephone Saturday night after he learned that his five-months-old son had been kidnapped by a baby-sitter from his Indiana home.

Richard Duane Stammer, of the USS Northampton, which docked here en route to Boston from Cuba, had last seen his wife, Shirley, 18, in Boston July 28.

Mrs. Stammer, sobbing at Evansville police headquarters when the call from her husband came through, told him she hired the baby sitter, Wanda White, 26, "just for one night" in order to take a temporary job.

A police search for the sitter turned toward Illinois after police received a report that a woman matching Miss White's description, carrying a baby, was seen hitch-hiking in Wadesville, 17 miles northwest of Evansville.

The baby's perambulator and an empty formula bottle were found in Miss White's room.

SOCKO! 23-20

The score was 20-20. There were 20 seconds to go. Sam Tsagalakis ("Ts") as in "Socko!" stepped up and booted a 38-yard field goal.

That made it USC 23, Stanford 20.

Southland football fans will be a long time forgetting the Trojan epic.

But elsewhere on the gridiron map Saturday's heroes were pulling the close ones out of the fire. For instance: Minnesota 28, Indiana 20; Texas 21, previously unbeaten Baylor 20; Michigan State 28, Ohio State 21; Notre Dame 28, Penn 20.

And then there was Navy 0, Duke 0.

ALL-TIME HIGH

Village Taxes Rise 33% but Will Drop Due to Annex

By BUD LEMBKE

Lakewood Village taxes have risen 33 per cent over last year to an all-time high, property owners of Lakewood's oldest section discovered during the past week as the county began mailing out tax bills.

The rise in the rate from $5,424 per $100 assessed valuation in 1952 to the present $7,206 per $100 was largely because the Village formed a garbage disposal district and a street light maintenance district and joined the Lakewood Park, Recreation and Parkway District.

A drop in taxes is in prospect for the area next year, however, because of its recent annexation to the City of Long Beach. Annexation will not be reflected in Village taxes until the 1954-'55 fiscal year.

As a result of joining the city, the Village is automatically excluded from six special tax districts: road maintenance, county free library, consolidated fire protection, sewer maintenance, lighting and Central Basin Municipal Water District.

Residents may request withdrawal from the parkway district and may petition the county board of supervisors to dissolve the garbage disposal district.

These eight districts have a combined tax of $2,333 per $100 valuation.

As part of Long Beach, Village property owners will next year pay the city tax and the Metropolitan Water District tax. This year's city tax is $1.12 per $100 and the Metropolitan tax is 25 cents per $100.

Thus if both city and county taxes remain approximately the same next year as they were for 1953-'54, Villagers will pay $6,263 per $100. In addition, from 11 cents to 33 cents per $100 will in effect be paid because Long Beach assesses property slightly higher than the county.

The Village combined tax rate in 1952-'53 was $5,424. For additional comment on the Lakewood tax raise see Fast Life, Page A-2.

Pledges He'll Bare Record on Monday

Demo Chief Says Charge Inspired by California Election

(Compiled from AP and UP)

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. said Saturday that he will prove on Monday that former President Truman had been told Harry Dexter White was a Communist spy before he promoted White to a top government job in 1946.

Asked to comment on various reports attributed to Truman that (1) he never saw either of the FBI reports on White, (2) they should be in the attorney general's file and (3) if any are missing "Brownell must have done away with them," the attorney general said sharply:

"He'll be sorry he said that." Brownell touched off an angry political ruckus in a Chicago speech Friday by claiming that White was given an executive post with the International Monetary Fund despite two FBI warnings to the White House that he was a spy for a Russian ring operating in the government.

The attorney general told newsmen at the airport upon his return from Chicago Saturday that he will either hold a press conference on Monday or issue a formal summary of two FBI reports which made it "very clear" that White was engaged in espionage.

Democratic chieftains, including Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell of the national committee and assistant House floor leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) jumped to Truman's defense. They echoed the former President's counter-charge that the Republicans were warming over old and unproven charges in an attempt to "grab headlines" and cover up their recent election defeats.

Brownell told newsmen, in effect, that the Democrats haven't seen anything yet.

He confirmed in a report attributed earlier to a high administration source there are more such broadsides to come against the Truman regime.

Mitchell said: "This appears to be an attempt by a group of Republican strategists to divert the attention of the voters in the 24th Congressional District in California from the difficulties of the present administration. I hope the people of California see through the political stunt."

An election to fill a vacant House seat from California is to be held Tuesday.

The Senate internal security subcommittee, headed by Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.), ordered an investigation of Brownell's charges almost as soon as he uttered them in Chicago.

Robert Morris, its chief counsel, said the group has subpoenaed one witness for hearings here next week—Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan (retired), Truman's former military aide.

Brownell claims Vaughan received the FBI reports to deliver to Truman personally, but Vaughan has denied the statement as "a lot of malarkey."

Morris said that T. Lamar Caudle, one-time assistant attorney general whom Truman fired at the height of the 1951 tax scandals, may be questioned at the same time. Morris said the subcommittee was interested in hearing from Caudle on reports

Beach Combing
With MALCOLM EPLEY

BIG men of business, industry, education and so on gathered in the West Gold Room of Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles Friday to talk about smog and to form a foundation to help fight the nasty stuff.

As an observer on the scene, it seemed to me that those directing this important meeting committed a serious error of omission.

They asked industrialists, insurance men, newspaper men, public officials, doctors, public utilities magnates and the like to speak, and all said that smog is a very bad problem that must be corrected.

In the audience were three eminent members of the cloth—a Catholic bishop, a Jewish rabbi and the representative of a Methodist bishop.

But they didn't call on the preachers. In view of what has happened so far in the smog struggle, they perhaps had more to offer than anybody else there. When all else fails—

It was one meeting, for sure, that should have opened with prayer.

OLD P-T reporter Emmett Riordan, who was here the other day on vacation from his retirement heaven on the McKenzie River in Oregon, had a story to tell about his recent visit to New York.

It seems that back in 1922 or thereabouts, Bro. Riordan was riding on a Fifth Ave. bus in the city and wanted some local information.

He turned to a large man occupying the adjoining seat and asked him the question.

"No speak English," said the man.

When Riordan was back in N. Y. a couple of weeks ago, he and his wife became confused about the location of some point of interest. Standing by the front door of Macy's was a large man who looked vaguely familiar to Riordan.

They stepped up to him and asked him the way to the place they wanted to go.

"No speak English," said the man.

READERS of this dept. will be happy to know that the little sick boy who wanted a TV set, as related here the other day, is now a regular viewer of a TV screen that is right in his own living room.

Members of the children's committee of the Long Beach Kiwanis Club saw the item here, and within an hour had made arrangements to have a set installed in the boy's home in a housing project. Signal TV Service co-operated effectively in this project.

In case you missed the story, the little boy has an apparently incurable kidney ailment, and doctors have said that this may be his last Christmas. He is unable to go out and play with other children, and he has often expressed a longing for TV, which his mother couldn't provide.

"He's a happy boy now," she told me yesterday.

Here's appreciation to the Kiwanis Club for a good deed that gives meaning to the adjective in the term "service club."

And also, appreciation to Dan Woodson, whose offer of a set came just too late, and to W.D.C. who sent some money to start a fund, not knowing the set had been provided. There being no return address on W.D.C.'s letter, I sent the money to the boy's mother to buy the 4-year-old sufferer something for Christmas.

Lot of good people around here, including, in particular, the kindly neighbor woman who started us all on this little enterprise.

AND E. G. Byford wonders if the city is going highbrow. He pointed out that for several years, the police dept. has had signs along Seaside Blvd. which read:

"No vehicles after 11 a. m."

A few months ago they put up a new sign at the foot of Alamitos on Seaside which reads:

No vehicular traffic after 11 a. m."

Maybe it's highbrow, but it's good Webster.

POLLS DISTURB REPUBLICANS

Recent Election Losses Stir GOP Factionalism

By WALTER T. RIDDER
(Of the Independent-Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—Differing interpretations of the recent election results are likely to cause the Republican majority in Congress considerable trouble in the forthcoming congressional session.

One group of Republicans argues that the party needs to show more "liberalism" and that the taint of mossbackism is losing the party a substantial number of independents and younger voters. They will seek a more progressive program than has hitherto been presented by the administration.

Directly opposing the above argument are those who claim that the administration hasn't gone far enough in making a change.

Fast Life

By PETRONIUS JR.

SOME LAKEWOOD TAXPAYERS got a good jolt last week on receiving their county tax bills.

One home owner's bill is 33 per cent above his county tax last year.

HE IS CHARGED for garbage disposal which is given free to Long Beach residents.

He also finds several new taxes as the Central Basin Water District, park and recreation district and others.

LAST YEAR his total tax was $137.59, but his bill this year is $183.18.

There is no change in his assessed valuation so the increase is entirely for new services and higher rates.

IT IS AN EXAMPLE of how multiple districts assessed in county areas make it expensive.

Incorporating a separate city and contracting with the county for these services does not look inviting.

AREAS recently annexed to Long Beach are scheduled to get relief next year from county charges for garbage disposal and other services given by the city.

Problem for most Lakewood residents is they do not get an itemized tax bill, because it goes to the finance company, so all they know is that their monthly payments will be increased.

change. Proponents of this viewpoint contend that in 1952 the people wanted an out-and-out departure from anything smacking of New Dealism and Fair Dealism and thus far no such change has been forthcoming.

They state further that what has been visible of the Eisenhower program is really only a "me too" approach. They will therefore tell the Congress that it should hurry up and cut taxes, balance the budget, reduce foreign aid almost completely, stand pat on the Taft-Hartley law and work out a new and less expensive farm policy. In arguing this, they will constantly point to the election results and say in effect: "There are the warning signs."

This difference in viewpoint is certain to cause the President mental and political anguish. Both sides will cry loudly that their way is the only way in which to save the party from its threatened disaster. Both sides will seek entry to the White House, there to lay their propositions before the President. With his minuscule majority in both chambers of the Congress, the President will face the task not only of reconciling the divergent elements within his own party, but also that of getting them all working together in order to push his program through the Congress. All of this will take the most skilled kind of political maneuvering.

The Republican party has for long been badly split. In the days of their adversity, the party could to some extent smother the discontent. Now, however, in time of the party's ascendancy and responsibility, the split is tending to become wider than ever.

STORIES here about interesting signs reminded Mrs. F. L. Gandola of one she saw in a taxicab on Catalina Island. It read:

"Why be difficult when, with a little more effort, you can be impossible?"

AND E. G. Byford wonders if the city is going highbrow. He pointed out that for several years, the police dept. has had signs along Seaside Blvd. which read:

"No vehicles after 11 a. m."

A few months ago they put up a new sign at the foot of Alamitos on Seaside which reads:

No vehicular traffic after 11 a. m."

Maybe it's highbrow, but it's good Webster.

choice that could someday topple the Communist empire.

There were many heroes in the battle.

Part of them were the disillusioned, vengeful, resolute little Chinese and Korean soldiers who marched into the interview tents after three years of captivity and voted—97 per cent—to spurn home if it meant Communism.

The others were the GIs, the South Korean BOKs, and the other United Nations fighters who suffered and died during an extra year of war to buy them the right to reject their Red masters.

Powerful allies in the struggle were the Swiss, the Swedish and the Indian neutrals, who showed up the Communist drive for what it was—a ruthless, cynical and utterly heartless power play for the possession of the prisoners' bodies and souls.

As the week drew to a close Saturday, the Communists were routed. They knew it.

Every move they made was a desperate groping for escape from a defeat and rejection so overwhelming that for once these grim Red politicians were made to look ridiculous on the world stage.

It was an overwhelming vindication for the United Nations leaders, most of them American. For two long years these men had been working in Washington, in the United Nations and here at Panmunjom to give these prisoners, victims of Communist wars, the right to choose their future.

This story starts in 1945 with the collapse of Nazi Germany. Quite large numbers of Russians were found fighting and working for the Germans.

The first disgusted Allied reaction was to condemn them en masse as traitors and ship them back to Russia by the trainload. Heart-rending scenes of suicide, flight and terror—plus growing Soviet bullying—forced the Allies to take a second look. The shipments stopped.

This was remembered when the Korean war broke out.

When the armistice talks opened near here at Kaesong in July, 1951, the Allies were determined to protect men from a return to Communism against their will.

By April, 1952, all major armistice issues had been settled except the exchange of prisoners. Here was a vital deadlock.

These prisoners never had been screened. It was known that some were anti-Red but it was thought that only a very small minority were. In secret session, the Allies gave the Reds this impression. The Communists believed it.

This astonishing but understandable error led directly to weeks of bloody rioting and to another year of war.

For when the Allies, obliged celebration of their World War I Armistice Day.

Winterton acted to avoid any display of Italian nationalism at a time of high tension between Italy and Yugoslavia, both of which claim Trieste.

As a result of the killings, wild sympathy riots erupted in a dozen major cities of Italy Saturday.

Communist and right-wing labor groups joined in calling for a paralyzing general protest strike, Monday, in further protest.

Informed diplomatic sources said that Premier Pella is believed ready to modify his stand in the dispute with Yugoslavia over the Trieste territory. The informants said that Pella is prepared to agree to participate in a five-power conference if civil administration of Trieste is first turned over to Rome. No Italian troops would be moved in.

Rome was the hardest hit in Saturday's rioting and for six hours 12,000 students led by Fascist members of the Chamber of Deputies and Communist agitators, battled police, from the U. S. and British embassies to the outskirts of Rome.

One student was reported killed and 50 policemen and 120 students badly injured in the rioting which surged once toward the U. S. Embassy and broke into heavy fighting near the British embassy when the infuriated mob used rocks and bricks against police clubs, and tear-gas bombs.

British consulates were attacked in other cities. Riots broke out in all big Italian cities. The thousands of rioting stuthat he urged former Atty. Gen. Tom Clark, now a Supreme Court justice, to block White's promotion because of the spy reports. Clark was then Caudle's immediate superior.

The Jenner subcommittee, Morris said, has no present plans to question Truman, but he added that "of course, there is a possibility he might be called."

James C. Hagerty, President Eisenhower's press secretary, said that a search of the present White House files shows that "there are no confidential files in the White House from the past administration."

Hagerty hastened to add that it is "customary" for a President to take his confidential files when he leaves office. He said, however, there are copies of the FBI reports in FBI files.

Truman said at Kansas City that he doesn't know where the FBI reports are. He said he would search the voluminous correspondence he took with him to Missouri to see if there are any copies of such reports.

As for the original reports, he said:

"They must be in the files of the attorney general. That's where they should be if he hasn't done away with them."

Truman, branding the whole charge political, said that as soon as he found White was "wrong" he let him out via the "resignation" route. Vaughan denied receiving any such FBI reports.

To a question as to why White was not prosecuted, Truman said at Kansas City:

"It was never proven that White was a spy. He denied any such connections before an investigating committee. He was never indicted by a grand jury."

Truman said the administration has full "access to the files and will find we have nothing to hide."

"The more lies they tell," he added, "the more trouble they're going to get into."

White, a government employee for 13 years, died of a heart attack in 1948—a week after that "The British are spreading propaganda in Africa and elsewhere that the United States is Communist."

McCarthy Says Pal of White Still on Job in Spite of FBI

WASHINGTON — (CP) Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said Saturday a "protege" of the late Harry Dexter White is still employed by the International Monetary Fund despite FBI reports naming him as a spy.

Like White, the fund employee formerly worked for the Treasury, he said.

McCarthy said his committee is turning its information over to Chairman William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) whose internal security subcommittee plans to hold hearings on Brownell's charges.

One hundred thousand fans swarmed Corona for its second auto races in 1914. Winner was Eddie Pullen. Speed, 87 miles per hour.

Corona--Early Day Indianapolis of West

By Helen Smith

IF YOU SHOULD be out for a Sunday drive which takes you through tree-shaded Corona, you may not be aware that, as you drive along Hwy. 18 and intersect twice with Grand Blvd., you have passed over what was formerly a world-famous automobile race track.

This asphalt roadway encircling the city once knew the squealing of brakes, the terrible din of telescoping steel and the acrid smell of exhaust from overheated motors as such racing greats as Barney Oldfield, Eddie Rickenbacker, Ralph DePalma, Earl Cooper and Bob Burman swarmed over the course at nearly 100 miles per hour.

These historic events happened 40 years ago.

Today Grand Blvd., which has a circumference of slightly more than three miles, compared with Indianapolis Speedway's 2½, is a peaceful, picturesque avenue lined with trailing pepper trees—the same trees upon which were inflicted slashing wounds from hurtling cars.

Why was Corona chosen as the scene of those western classics back in the days when the nation-wide interest in auto racing had reached an all-time peak?

City founders H. Clay Kellogg and Robert B. Taylor back in 1866 decided that a perfect circle, divided into four quarters, would provide the main arteries of the city they named Corona. It was then, and remains today, the only "circle city" in the United States and as such proved a natural choice as the site of the popular sport.

FROM 1866 until 1912 the boulevard was unpaved and the ladies and gentlemen in their horse-drawn carriages serenely promenaded the ever-turning avenue, equestrians used it as a bridle path and the loop became an integral part of the then quiet-life of the little Orange Belt city.

In 1912 a layer of asphalt was poured onto the 60-foot-wide roadway. The events which rapidly followed disrupted the quiet for all time. Corona has never been quite the same since.

A meeting called by members of the Corona Auto Club and the newly formed Western Automobile Racing Association scheduled the first race for Sept. 9, 1913. But even a week prior to the big day, Corona and the near-by towns of Riverside and San Bernardino experienced a foretaste of the change in tempo that was to come to this citrus growing district. The horse and buggy days definitely were over.

Drivers and mechanics and representatives of the press poured into town. People came from all over the country via every known conveyance to view this first western classic. From

5 a. m. until dusk residents heard the whine of racing motors. Hotels were filled to overflowing and those unable to find accommodations slept in their cars, so great was the interest in the event.

As trial runs progressed the seasoned racers began to have a feeling of uneasiness concerning the course. It was tricky. Although the turns were unbanked and the road level except for an eight-inch crown, the circle lay on a gentle slope of ground. This, along with the constant turning of the steering wheel, put a pressure on tires they could not withstand for long. Blowouts were numerous—too numerous for even these early-day daredevils. They sensed it to be the deadly circle it was to become.

BY NOON of race day every seat in the 5000-capacity grandstand was filled and thousands more lined the course—providing an additional hazard not only to themselves but to the racers. Special trains had been dispatched from San Francisco, San Diego and other western points carrying thousands of eager fans; 75,000 spectators eventually jammed the town.

In the line-up for the main event were 15 cars accelerating at the flash of the starter's flag. Only three were able to roll over the finish line.

Death claimed its first victim in this race as Barney Oldfield, at the wheel of a Mercer, blew a tire on the 59th lap. The resulting accident killed his mechanic, Sned Hoffer.

Early sport records say Earl Cooper captured top honors and $5000 prize money in this tragic opener. Driving a Stutz, he won the 300-mile free-for-all by going 109 laps in 4 hours, 2 minutes, 38 seconds, at an average speed of 74 miles an hour.

Nov. 26, 1914, marked the date of the second racing meeting. One hundred thousand persons filled the city to capacity—more than at some times have attended the Indianapolis show. Eighty-seven miles per hour was the winning speed with Eddie Pullen taking prize money.

This time seven of the 19 starters were able to cross the finish line.

DUE TO COMPETITION from San Francisco World's Fair, no races were held in 1915.

In 1916, the event was set for April 8. Death, as usual a punctilious attendant, claimed three persons this time, with five near casualties. "Wild Bob" Burman, whose eastern exploits made him the acknowledged

"King of Speed," early took the lead. Driving the most sensational race of his career despite 11 blowouts and many minor mechanical difficulties, he managed to keep within a few laps of Eddie O'Donnell, who later won.

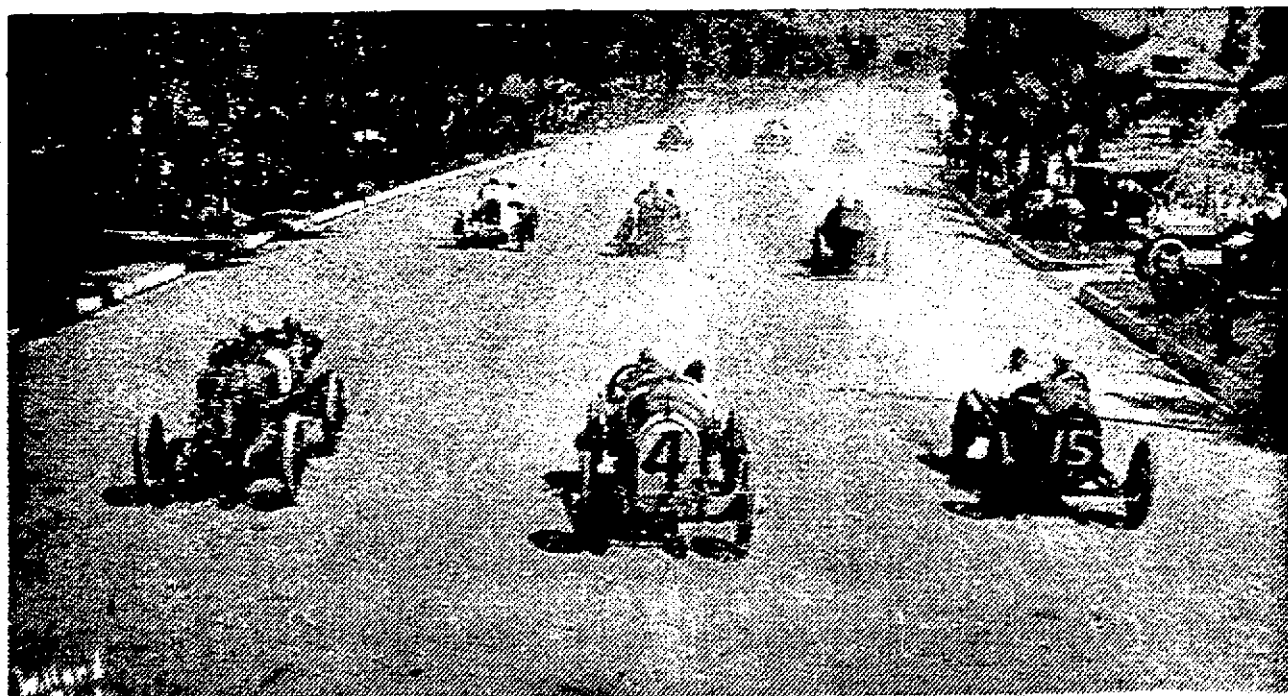

But fate had already written the climax to these classics and on Burman's 95th lap, pressing his Peugeot to a searing 98 miles an hour, he blew a left rear tire. The resulting wreckage sent his car headlong into one filled with fans. Burman and W. H. Speer, a track guard, were killed almost instantly. Eric Schader, Burman's mechanic, died shortly thereafter. The five persons in the other car were all seriously injured.

THE DAY ENDED in chaos. Screaming ambulance sirens and near-hysteria brought police on an issued riot call.

The quiet-loving citizens of Corona had had enough. Aroused and determined to end the noise, confusion and interminable accidents, they succeeded in writing finis not only to the races but to all major western meets as well.

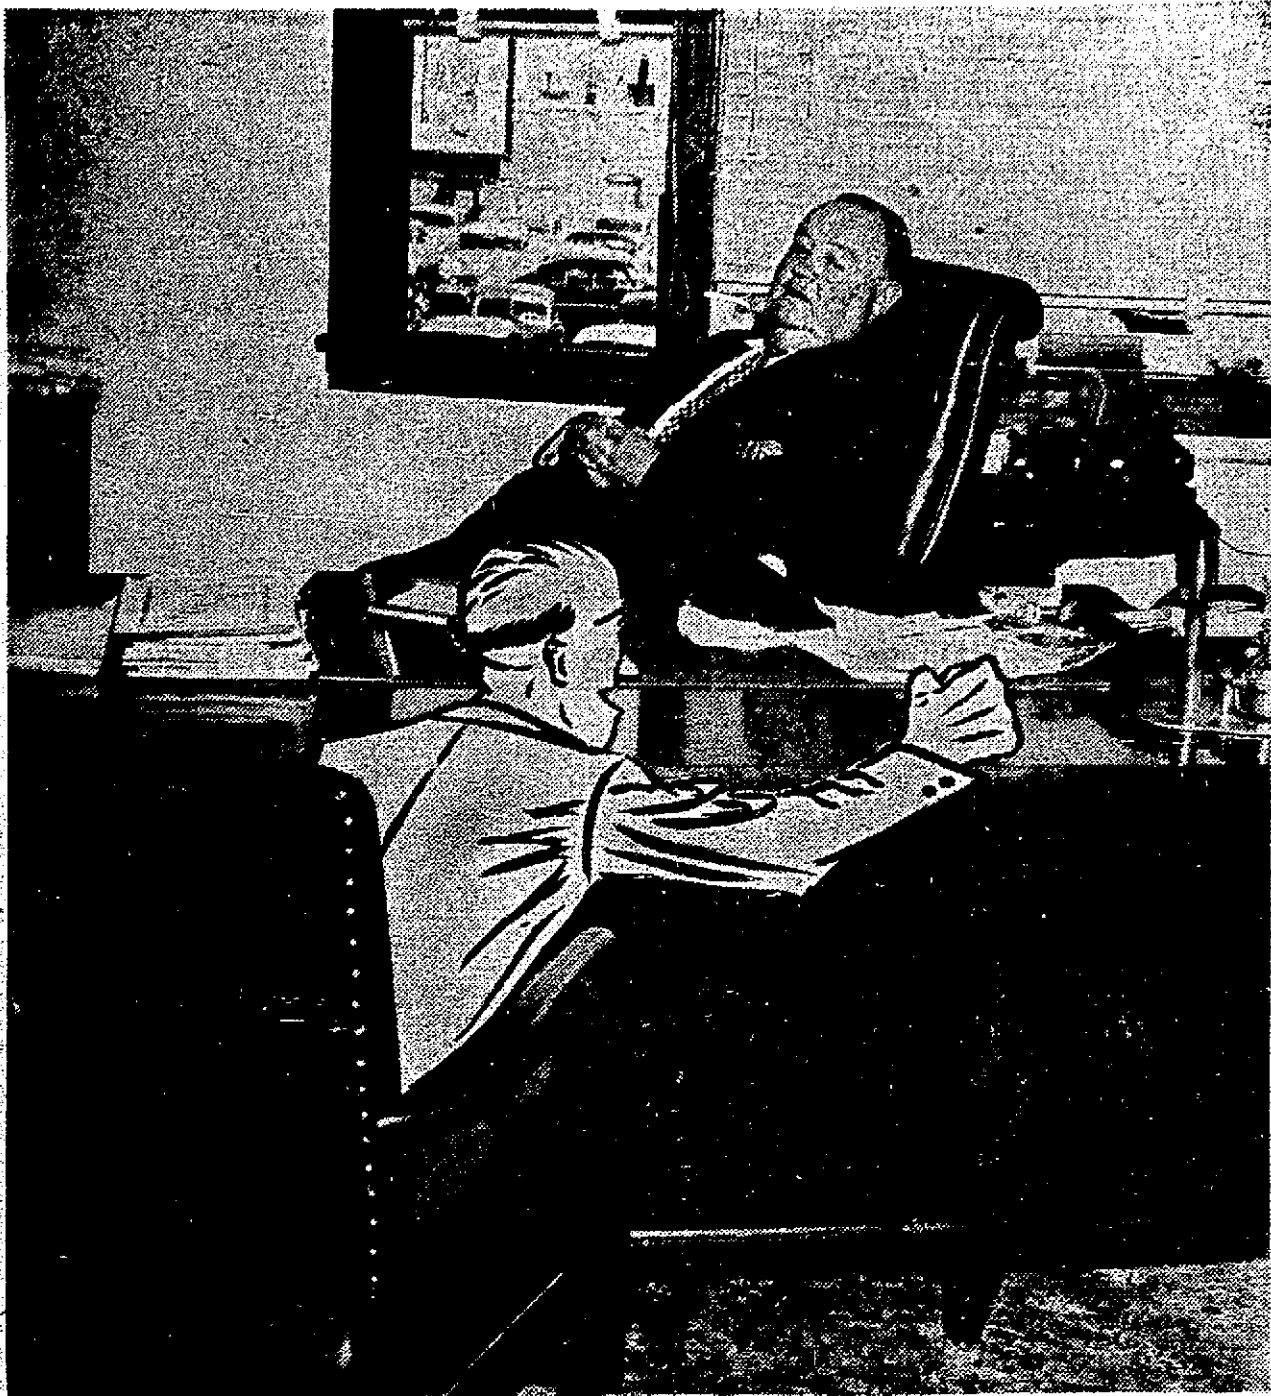

Time, the great healer, has been at work in Corona just as elsewhere. This year the city held a celebration in honor of these early-day happenings. The Horseless Carriage Club and their vintage cars were on hand to simulate the racing heats, which proved extremely popular. It is to be repeated annually every Memorial Day.

So, if you should be driving out Corona way and approaching in an easterly direction, turn your wheel to the right when you reach Grand Blvd. As you tour the circle you will be retracing the route of the racers of bygone times.

Death rode with the racers as they roared around circle. Aroused Coronans finally succeeded in writing finis to all such major events in the west.

"I'm a taxpayer," shouts Mr. Citizen to Police Chief William H. (Bill) Dovey, "and I demand police chase a bug off my rug . . . or I'll stop paying my taxes!"

"So they have to slide down the greased pole because they sleep up there?" a caller asks Fire Chief Sandeman. "Why don't the firemen sleep downstairs?"

Don't We All Ask Foolish Questions!

By Newt Todd

WHY DOES ICE CREAM taste better than spinach?

Why is it the sun shines only in the daytime—when we don't need it?

Where does the wind go when it's resting?

Why, why, why, why— ???

These and hundreds of other zany questions and requests are channeled through City Hall and Board of Education switchboards annually, much to the consternation of employees.

Police Chief William H. (Bill) Dovey will tell you that the Police Department comes in for more than its share of irate taxpayer demands and plain psychos.

Take the case of an actual phone conversation that took place recently.

Citizen: "Do you have a Police Department on Ocean Blvd?"

Desk: "We have a radio car in the vicinity."

Citizen: "Tell them to come over and chase a bug off my rug."

Desk: "Why don't you step on it?"

Citizen: "I'm afraid, and I'm a taxpayer. I want the police to do it."

Desk: "If you're afraid to step on it, hit it with a broom."

Citizen: "I have no broom."

Desk: "What do you sweep with?"

Citizen: "It's none of your business who I sleep with."

Desk: "I said sweep with."

Citizen: "I never sweep. Never mind sending the police. I'll just stop paying my taxes."

Click. . .

ANOTHER DRAMATIC phase of city life is the Fire Department. Chief Frank Sandeman reports that an individual called at a very late hour recently and in a surly tone asked why firemen slid down the greased pole.

The chief answered the question to the best of his ability and the party asked, "Why don't the firemen sleep downstairs?"

Firemen are constantly being asked to baste roasts "at intervals," break in the house and pull the plug on a curling iron, and getting calls from neighbors saying that John Doe's attic, yard and home is a fire hazard. Unfortunately, the person calling is afraid to leave a name or number for fear that Doe will boycott him.

An irate woman once stormed into Chief Sandeman's office and plunked a dead monkey down on his desk. She demanded the chief administer artificial respiration.

"My landlady died. Where do I pay my rent?"

"Where is the fourth floor?"

"There's an owl outside our bedroom window. Come and get him because he not only watches my wife undress, but he whistles occasionally."

"Why can't you call on us the days we're at home?"

"I can't donate any money to your department. I need cash myself. Can you swing a loan for me?"

These headaches belong to Sam Roberts, head of the city assessor's office, tax collecting, accounting and purchasing. He's asked to collect the garbage, too.

Doug Newcomb's Board of Education is certainly no exception. Some examples of questions his office gets:

"My boy's allergic to water. Can he skip gym class?"

"Can you get rid of my bugs?"

"I have a sick chicken. Do you have a professor available that can diagnose his ailment?"

"I hate mocking birds. Is there any place in the city where they don't roost?" City Librarian Edwin Castagna had to answer this teaser.

CITY ENGINEERS come up against some dillies. One person called in and said "I want to have my limbs trimmed."

"Will you cut a twig off my palm tree?" asked another.

But the clincher was the dude that requested the department to "send someone out to pick up my ashes."

Headman Jess Gilkerson had to scratch his head on this one. Didn't know whether the guy wanted an engineer or a mortician.

"I lost my cat. I want you to find him. When you do, be sure to whistle, because he thinks he's a dog."

"All the birds around my house are very noisy. I'm naming God as a specific defendant because He's the only one that's responsible."

Jimmy Starr, city prosecutor, was tabbed to answer that one.

The Building Department, headed by Edward O'Connor, is not to be excluded. Someone lifted the receiver and said, "I've invented an earthquake shock absorber. Are you interested?" Another wanted permission to moor a tremendous advertising balloon within the confines of the city. Still another was quite indignant when the department made him tear down a purple fence with yellow polka dots.

CITY HALL telephone operators receive frequent calls for the "Indignant Relief Department."

"I want this immoral conduct stopped at once. Young girls in my neighborhood are sitting on their front porches after 10 p. m." The question is, how did Joe Kennick, head of the Juvenile Bureau answer this one?

The Chamber of Commerce is a focal point for inane questions and requests. Some samples that D. W. Campbell, general manager, has culled:

"Where do I get tickets?"

"Where do I get entertained?"

"What town is San Diego 3 in?"

"Please send me the location

Knight Pledges Effort to Widen Job Security

SAN DIEGO—(UP) Gov. Good delegates broke into loud applause and rose to their feet. "When it is properly administered, I regard unemployment insurance as an essential part of the American way of life," Knight said. He mentioned unemployment insurance chiseling, saying, "It creates undesirable publicity for the working man and weakens the fund so that it cannot carry the load in times of severe unemployment." The Republican governor pledged his support to collective bargaining and said he was opposed to any legislation against either labor or management. Knight also pledged his support to the labor apprenticeship program, which generally has the backing of unions, management and government alike. "I have no private business interests or alliances and I have but one ambition—to be a good governor for all the people of California," Knight said.

Noble Flies Home, Fights Morals Case

LYMINGTON, England—(UP) Lord Montagu of Beaulieu flew home to England Saturday and was taken immediately to court on a morals charge.

Plainclothesmen met the 27-year-old peer at London airport with a "Good morning, sir," and drove him to his native county of Hampshire. He was taken directly to special magistrate's court and arraigned on a charge he denies, "a serious offense with a male young person, contrary to common law."

The magistrate's clerk called Montagu before the bar by his full name, John Barrington Douglas-Scott-Montagu, Lord Montagu of Beaulieu. He was remanded on $1400 bail until next Saturday.

Montagu was accompanied here by Kenneth Edwin Hume, 27-year-old film producer who also was arrested at the airport. Hume was taken before the same court on a charge of indecent assault on a 14-year-old boy and a 13-year-old boy.

The magistrate granted Hume bail of $280 in his own recognition and $280 in surety.

Both men were represented by J. T. Moloney who pointed out the two returned to England voluntarily to face charges. Moloney said both were willing to leave their passports in police possession.

Ex-Federal Counsel Face Indictments

WASHINGTON—(UP) The Justice Department said Saturday that the first of its cases involving former government attorneys who "swapped to the other side" after leaving federal service will be put before a U. S. grand jury here on Monday, Nov. 9.

The government proposes to seek indictments under the so-called "conflict of interest" statutes, which say that a government lawyer who enters private practice cannot, for a period of two years, handle any litigation with which he was associated as a federal employee.

Attorney General Brownell said several weeks ago that it had come to his attention that these regulations were being violated. He issued a circular to all U. S. prosecutors instructing them to look into the matter in their respective districts.

The Justice Department consistently has declined to comment on reports that the local investigations which were undertaken involved some former officials in the last Democratic administration.

The conflict statutes provides penalties of one-year imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both, for violations.

'Most Wanted' Man Taken Quietly

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(UP) Arnold said. His wife broke down and Hinson, who went on the FBI's "10 Most Wanted" list during a flight through 48 states to avoid capture for murder, surrendered without a fight Saturday when federal agents surprised him reading a newspaper.

Hinson, 40, was sitting in an automobile with his 35-year-old wife, wanted for the same crime, when G-men stepped up to either side of the car.

The agents told him to "put your hands on the steering wheel" and Hinson did so.

Mossadegh in Fight for Life Today

TEHRAN, Iran.—(UP) Former Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, whose stormy rule of tears and terror brought this once oil-rich nation to the brink of economic ruin, is scheduled to go on trial for his life today on charges of treason.

The 72-year-old Mossadegh and his former chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Taghi Riahi, are charged with plotting the overthrow of Iran's young Shah, whom Mossadegh once swore on the Koran never to betray.

Military Prosecutor Brig. Gen. Hossein Azemoudeh said he will demand the death penalty for both defendants.

The trial is set for hearing in the salon of the swank officers' club of the Saltatabad military barracks.

Mossadegh, who used to stage fits of uncontrollable weeping and fainting when his policies were opposed by the parliamentary opposition he sought to crush, was described as "intensely nervous" Saturday night.

At today's opening hearing he is to hear the prosecution read the lengthy indictment.

When overthrown and arrested by pro-monarchist supporters of the Shah, last Aug. 19, Mossadegh was accused of pro-Communist leanings, corrupt administration and deliberate wreckage of the nation's economy.

The prosecutor will demand that "by Article 317 of the military penal code they (both defendants) be sentenced to death for attempting to overthrow the constitutional monarchy of this country and inciting the people to armed insurrection against the crown."

Mossadegh claims he still is the legal premier of Iran, although he had been in jail since a mob of royalist demonstrators, in an orgy of bloody rioting, frustrated his plans to seize dictatorial powers and forced him to flee in his pajamas from his besieged home.

Forty-three persons died in writing an end to the autocratic rule of Mossadegh, who has been a troublemaker in Iran for nearly 50 years.

WELL, ANYWAY RED GOT IT

PANMUNJOM — (UP) The Communists got 18 cents change back from the U. N. Command after paying their $22 share of the cost of identification cards for armistice supervision officials.

After receiving the $22, an American officer said: "I now hand you zero point one eight dollars." The Red officer answered: "I acknowledge receipt of 18 cents change."

For Whistling Out Loud!

Wherever Kathy Hughes goes, she gets attention from males. Even a drake will follow her off.

A lot of people have won stardom in movies for a lot of reasons. But, up 'til now, there's no record of any femme player reaching the exalted pinnacle because males in the movie audience automatically whistled when she came on the screen! Such is the case with Kathleen Hughes! Player of decorative bit roles (wow!) and "supporting" parts, Kathleen, in her forthcoming movie, "The Glass Web," gets star billing, says Universal-International Studios. The reason is: Kathy has looked beautiful enough to "bother" males in many films, but in her last one her bit role evoked whistles from coast to coast. And such an accolade, of course, deserves a rich reward.

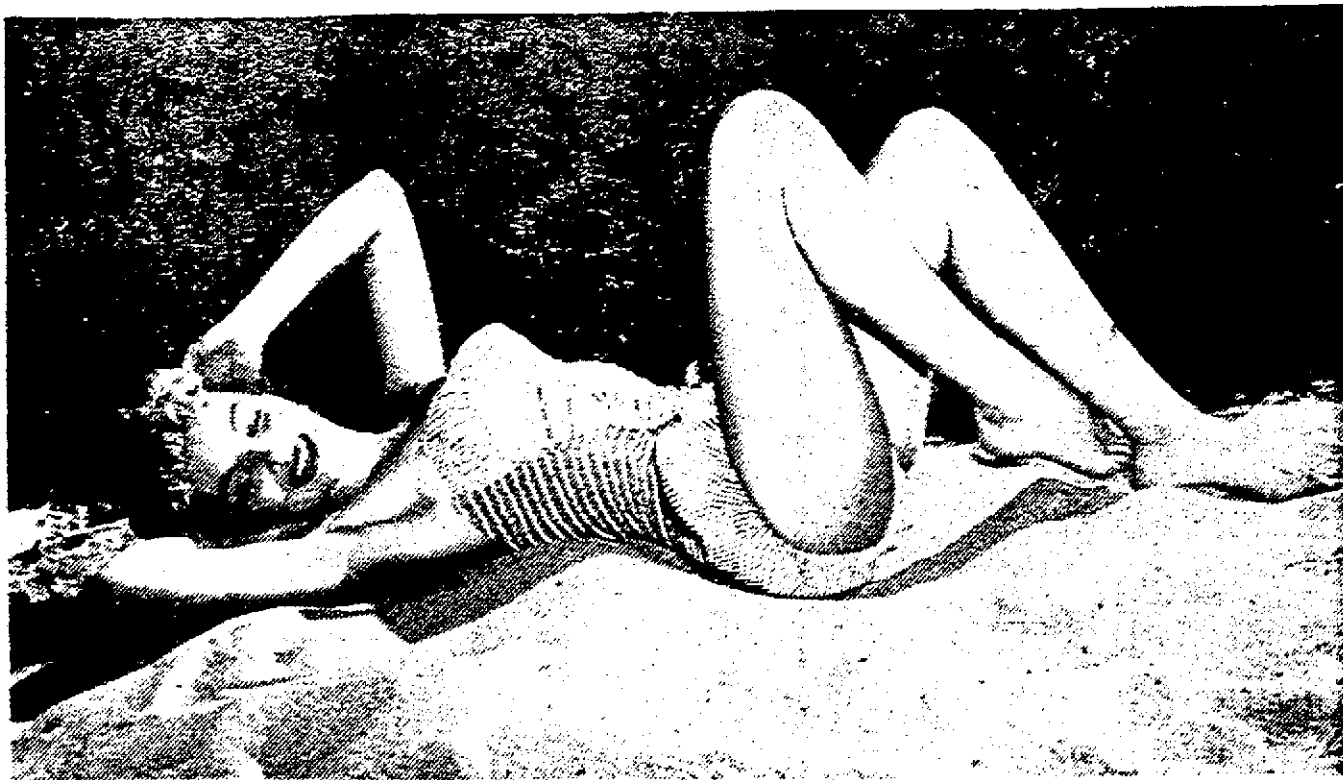

As the din of the whistles increased, Kathy was so happy that she practically stood on her head.

When Kathy did a bit role in "It Came From Outer Space," whistles were heard across the U. S.

What will Kathleen do in her first starring role? She'll get strangled to death—in exciting 3-D. But she won't mind. She's quite happy, as you see.

of all hotels, public buildings, and homes demolished in the last six months, and a description of the neighborhood they stood in."
"Please send me the elevation of all mountains between here and Texas."
"When is Thanksgiving?" All during the year, City Clerk Margaret Heartwell receives questions on this subject. Strangely enough, it never crops up on the days approaching the actual holiday, or immediately thereafter.

THE CITY COUNCIL has to act on Police Department business, of course. Like the character who called and demanded that all date trees on Redondo Ave. be cut down. Said the rats infesting the foliage were dropping down on the pedestrians. Was afraid he'd be sued.

A Washington man wrote to the police, and it was referred to the council. He was asking help in finding his "lost" wife and car. He instructed the Police Department to wire him collect "if the car is located" so he could get it back.
How about the elderly lady who insisted that the police place blankets over the trees under her bedroom window so the rustle of the leaves wouldn't disturb her afternoon siesta. Or, the person who dropped to his knees on the floor of a local pub recently and declared that he was a pinball machine. Complained occasionally that he was being tilted.

Or, the young housewife who demanded that the city employ only left-handed garbage collectors since she was so "partial to southpaws." Or, the oldster who jumped into the lagoon and refused to get out. Said he was a harbor buoy.

Or—Never mind. You get the idea now. We live in an interesting age and there's never a dull moment.

'Fringe Pay' Cuts Weaken Defense Forces, Short Says

WASHINGTON—(AP). Chairman Dewey Short (R-Mo.) of the House Armed Services Committee said Saturday Congress has gone too far cutting benefits of servicemen and indicated he may try to get them a general pay increase.

Short conceded that any try to get military pay raises would have tough sledding in next year's economy-minded Congress.

"We'll have trouble with anything that costs money," he said. Short, discussing what he termed a "congressional open season against the military," said cutbacks in so-called "fringe benefits" have hurt morale and may undermine efforts to build a well-trained defense force.

He cited congressional action in recent years limiting officer promotions, flight pay, cutting post exchange and commissary services, reducing medical care for dependents, and the lack of adequate housing in some military areas.

Each cutback, when coupled with rising living costs, amounted to a pay cut, Short said. The last military pay raise was three years ago. The Armed Services asked for a 10 per cent across-the-board raise and Congress approved five per cent.

"It is getting increasingly difficult to get young, bright, able fellows to make a career in the military 'because of the constant whittling of so-called fringe benefits,'" Short said.

"Junior officers have a very hard struggle to get by," Short said he has written Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson for a full report on pay as well as direct and indirect benefits military personnel receive. He also wrote Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for a similar report on pay and benefits of foreign service personnel in order to make a comparison.

"If by this study we can prevent further cuts, we will have done something," Short said. "We must give the fellows a little feeling of security and restore a little dignity and give them a decent standard of living."

POLICE GRAB OILED OILER HUNTING CRAB

"I was hunting crabs, what's wrong with that?" Police Officer F. H. Smith got that statement Saturday night from Walter Arthur Bryant, 6360 Paramount Blvd., after he had been aided from the ocean at the foot of Golden Ave.

Officer Smith admitted Bryant had all the right in the world to hunt crabs. It was just the way he went about it that brought Smith to the scene.

Bryant, who said he was an oiler, had driven his 1939 coupe through a wooden barricade, across 400 feet of sandy beach and into the ocean.

Officer Smith decided the oiler was oiled and booked him on suspicion of drunken driving. His car was towed from the ocean.

Polio Causes Quarantine at Anaheim

ANAHEIM—Students at St. Catherine's Military Academy here were restricted to quarters Saturday following the discovery that one boarding student was a victim of severe bulbar poliomyelitis.

Orange County Health Officer Dr. Edward Lee Russell said the Los Angeles County Health Department notified the Orange County Health Department Friday that Maurice Garten Jr., 9, of Los Angeles was taken to Los Angeles General Hospital with the polio attack.

The boy was taken from the Anaheim school Oct. 30, because of illness. The ailment was diagnosed as polio Oct. 31, but the victim was not hospitalized until Nov. 5, Dr. Russell reported.

Orange County health officials immediately ordered boys at the school, who have contacted young Garten, restricted and given gamma globulin, which the state has agreed to furnish. Young Garten is Orange County's 168th case of polio reported this year, Dr. Russell said.

Huge British Textile Industry in Comeback

LONDON—(AP). Britain's huge textile industry staged a booming comeback in recent months to take its place again as a big dollar earner for Britain in Canadian and North American markets. Wool textiles—first to be hit in last year's severe slump—has led the recovery and set new post-war production records. The revival in cotton has been slower but steady. Production of rayon and nylon yarn and staple has tripled since the recession.

Servicemen Being Sent Home Early

WASHINGTON—(AP). It's now easier to get out of the Army, Air Force and Navy.

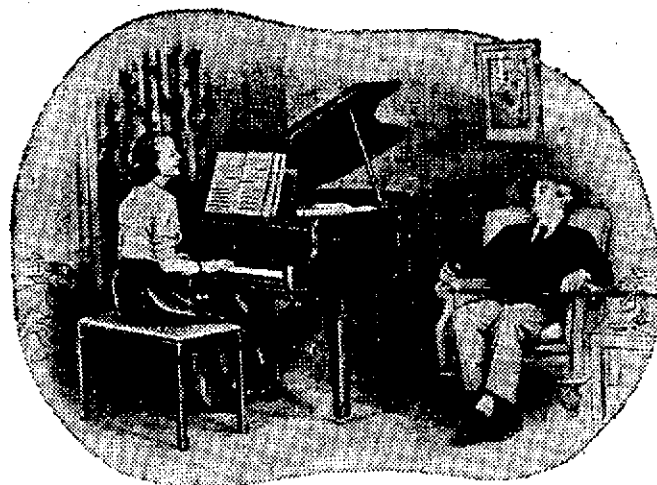

Men are being released from two to three months ahead of their scheduled release so the services can meet budget limitations on their manpower.

The new Army regulation was disclosed Saturday which permits the release of a soldier from service three months early if he holds a contract for a civilian job.

The Navy is releasing two months ahead of time all men whose service would expire between now and Aug. 31, 1954.

The Air Force, officials said, is also following liberalized release provisions.

The Marine Corps, which has been short of manpower, has not been following a free release policy, it was indicated. The new Army regulations permitting release of a man three months early became known after Ft. Eustis, Va., officials said the rule would allow Willie Mays, New York Giants center fielder, to get out of service three months ahead of schedule. This would permit Mays to join the Giants in spring training.

REGIONAL POLITICS

Hot Ballot Race Nears Climax

By THE LOOKOUT
Bitter rivalry between two Republicans may cost the party a Congressional seat Tuesday.

when voters of the 24th Congressional District choose a successor to Republican Norris Poulson, who resigned to become Los Angeles mayor.

The national political spotlight will be focused on the 24th District vote, the final Congressional election in this off-year. The district embraces a section of northern Los Angeles and South Pasadena. While Democrats have an edge of about 10,000 in registration there, it has been represented for many years by a Republican.

GOP leaders think they could easily hold the line there if just one Republican were running Tuesday. But two are in the race—Assemblymen Glenard P. Lipscomb, who has the semi-official blessing of the party, and John L. E. Collier.

Collier has rejected a plea by National Chairman Leonard Hall to withdraw from the race. This cheered the Democrats, who are giving their main support to Attorney George L. Arnold, son of former trust-buster Thurman

Arnold and son-in-law of Communist Drew Pearson.

There's another Democrat in the race, but he is not expected to draw many votes from Arnold. He is Irving Markheim, a perennial runner in the 24th.

The election in the 24th has assumed special significance in view of Democratic Congressional victories in New Jersey and Wisconsin. If a Democrat should win, the Republican edge in the House will be cut to two. Leaders of both major parties are calling on all available help to swing Tuesday's vote.

It's a one-shot election. A simple plurality will name the winner and the post will be filled again at next year's regular Congressional elections.

HEADQUARTERS FETE

Republican headquarters for the 18th Congressional District, located at 25 Jergins Arcade, were formally opened Friday night. Throughout the evening party members called to see the new offices and to discuss next year's political campaigns.

Woodrow Baird, chairman of the 18th District Central Committee, greeted the visitors. Mrs. Robert M. Devitt was in charge of opening the headquarters. Refreshments were served.

The GOP offices will supply information and answer queries. The telephone number is 65-8465.

The staff hopes to maintain office hours daily, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., until campaign next year, when evening hours will be set.

GOP Opens Offices

HEADQUARTERS FOR the Republican party in the 18th District were opened at 25 Jergins Arcade last week. Talking over plans for next year's campaigns, are, left to right: Mrs. Charles J. Teasley, volunteer worker; Mrs. Richard A. Bixby, vice president of 18th District Republican Women's Council, and Mrs. Robert M. Devitt, who had charge of the opening fete. Woodrow Baird is chairman of the 18th District GOP Central Committee.

N.Y. Bus Burns in River Tunnel,

NEW YORK — (UP) A bus caught fire in the Lincoln Tunnel, threw open the front door and under the Hudson River Saturday night, but the 14 persons aboard flames. Passengers in the rear scrambled to safety through the vehicle's windows and front door, and escaped.

Public service driver, Joseph Sacco of Union City, N. J., said he was halfway through the tunnel when he looked into his rear-view mirror and saw a burst of flame at the center of the bus.

Blast on Boat Burns Owner

WILMINGTON — Exploding gasoline fumes aboard a small boat resulted in severe burns to a prominent Palos Verdes Estates engineer Saturday.

Raymond L. Quigley, 34, of 3209 Paseo del Campo, suffered second-degree burns over most of his body above the waist when a blast ripped his 23-foot boat. Bad Penny, in the channel off Berth 192.

The boat was almost completely gutted by the explosion and fire.

Aboard the boat with Quigley were Wendell Hansen, 34, of Fresno; Quigley's three children, Jennifer, 4, Sandy, 6, and Robbie, 8; and Hansen's two children, David, 9, and Wendie, 6.

All were removed from the burning vessel by another boat. Quigley suffered a slight burn on one hand, but none of the others was injured.

Quigley told firemen he was attempting to start the sailboat's auxiliary engine when it blew up. Fire officials blamed an accumulation of gasoline fumes in the bilges.

Quigley who is associated with the South Bay Engineering Co., was given emergency treatment at Harbor General Hospital and then removed to San Pedro Community Hospital.

Cruise in the South Pacific

TWENTY-FIVE fascinating ports are listed on the fabulous itinerary of the famed world cruise liner Caronia, which is slated for a thrilling 99-day Japan-South Pacific cruise, leaving New York Jan. 23, 1954.

The popular 34,000-ton Caronia, acclaimed by many as the world's outstanding cruise ship, has voyaged to many parts of the world and is well known to cruise enthusiasts. As she sails on this exciting Pacific-circling venture, she will visit on her fascinating 33,988-mile itinerary some unusual places that are rarely visited on cruises, and one of the high lights of the journey will be a week in Japan on the first luxury cruise operated there for 15 years by a major transatlantic steamship company.

First she will cruise the Caribbean, then transit the Panama Canal, calling at Cristobal and Balboa. Passengers will find the eight-hour passage through the Canal highly interesting, for this "ditch" connecting the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, with its locks and mechanical mules, is one of the great engineering wonders of the world. At Balboa, Pacific terminal of the Canal, there will be opportunities to explore the ruins of Old Panama, sacked by the buccaneer Morgan in 1671, and by way of contrast, dine and dance at the luxurious new El Panama.

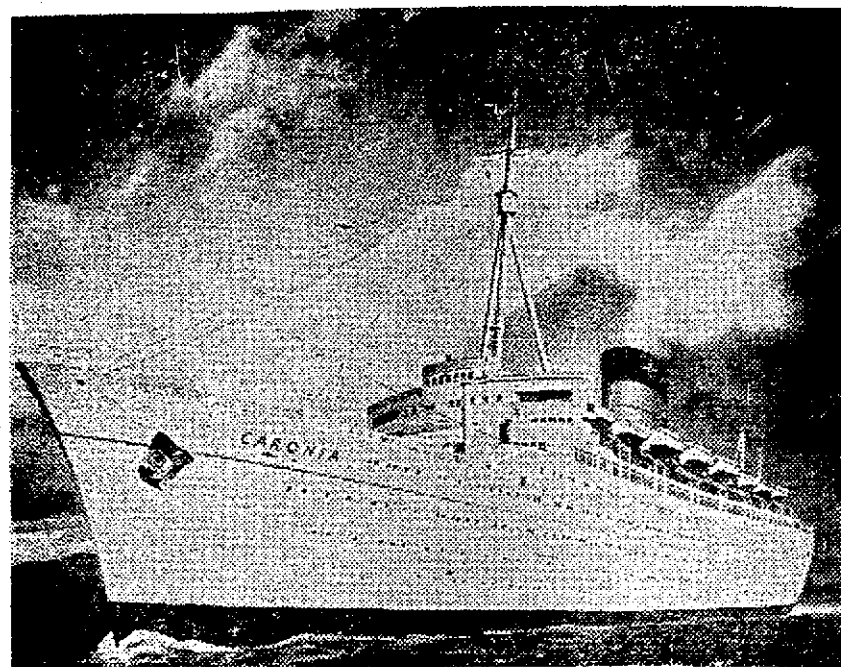

A call is scheduled next at Callao, Peru, port for the capital, Lima, and once the leading city of Spanish America. From Peru, the Caronia will make a series of visits to delightful seagirt South Seas islands.

First comes Easter Island, famous for its stone idols (moais). Landing conditions will not permit passengers to go ashore and inspect these examples of early Polynesian art, but islanders will visit the ship in their small boats.

AT PITCAIRN ISLAND, next stop in the Caronia's itinerary, landing conditions again will make it impossible to go ashore, but a traditional island welcome will be staged. Ships call there infrequently, but when they do, the islanders, descendants of the mutineers of HMS Bounty, who first settled there in 1790, row out in their Elizabethan long-boat, singing hymns, and then come on board with souvenirs, island stamps and fruits for sale.

Other islands to be visited include Suva (Fiji), Pago Pago (Samoa) and Vavau (Friendly Islands), where visits ashore will give passengers an idea of the rich tropical beauty of these islands and a chance to watch fascinating tribal dances and perhaps understand the lure of pulsing native drums.

From Vavau, ruled by 6-foot-4 native Queen Salote, the Caronia will head for Auckland, N. Z., gateway to Zane Gray's "Northland." From here it's an easy jaunt to the famous Thermal Region of Rotorua, where geysers and bubbling mud were long ago put to domestic use by the Maoris. The ship will also call at Wellington, the capital, for a look around this prosperous city with the many elegant homes built upon the hill overlooking the harbor. Of international fame is the Glowworm Cave at near-by Waitomo, which has called forth the comment: "If it is possible for beauty to hurt, this does." A call will be made at Lyttelton in the South Island of New Zealand, then the Caronia heads south and cruises the fjords of Thompson and George Sounds amid scenery that rivals the coastline of Norway and crosses the Tasman Sea to Australia.

VISITORS WILL BE charmed by dignified Melbourne, Australia, with its flowering gums and little coffee shops along beautiful St. Kilda Rd., the glorious landscaping in the Botanical Gardens and the stately war memorial. Capt. Cook's cottage in the Fitzroy Gardens can be seen, too. Sydney will prove a great contrast to the quiet of Melbourne. It is a bustling, big city with many American ways. Ike's Canada Trip To Scan Defenses

OTTAWA, Ont.—(AP) President Eisenhower's trip to the Canadian capital next week end officially is a "courtesy visit," but it will give the President a chance to talk over problems of defense and to speak directly to the Canadian people.

By protocol, the President will be returning the visit Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent paid to Washington last May. St. Laurent will share the role of host with Vincent Massey, who as governor-general is the queen's representative in Canada but has strictly a nominal part in the government. The prime minister is Canada's nearest equivalent to the U. S. presidency. St. Laurent three months ago retained the job in a national election returning his Liberal party to power. St. Laurent is a former corporation lawyer who entered government service in wartime, and stayed on to become the biggest vote getter in the country. He took over the prime ministry in 1948, succeeding William L. Mackenzie King.

At 71, he is 8 years older than Eisenhower. The topic most common to both countries at this time is continental defense. So far as Canada is concerned, trade relations also are important. These likely will form the basis of discussions Eisenhower will hold with St. Laurent and the cabinet. The cabinet ministers include two men well known in the United States—Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson and Clarence D. Howe, minister of trade and defense production who was born in Waltham, Mass.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower will arrive from Washington at 11:40 A. M. (EST) Friday. Their train will be met by Massey, St. Laurent and the cabinet. For the first time, television cameras will be used inside the Parliament buildings for the President's speech. Canadian Broadcasting Corp. will carry the telecast on its Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto stations and feed it into U. S. networks. Radio also will carry the President's speech.

In Washington last May, St. Laurent urged the United States to accept leadership in fighting depression and communism by reducing trade barriers and encouraging imports from dollar-short countries.

St. Laurent has made clear, too, that Canada wants to know exactly where it stands in American trade policy. In a speech before an international gathering of mayors at Montreal in September, he said in the presence of U. S. Ambassador R. Douglas Stuart:

"We don't want to build up an industry to supply a particular need and then have the market suddenly cut off without warning. And we don't want either to see the kind of ill-will develop which that kind of action inevitably creates."

Canada and the United States are each other's best customers. Trade between the two countries is the largest in the world. But traditionally Canada ends up with a deficit—she buys more from the United States than she sells there.

Gordon Dean to Wed Maryland Socialite

WASHINGTON—(UPI) The engagement of Gordon Dean, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, to Miss Mary Benton Gore, socialite daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Grady Gore of Potomac, Md., was announced Saturday night.

Dean, who resigned as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission earlier this year, is now affiliated with the New York investment banking firm of Lehman Brothers. His previous marriage recently ended in divorce.

Presumably the intercepting plane and ships were Chinese Nationalists.

The ship's officers, Wheelock, Marden and Co., Ltd., of Hong Kong, refused comment, saying: "Men's lives are at stake and we issue no statement to the press on our ship."

The firm has been criticized in the United States for dealing with Communist China. The company contends its ships carry non-military cargo.

Rebel Mint

By Ellen Saunders

BEFORE YOU THROW AWAY the last of those Mexican coins you picked up on your vacation trip below the border, take a second look. You just might have one of the only coins in the world which have inscribed on them a death threat to an individual.

Sol Alexander, of 349 E. 53rd St., whose 16-year-old hobby of coin collecting has led to much research in the field, says that "the death threat coin," which was struck only in the one-peso value, carries the inscription, "Muera Huerta" (death to Huerta). It was minted by followers of the famed revolutionary leader, Francisco Villa, in 1913-1914 when Huerta was President of Mexico.

Mexican coinage dates back to 1536 when Charles the First of Spain ordered the first mint in the Western Hemisphere to be built in Mexico City—257 years before the United States Mint was opened in Philadelphia.

Although Alexander's coin collection is representative of each era in Mexican history since 1536, his greatest interest is in coinage of the Mexican Revolutionary period, 1913 to 1917. These were the years when many rebel leaders followed the example of Francisco Villa in ordering their followers to coin their own money.

Much of Alexander's knowledge of this exciting period has been acquired through visits to Parral, Mexico, the site of Villa's headquarters on many occasions. There he has interviewed the elderly Senor Rocha, newspaper editor, and lifelong friend of Villa. It was Senor Rocha who taught Villa to read after the latter had become a general.

According to Alexander, some of the 180 different coins minted during this period were unknown until a few years ago when, at a Mexico City auction, unused copper, brass and aluminum 5 and 10-centavos turned up.

A FEW OF THE COINS, such as the oblong-shaped 1-centavo piece, have already become collectors' items. Then there is the very rare 60-peso coin which bears the effigy of Benito Juarez. Early in 1915 the government of the State of Oaxaca (birthplace of Benito Juarez) had a disagreement with the central government. When Carranza, then President of Mexico, sent a contingent to quell the rebels, Gov. Canesco and his troops fled to the hills. Later they routed the Federal Army, and under the leadership of Gov. Jose Ines Davila declared themselves the Free and Independent State of Oaxaca, and proceeded to make their own money. For a year they successfully eluded the enemy. Then, as they were busily engaged in minting the 60-peso coin, the alarm sounded the approach of the Federalist army. The rebels scattered, leaving behind 21 coins which are now very highly prized.

Encouragement for Alexander to continue his absorbing hobby was received this year when he was accepted for membership in La Sociedad Numismatica de Mexico (The Numismatic Society of Mexico).

South Pacific Cruise

tians will reveal breath-taking scenic beauty in the bushlands around Katoomba and the nature of Australia's coastal lands.

A brief call will be made at historic Guadalcanal, famous in World War II history and once again peaceful and serene in tropic beauty. Next comes a day at Port Moresby, outlet for the rich gold and rubber of the New Guinea interior. Fierce-looking natives will perform Devil and Cassowary dances, a reminder that headhunters still inhabit the wilds. From Port Moresby, the Caronia will head for Indonesia and beautiful Bali. The ship will anchor at Padang Bay with time to explore and then dine at the famous Bali Hotel.

SINGAPORE, fascinating Oriental city well named the Crossroads of the East, intrigues the visitor with its colorful markets and babble of tongues, its busy collection of ships from every port. Cocktails at the famous Raffles Hotel is a "must" here. Manila, another vital metropolis in the East, shows its Spanish background and many points of wartime fame.

With the arrival of the Caronia in Kobe, a thrilling week of exploring Japan begins. The whole countryside, a charming blend of the Old World and modern democratic outlook, will be at its best at this time of the year, when early spring brings the cherry trees into bloom. Then there will be many places to explore at Kyoto, Yokohama, Nara and other points.

On leaving Japan, the Caronia will visit the Hawaiian Islands, land of carefree living.

Calls at Long Beach and Acapulco, famous Mexican resort, follow. From the "manana" atmosphere of Old Mexico, the Caronia will again transit the Canal after completing her circuit of the Pacific, and head back to a New York spring.

Tomorrow's Men

RECENTLY we saw a television drama which emphasized the theme, "Don't elevate the individual above the group."

The title of the drama was "Tomorrow's Men."

It was a football story. Between title and theme the thought was conveyed that tomorrow's men ideally should be men who function in the group like automata, selfless, without identity and without any concern for personal glory.

Perhaps a better title would have been "Tomorrow's Sheep."

A couple of days later we saw another drama—a real football game, in which a quarterback on one of the teams completely dominated the picture. He called the signals, he passed, he carried the ball, he kicked, and he made most of the touchdowns. Obviously the coach's instructions to his team was to elevate this particular player above the group—because this player happened to have some individual talents not possessed by others in his group. The result was that the entire group made a better impression than it would have made otherwise.

The spirit of individualism has always been strong in this country. Artist Clyde Winslow's Americanism Week cartoon on the front page of this paper today is a good representation of the emphasis we have placed on the individual person.

Nobody denies the necessity of unity and co-operation. But it is dangerous to assume that unity and co-operation preclude personal triumphs. It would be dangerous to assume that there is no room for heresy and strong personal ambitions.

When a child comes home from school and places a report card in our hands, we think it important for that report card to tell us how the child is progressing in individual initiative, as well as in his "adjustment to the group."

Each man has the chore of adjusting to his own personality, talents, intelligence, and conscience as well as to the group. And so often accomplishment and progress depend on the group adjusting to the individual. Tomorrow's men, in our opinion, should be learning today both humility and the courage to stand alone.

A Democratic Trend

THE REPUBLICANS took quite a bumping in various sections of the country last Tuesday. The election trend was unmistakably Democratic.

The election of a Democrat as mayor of New York City was a foregone conclusion. Other than during the LaGuardia coalition, no Republican has served in this capacity in more than a generation.

The news that a Democrat will again be the next governor of Virginia certainly was no surprise.

In New Jersey, the Democrats won the gubernatorial race on the crime and corruption issue, aided by the Republican candidate's friendship for a convicted labor extortor.

So we see nothing of national significance in these three Democratic victories. Other than the ascendancy of a New Deal and a Fair Deal leadership of the party in New York state with Mayor-elect Robert F. Wagner Jr., Averell Harriman and Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the saddle.

Still, there was a Democratic trend. It was shown in the capture of a Congressional seat in New Jersey. This district had never before been represented by a Democrat.

The trend was obvious throughout the industrialized Middle West where numerous Democratic candidates for local offices overturned Republican rule.

The Democrats have won all seven special contests for the House of Representatives since the Eisenhower administration came into power.

WHAT HAPPENED?

What is the explanation? Is it true, as stated by Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, that the people voted for the Republican in 1952 and they don't feel they have got it? Is Sen. Joseph McCarthy right in saying: "If the Republicans continue ducking issues, we will take a beating again in future elections?" Do you agree with Rep. Daniel Reed, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, that the Republicans have failed to carry out campaign promises on reducing taxes, or with Rep. Noah Mason of Illinois who commented: "We didn't do what we said we would do?"

While there may be a modicum of truth in these observations, they tend to rationalize the views of the Republican right wing. The people are not particularly excited because the excess profits tax was extended six months. They are willing to wait until next year for reductions on personal income taxes. No one has organized a march on Washington because the budget is still unbalanced.

To them, the big issue is simply good times versus a depression.

It would be a serious error to conclude that the people have lost confidence in President Eisenhower. The bulk of his mail is overwhelmingly favorable. The polls indicate that his popularity is still extremely high.

But the people are watching. They like strong political leaders who push aggressively toward definite goals. The record of Eisenhower's first ten months in office, excellent

Growing Flirtation Between Japan, Red China Worries American Leaders

WASHINGTON—It hasn't hit the headlines, but a Japanese businessmen's delegation slipped over to Peking, China, recently and signed a trade agreement with the Chinese Reds.

This highlights a significant situation which has U.S. officials worried—namely, a growing flirtation between Japan and Communist China. It has been going on for some time, and U.S. officials fear that the Japanese government is caught in a difficult economic pinch, may be forced to approve the recent trade agreement.

What Japan and the United States are up against are the conflicting facts that:

1. The United States wants Japan to be the bastion against communism in the Far East.

2. Japan's chief economic future lies with the Chinese mainland just a few miles away.

3. Congress, more and more economy-minded, is demanding that the United States cut off economic aid to Japan. Simultaneously, tariff barriers prevent Japanese trade with the United States.

Japan's position in relation to Red China is pretty much the same as that of Cuba's. If the American sugar market were cut off from Cuba, that country would go bankrupt overnight. Likewise, Japan built up a heavy trade with China before Pearl Harbor, and, though it has been cut off in recent years, Japan has been kept going by American subsidies and the Korean war.

There, perhaps, some before Pearl Harbor when the "silk express" rumbled from Seattle to New York bearing the highest speed priority of any train and the most precious traffic in the U. S. A.—Japanese silk. But rayon, nylon and other artificial fabrics have seriously curtailed this trade.

Meanwhile, Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has proposed a blockade of the China coast if the Reds kick over the traces in Korea. This, of course, would run completely counter to Japan's silent but growing trade with the Chinese mainland.

DULLES BOILS

Though the Eisenhower administration is having plenty of trouble on the domestic front, things are gradually shaking down inside the department which has most to do with formulating foreign policy. In brief, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is getting better coordinated.

His subordinates now have some idea of what he is doing. When "Foster," as Ike calls him at cabinet meetings, first took over, he had the habit of making statements and decisions which his highest-level advisers knew nothing about.

They had to read about them in the morning papers. However, Dulles' staff meetings are now working admirably. Today not only top-level aides know what he is doing, but second and third-level assistants also are kept reasonably well informed.

In contrast, Dulles is boiling mad at the way Secretary of Air Talbot shot off in Spain about atomic bombs being stored in that controversial country. For a long time the United States wouldn't send A-bombs to England; still hasn't sent any complete bombs to France. So you can imagine the diplomatic jam Dulles found himself in when the Secretary of Air blandly announced that atomic bombs would be stored in a dictatorship country which both England and France asked us not to equip with air bases, and which will not even permit the American flag to be flown over those bases.

Lobbyist Ames immediately confronted the Negro and demanded to know what he was doing. "I'm a government messenger, sir," confessed the bewildered Negro. It also developed that the messenger was wheeling his eggs around in a government cart that wasn't otherwise in use. Lobbyist Ames promptly saw in this a threat to free enterprise, and marched over to see Ray Ward, Chief Investigator for the House Investigating Committee.

"Mr. Ward, I realize you have a big job on your hands but right here in this government building, out on a government floor, using a government vehicle, in a building lighted and air-conditioned by the government, there is a government employee selling fresh eggs to the clerks and stenographers in these various offices."

Mr. Ward failed for a minute to grasp the significance of this and replied uncomprehendingly: "But he only sells eggs and a few fresh chickens now and then."

However, the hired lobbyist of the grocery stores set Mr. Ward straight.

"Mr. Ward, there are over 300 district grocery stores, scores of chain stores, and several independent supermarkets right here in Washington and who also sell fresh eggs and chickens. It seems absolutely weird this very office would condone such a thing," Ames told his clients he said.

"Well, I'll be darned," Ames quotes Mr. Ward as replying, the light at last dawning. "Right under our nose, and we never even realized it. Well, I'll be darned!"

The President didn't hesitate to answer another question as to whether, having lost skirmishes, he intended "to win the war." This obvious reference to future Congressional elections drew from the President the earnest statement that he never went into a war to lose one.

The use of such words as progressive and forward-looking indicate that the President has definite ideas as to the kind of a legislative and executive program the country expects from him. But it is clear he isn't going to fall for the strategy of the New Dealers and Fair Dealers who are constantly trying to get him to enter into a knockdown, drag-out fight with the members of his own party.

PIOUS ADVICE

This is usually cloaked with the pious advice that Mr. Eisenhower should assert "leadership." But a President with both the House and the Senate almost evenly divided in party strength doesn't pick fights with his own party and split it still further. If he is tactful—and Mr. Eisenhower certainly is inherently a conciliator rather than a challenger—he will try to persuade his party following to adopt measures that are the result of common counsel and mutual concession.

Dwight Eisenhower is learning all the time something about politics, but he has already learned one important lesson—that the opposition party hasn't any friendly interest in keeping Republicans harmonious but wants to divide them into splinter camps.

MALCOLM EPLEY

Demos Wait for Signs of Promise

THE OUTCOME of Nov. 10's special election contests, particularly the Congressional race in the 24th District of Los Angeles County, may sharply influence the shape of things to come in the 1954 political campaigns in California.

Potential candidates in both major parties will be watching the returns from the 24th as an indication of popular sentiment: that will help them make up their minds whether they want to take a whirl at office seeking next year.

Among Democrats, in particular, there seems to be considerable uncertainty and reluctance, despite the bold talk that Earl Warren's leave taking from California had opened new vistas of promise for the Bourbons.

No outstanding Democrat has come forth yet with a definite declaration for the governorship, or for United States Senator, whereas the incumbent Republicans, Gov. Goodwin Knight and Sen. Tom Kuchel, are getting in some rather powerful licks in furthering ambitions to go right on in both offices.

Knight, in particular, has been making hay while the Democrats are thinking things over. The political columnist of the Sacramento Bee, which has Fair Dealish tendencies, this week sounded a warning on exactly that point. The columnist said that there is a "growing feeling in political circles that the Democrats had better get going with a more active brand of 1954 campaigning preparations if they hope to head off Knight." He added that the Demos are "up against an apparently indefatigable campaigner whose energetic efforts indicate they had better not dally with the start of their own campaigning to the point of dangerous procrastination."

It appears that Democrats who might run for governor have been waiting to see what the public reaction to Knight as governor may be and for other evidences of the way the political wind is blowing. So far, Knight seems to have been doing all right. "Other evidences" may be gleaned out of the special vote in the 24th District Tuesday.

If that should develop a Democratic sweep, it's highly possible some Democrat hopefuls will come out of the brush. If it goes the other way, the Democratic picture may remain clouded, while Republicans already campaigning will be fired up to renewed efforts and other Republicans will be encouraged to declare themselves.

It may be that the vote in the 24th may not be sufficiently conclusive to produce such results. Two strong Republicans and one strong Democrat are running there; Republican candidates may get more votes but the Democrat may be elected. But even that sort of a Democratic victory would undoubtedly help some Democrats to make up their minds.

So that's another reason why the election in the 24th is getting so much attention.

In addition, we call upon Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to explain exactly why he is now taking an attitude directly opposite to that of his speech in Louisville, Kentucky, on April 12, 1952, and is now both opposing the Bricker Amendment and supporting a substitute amendment that intensifies the present danger.

not change in 10 months what has been built up in 22 years. Furthermore, Mr. Lewis might remember that over 145,000 federal workers have been dropped. The cost of living has increased less than two per cent in the last year compared with the 14 per cent it increased in the preceding three years and 91 per cent it has increased since 1940.

It would be a lot better for Mr. Lewis and all the other weak-kneed supporters of the President to point out that the greatest thing that has occurred in this country under Eisenhower is the bringing of honesty and dignity into government. The President has spent a hectic 10 months getting the shooting stopped in Korea, striving to find a program for the farm problem and appointing a new Labor Secretary after the AFL leader walked out on him. He has made it a policy to try and get public affairs back into the hands of the states rather than having them dominated by the federal government.

When Congress meets in January, his long-planned program will be presented. His first budget will be presented before July. None of these plans may please the pressure groups, and the party may lose control of Congress next year. But the only hope it has of holding control is the popularity of President Eisenhower. It is stupid for Republicans to tear that popularity down by demanding a lot of drastic changes only desired by reactionary Republicans who refuse to recognize that times have changed during the past quarter of a century.

It is very probably true, as has been said, that Eisenhower has no desire to run again. It appears more evident that his one objective is to try and bring the American system back on a solid foundation from which it has strayed during these hectic years. That calls for carefully keeping the good while discarding the bad features. Winston Churchill has not tried to put the toothpaste back in the tube. He has stopped the trend toward socialism in England for the time by rolling with the punches. That is what Eisenhower is doing. It may not work out for the benefit of the Republican Party next year. But it has a lot more chance than would the wild demands for housecleaning, beyond what has occurred, as demanded by Lewis and a lot more of the reactionaries who can see no good in anything that occurred in the past.

Eisenhower is one man the people trust, and it is a disservice to him and the country not to give him a chance to try out the planned campaign he has promised to reveal when Congress meets. We have radicals to the right as well as to the left. The people are still supporting Eisenhower, who is trying to find a middle ground. There is little hope from either of the extremes. He may lose the war as well as the skirmishes. But his leadership promises more than anything offered by the fair-weather friends who run for cover when the going gets tough—L.A.C.

TOWN MEETING

Bricker Issue

TO THE EDITOR:

The following resolution was passed at the 12th annual Convention of the Council of Christian Churches in Los Angeles:

The United States of America is founded upon the concept that human rights are an inalienable gift of God, not an arbitrary grant of government. Every loyal American will automatically do anything and everything necessary to safeguard and preserve this concept.

However, since the advent of the United Nations, a relatively small body of men now popularly referred to as internationalists is endeavoring to use advantage of a possible loophole found in Article VI of our Constitution, which makes treaties the supreme law of the land, by proposing as treaties certain laws, statutes, covenants and conventions that apply to individual American citizens on the domestic level, rather than to Government on the political level.

Only an amendment to the United States Constitution can eliminate this present danger to our nation. Therefore, the Twelfth Annual Convention of the American Council of Christian Churches, meeting in Los Angeles on October 29, 1953, declares itself as a body in favor of the adoption of the Bricker Amendment immediately upon the reconvening of the 83rd Congress, and its speedy referral to the people of the States.

In addition, we call upon Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to explain exactly why he is now taking an attitude directly opposite to that of his speech in Louisville, Kentucky, on April 12, 1952, and is now both opposing the Bricker Amendment and supporting a substitute amendment that intensifies the present danger.

TO THE EDITOR:

Ruth Sherry's letter regarding Franco in last Sunday's paper, even with your excellent comment, cannot go unchanged.

Would Mrs. Sherry spell out her reasons for making the statement: "If the people of Spain were to receive any benefit . . . but as long as France is at the helm there is little justification for such a hope?"

My wife and I have just returned from a visit to Spain, and the outstanding memory of the trip is the light-hearted cheer and laughter we found everywhere. These people are not groaning under Franco's heel. They are grateful to him for pulling the country out of the horrors of the civil war and are willing to endure the hardships he imposes in the way of restriction of currency manipulation and import of foreign goods, to get the country back on its feet again . . .

The Communists in England and the partisans in the U. S. have kept up an unending barrage against him, representing his overthrow of the Communists. Even a fraction of the endless billions that have been poured down rat-holes in England and France would have produced solid benefits to the Spanish people and to us.

I make these statements from my own observations in Spain.

He Has Played 10,000 Recitals

By Vera Williams

GENE DRISKILL has played 10,000 recitals.

Dean of the Long Beach Chapter of the American Guild of Organists and organist at Mottell's Mortuary, he plays for 1500 funerals a year, averaging 20 minutes of music for each service besides playing for soloists. Sometimes he plays for 10 services in one day.

The 15 minutes which precede the formal service become to him a recital and he prepares for it as though it was a set program played before a great paid audience. An article about Driskill, written by Ralph Freese, singer, appeared recently in "The Etude."

Driskill came to Mottell's with a Bachelor of Music (organ major) from Wichita University and a Bachelor of Arts degree from Friends University, both in Wichita, Kan. After a short career of teaching public school music, he became a chaplain's assistant in World War II.

The finest tribute he receives is when some person, in deep sorrow, says to him, "Your playing has brought hope and comfort to me. . . . Thank you."

"The mortuary musician holds a unique place in the musical field," says Driskill. "The position brings both a responsibility and a challenge. The responsibility is that of creating the mood for the service. The challenge is to provide accurate accompaniments for a great variety of soloists. The organist creates moods. He changes lives when he plays with this understanding.

"RECITALS must be built along definite lines, piece by piece, always looking to that dramatic moment when the organist will stop and the minister or officiant will take over.

"I can think of little music that is utterly unfit or should not be used as a memorial service if it is a request of the family. Every piece of music requested has some definite, vivid meaning to those who will hear it and it will recall to them pleasant and loved memories.

"A mortuary organist must play always to give hope, comfort and courage to the family and to the friends who come to the service. The music must create the atmosphere of certainty of the future, of the eternal love of God."

LIBERTY BARGE AT ALHAMBRA

World Beauty Queen to Ride L. B. Float

By VERA WILLIAMS

Armistice Day has not come yet, and Thanksgiving and Christmas still are quite a way around the corner—but the Long Beach float in the Tournament of Roses is being "born" in a drafty hangar in Alhambra.

The Long Beach float will be "Liberty—the Heritage of America," named for "The Heritage of America" by Henry Steele Commager and Allan Nevins. Theme of the parade on New Year's Day in Pasadena will be "Famous Books in Flowers." Sixty floats will be entered.

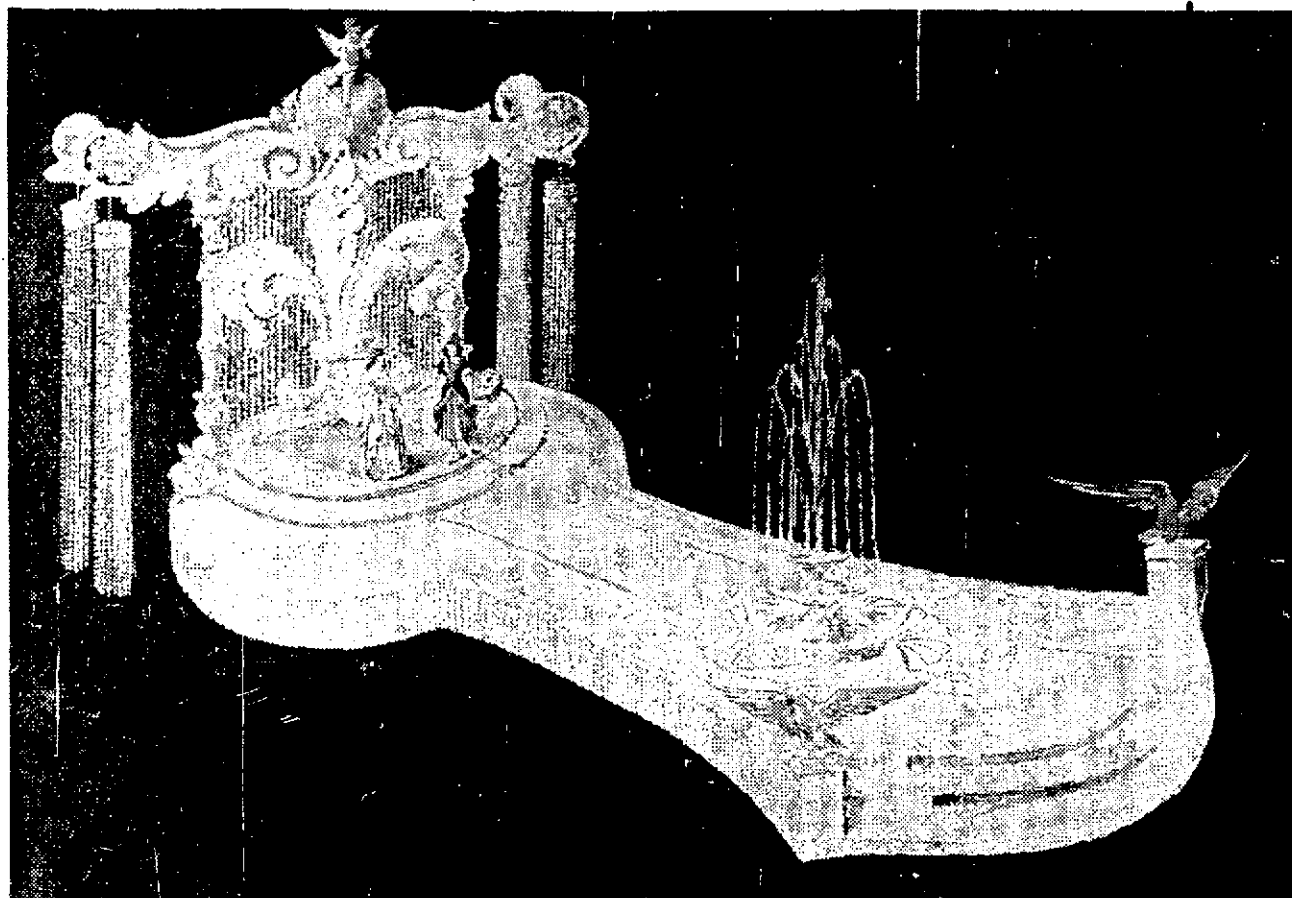

Riding on the Long Beach float will be Christiane Martel, Miss France, who was crowned Miss Universe, and Myrna Hansen, Miss Illinois, who was crowned Miss United States in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant here last summer. Both girls are under long-term contracts with Universal-International.

On the float, Miss Universe will be presenting Miss United States with the "deed" to the Statue of Liberty, which was given to this country by France. Stressing France's part in America's heritage, background of the float will be the French fleur de lis, topped by a French scroll, and the world with Cupid reading a book. In the foreground will be a floral fountain and two great American eagles.

205,000 BLOSSOMS

Mrs. Isabella Coleman of Altadena, who has designed many of Long Beach's prize-winning floats and who this year will celebrate her 50th anniversary of decorating carriages and floats for the Tournament, designed and will build the Long Beach float. It will have 5000 roses, 350 cattleya orchids and something like 200,000 chrysanthemums.

For many years Long Beach floats have rated high in the Tournament of Roses. Since the Tournament was resumed after World War II this city has won: 1946, sweepstakes; 1947, first prize; 1948, first prize; 1949, sweepstakes; 1950, sweepstakes; 1951, president's trophy; 1952, theme prize; 1953, theme prize. It also is recalled that Long Beach took the sweepstakes in 1934, the year of the big New Year rain. Before the war, it took the theme prize so many times it was considered almost traditional.

"LIBERTY—THE HERITAGE OF AMERICA" will be the name given Long Beach's float in the 1954 Tournament of Roses. This is a sketch of the float, designed by Mrs. Isabella Coleman of Altadena. Against a background of the French fleur de lis,

This year the Long Beach float will have a bright new yellow chassis, which Mrs. Coleman says will be the best chassis in the parade. The steel framework for the float now is being welded on the chassis in a hangar at the Alhambra airport. Ed Pinney is the welder, with Everett Fisch foreman of the Long Beach float, and Mrs. Coleman kibitzing even the welding.

HOT GLUE

The night before the parade, the crew under Mrs. Coleman's direction will fasten on the flowers with hot glue.

Why hot glue?

It cools rapidly (it usually is chilly on New Year's eve, if you remember); it sticks better than cold glue, and the flowers "drink" the moisture and the glucose from the glue and stay fresh longer.

Floats must be at the assembly grounds before 7 o'clock on New Year's morning because that is when the photographers get there.

SABOTAGE?

What about sabotage? "There are whispers of it every year," says Mrs. Coleman. "We're not supposed to talk about it. When it happens, we mark it up to mischief, not a actual sabotage.... Sometimes youngsters drop flower petals into the gas tanks, sometimes they stuff papers up the exhaust pipes, sometimes they loosen bolts on the wheels. Floats are inspected periodically all night, but sometimes things happen that we don't know about until the parade starts."

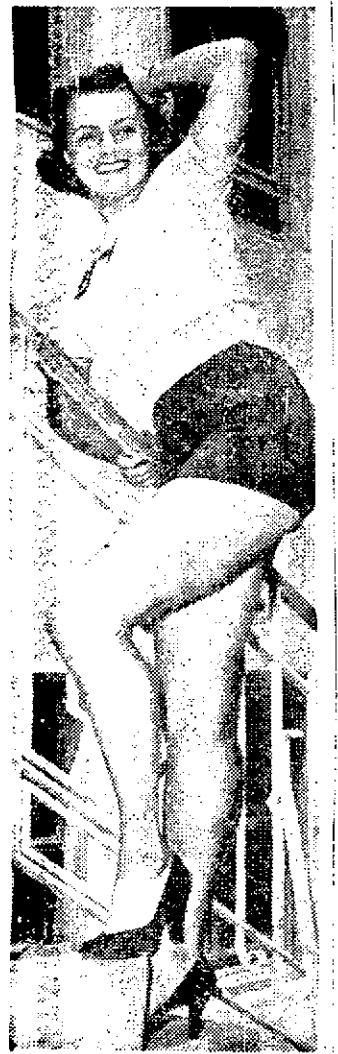

At her home, 2669 Midlothian Dr., Altadena, Mrs. Coleman has a formidable array of press books, which in themselves are a history of the Tournament of Roses. When she was a little

Prizes Listed in Art Show

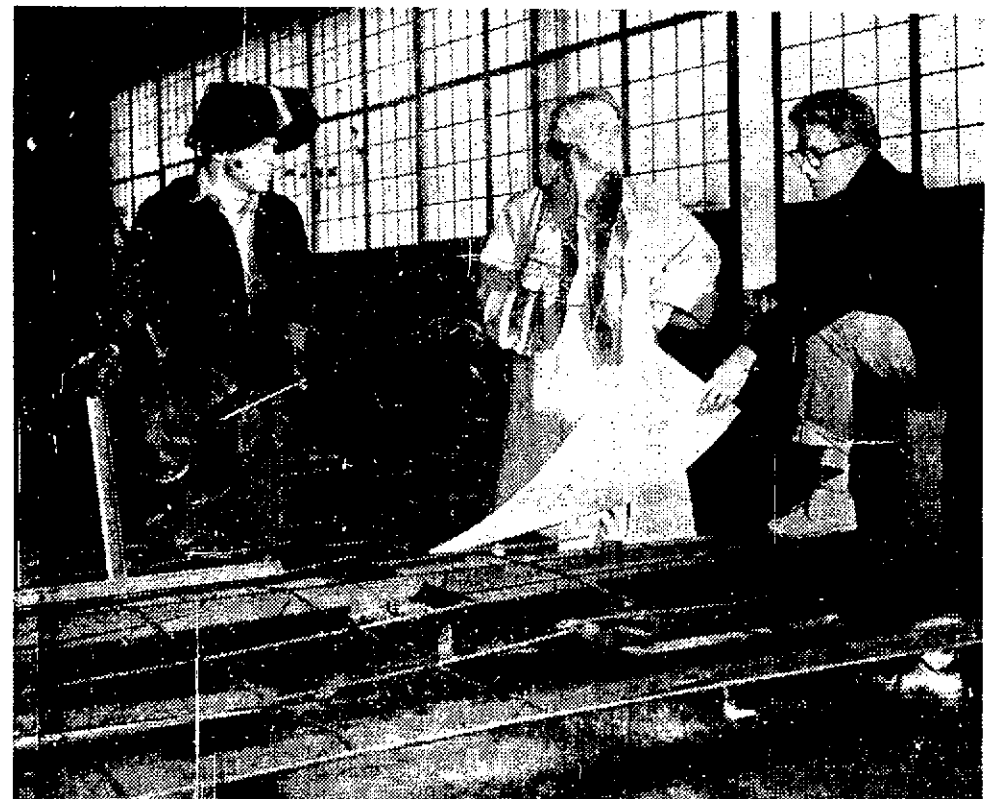

An abstract and a sailing picture took top prizes in the fall exhibition of the Long Beach Art Association which opens with a tea from 2 to 4 p. m. today in Pacific Coast Club. The more than 30 paintings will remain in the club through Nov. 29.

Oil awards are: Leta Hiles, "Escape," first; Christian Gronfeldt, "Tranquility," second; Ben Messick, "Pete the Pelican," third; Enola Nicholson, "Twilight," first honorable mention; Grace Dimmick, "Portuguese Bend," second honorable mention.

Water color awards: Robert Klassen, "Sails," first; Jane Rohrer, "Playing by the Sea," second; Lucille Brown Greene, "Together Alone," third; Patricia Bartell, "Rancho Del Lago," first honorable mention; Moise Fair, "Presents from Grandma," second honorable mention.

QUEENS of the Long Beach float in the Tournament of Roses will be Miss Universe, Christiane Martel of France, pictured above, and Myrna Hansen, Miss United States. They'll depict France's gift of the Statue of Liberty to this nation.

IN ALHAMBRA HANGAR, Isabella Coleman, who has designed many Long Beach winning floats in the Tournament of Roses, confers with Ed Pinney, welder, left, and Everett Fisch, foreman, over the chassis upon which the Long Beach float will rise.—(Staff Photos by Joe Risinger.)

FIFTY YEARS OF HISTORY is told in this picture which Isabella Coleman holds in her hands. It is the first carriage she decorated—Jan. 1, 1904—for the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena.

College Student Numbers Rise

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) The 1953 fall enrollment of 2,215,000. Office of Education reported to-day that college and university enrollments have increased for the second consecutive year.

Acting Education Commissioner Rall I. Grigsby said re-enrollment was due to favorable economic conditions, educational benefits for war veterans, and student draft deferment policies.

McLain Speaks Here Monday

George McLain, chairman of the California and National Institutes of Social Welfare and sponsor of a movement for a $100 a month California pension, will speak at Town Hall at 1 p. m. Monday.

Skin Divers' Luau Today at San Pedro

Featuring underwater competition, a safety demonstration, bathing suit cavalcade and trophy awards, the California Council of Skin Diving Clubs will sponsor its California Luau today on Cabrillo Beach, San Pedro.

Opening event on the program will be underwater competition off the breakwater at 11 a. m. for awards to be given in the afternoon.

Following will be a safety demonstration and equipment-handling exhibition at 11:30 a. m.; bathing-suit display at noon, awards at 12:30 and 2 p. m., barbecue dinner at 2:30, then dancing to the Five Aces Dance Band.

Diving equipment will be displayed in booths all day. Underwater motion pictures, by Dr. N. E. Mathison, of the Long Beach Neptunes, will be shown. The affair will end at 6 p. m.

Hoover Names Hotel Manager to Study Group

WASHINGTON—(U.P.) Former President Herbert Hoover Saturday announced the appointment of Joseph P. Binns to head a government reorganization task force to study subcommittee services provided by federal departments and agencies.

Binns is managing director of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York and vice president in charge of the Hilton Hotels Corp.

Hoover said in a statement that Binns will head a group of experts in food programs, mass food preparations and service, warehousing, laundry operation and allied fields. They will study installations operated by the military services, Veterans Administration, Public Health Service and other agencies.

Burglar Steals $41 as Woman Slumbers

Alice Gorbault, 32, who rented her apartment at 437 E. works nights as a waitress, admitted that she has learned to be a heavy daytime sleeper. While she was snoozing Saturday afternoon someone entered her apartment and stole $41. She discovered the loss when her alarm awakened her in time to go to work.

Soviets Fete Bolshevik Anniversary, U.S. Envoy Tells Them Formula for Peace

(Compiled from AP and U.P.) MOSCOW—The Russians cut their military show Saturday in the Red Square celebration of the 36th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution and emphasized the civilian demonstration. U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen promptly called their hand.

"There is a very simple formula for peace," Bohlen told international Communist representatives at a reception. "The country which first crosses the border of another country with armed force is the guilty country."

The Soviet military display was restricted to 25 minutes. But Defense Minister Nikolai Bulganin accused the United States of warlike aims and warned that Russia had grown stronger.

Bohlen proposed his formula in response to an official Russian toast at a reception Saturday night. He was seated at a table with representatives of the Western powers, the Soviet Union, East Germany and Communist China. Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov gave the first toast "to those who became united around this table." Ranged around it were Bohlen, seated next to Walter Ulbricht, Communist party chief of East Germany; the Chinese Communist Ambassador, Chang Wen-Tien; the British and French ambassadors, and several members of the Soviet Communist Party Presidium.

Diplomatic observers said it was one of the biggest foreign ministry receptions since before the war. The gathering of the diplomats and Soviet leaders at a separate table caused excited comment, but diplomats declined to guess whether the gathering had been arranged by design.

Earlier, Bulganin, resplendent in his beamed, gold-encrusted marshal's uniform, spoke to cheering millions jammed into Red Square to watch a four-hour parade led by goose-stepping Soviet marshals, generals and admirals.

Smartly-uniformed security troops stood shoulder to shoulder around the square in front of the Kremlin. The rest of Moscow was studded with police lines. Correspondents had to show their invitations to Red Square a half dozen times before reaching the press area.

The parade that followed Bulganin's speech included 1,000,000 gaily-clad Muscovite workers, athletes, students and scientists. The civilians carried banners bearing Red slogans and huge portraits of Lenin, Stalin and Soviet and satellite leaders.

Twin-engine jet bombers and MIG fighter planes rocketed overhead in tight formations of threes. But the parade lacked the rags and cavalry prominent in previous anniversary celebrations.

Bulganin spoke to the crowd from a reviewing stand in front of the white marble tomb of Lenin and Stalin. Standing above the tomb behind him were Premier Georgi Malenkov, Molotov and other Soviet civil dignitaries.

Modern Dental Plates

Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved techniques" used in the construction of dental plates, Dental Science has followed a "progressive" path that resulted in dental plates more natural in appearance, better fitting and more comfortable to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. Ask to see samples of modern dental plates, upper, lowers and partials. GOOD dental plates need not be expensive. THE COST IS SMALL.

Delicious Yam Rolls

By Mildred K. Flanary

(Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor)

WE TRANSPOSED Virginia Weldon Kelly from her home at Washington, D. C., to the penthouse atop the Independent-Press-Telegram Building for the picture that accompanies this article, complete with her inimitable graciousness, charm and southern hospitality.

Mrs. Kelly is from the "Saa-outh," you know, and when she finds a stolen moment in her busy life covering the Washington news front for the Independent-Press-Telegram, she'll invariably call a few friends for an informal evening at home, which she loves. Quite naturally, her piece de resistance very often has a distinctly Southern attitude such as yam rolls, shrimp bisque, old-fashioned batterbread, or perhaps a tipsy dessert. Her recipe for yam rolls is featured elsewhere on the page. Some others are given below:

Shrimp Bisque

- 1 cup cooked or canned shrimp
- 1 quart rich milk
- 1 tablespoon onion (finely grated)
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon flour
- Remove black veins from

Virginia Weldon Kelly's Yam Rolls:

- ½ yeast cake
- ¼ cup lukewarm water
- ¼ cup nonfat dry milk
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup water
- 2 tablespoons melted shortening
- ¾ cup sieved cooked yams
- 2½ cups (about) flour

Soften yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Sift nonfat dry milk, sugar and salt into a large mixing bowl. Gradually add ½ cup water. Stir in yeast, melted fat and potatoes. Add enough flour to make a dough which can be easily handled. Turn onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and velvety. Place in a greased bowl; brush top with butter. Cover and allow to rise until dough has doubled in bulk (about 2 hours). Knead slightly on lightly floured board. Shape into rolls. Place rolls on a greased baking sheet or in greased muffin tins. Cover and allow to rise until dough has doubled in bulk (about 2 hours). Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 18 minutes or until brown. Makes 1½ dozen rolls.

The south is famed for its cookery and its hospitality, two factors that go hand-in-hand, and Virginia Weldon Kelly (above) is an exponent of them both.

shrimp and chop shrimp as finely as possible. Mix butter and flour and stir slowly into heated milk. Use double boiler to guard against scorching. Add onion, salt, pepper and shrimp. Heat carefully and serve with a bit of chopped parsley on top. Serves four or five.

Chicken a la Maryland

- 1 chicken cut for frying
- Flour
- Salt and pepper
- ¼ cup pure lard
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 cup cream
- Wash pieces of chicken in salt-

Kitchen Tip:

Virginia Kelly's Kitchen Tip: Clean shrimp easily by using a toothpick to remove the black strip down the center of the back. Work with shrimp under cold running water.

"Where You Always Buy With Confidence"

WHAT QUALITY MEANS TO YOU

Our emphasis is always on quality. We know, from our long experience, that you cannot obtain satisfactory quality at less than $9.95 a square yard, even on a sale basis.

Better quality is a better investment — especially since the price is only slightly higher. In fact, it is actually cheaper in the long run because the carpet wears longer and looks better all that time. No one can undersell us on the qualities we offer!

Bixby Knolls Carpet Company is proving that quality and good taste need not be expensive. Come in, see why this is the time to compare and buy!

OUR POLICY:

- 1—Fair dealings and honest values.
- 2—Well-known national brands, such as Lees, Alex. Smith, Masland, etc.
- 3—Only perfect qualities—no seconds or imperfects.
- 4—Double guarantees on every product we sell.
- 5—Carefully supervised installation.
- 6—Competitive prices always. We will not knowingly be undersold.
- 7—Sincere advice on proper carpet selection and proper lay-out of the work, backed by a lifetime of experience in this field.

Pre-Election Violence Flares in Philippines

MANILA (Sunday)—(AP). Pre-election violence flared in the Philippines Saturday night as the tension-wracked islands got set for Tuesday's bitterly contested presidential election.

Philippine News Service reported a police chief in Molave town, near Zamboanga in the southern Philippines was shot to death a few hours after he was accused by opposition Nacionalistas of electioneering for the administration Liberal party. Further details were not immediately given.

Army units, battle-tested in Korea, went on the alert in Pangasinan province, north of Manila against possible disorders by the Communist-directed Hukbs. The situation was tense in this area, noted as a hotbed of Red activity and site of the sprawling U. S. 13th Air Force headquarters.

Constabulary (national police) troops charged with policing the election, moved from marshalling areas to remote provinces tabbed for possible trouble.

President Elpidio Quirino, seeking re-election, moved on a whistle-stop tour through sun-baked northern and central Luzon.

The Nacionalista - Democratic coalition candidate, the former defense secretary Ramon Mag-saysay, cut short a "commando raid" campaign tour in central Luzon for an emergency conference Saturday night in Manila with party leaders.

The meeting was called after Nacionalista Sen. Manuel C. Briones advised coalition headquarters the situation on explosive Cebu island was "nearing the crisis stage."

Two hundred ROTC cadets were en route from Manila to Cotabato province on northern Mindanao island to observe the elections voluntarily. They were armed with pencils and paper. The ROTC helped police the 1951 elections, but no funds were available to employ them this year.

Besides electing a president, the 5,600,000 registered voters will pick eight senators and 102 members of the House of Representatives.

Saltonstall Declares U.S. Must Investigate Possibility of A-Powered Merchant Ships

NEW YORK—(AP). Sen. Leverett Saltonstall said Saturday that the United States must look immediately into the possibility of building atom-powered merchant ships.

The Massachusetts Republican, who is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he was "very much concerned" that this country keeps its merchant fleet up-to-date.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a dinner of the Robert L. Hague Merchant Marine Industries Post of the American Legion, the Senator noted that the Navy is building two atomic submarines.

"It seems not only logical, but necessary, with all this talk of an atomic age that we immediately investigate the possibility of atomic propulsion for merchant ships," Saltonstall said in the speech scheduled to be read by Sumner G. Whittier, lieutenant governor of Massachusetts. He said that if this country can build atomic-powered ships it seems "reasonable" to believe that others can too.

"It would be folly indeed not to match our merchant ship program to the capabilities of our enemy," Saltonstall added.

He commended a plan of the private shipbuilding industry under which the industry has contracted with the government to study the problem. The industry is bearing all the expense of the survey.

Animals that have been beloved pets in families from many walks of life find a final resting place in cemeteries like Pet Haven, shown above. Flowers are evidence of remembrance.

Postlude for Pets

WHERE DO GOOD PETS go when they die?

A good many persons deeply attached to their pets on earth hope that it may be possible to see them again on the Other Side.

But when deep in final sleep, the immediate problem is how to care properly for the pet's earthly remains. Particularly is this true for the apartment dweller or the home owner if he lives in an area where restrictions forbid burial of animals on the property.

For residents of Los Angeles County (whose pet population now even surpasses that of Paris, France — long in first place) there is the ultimate solution. A phone call at any hour of the day or night will bring a representative of M. Griffith's Pet Haven Cemetery, 18300 S. Figueroa St., Gardena.

Service, on a par with the personal mortician's, is complete with embalming and a choice of caskets (even a cement vault) or cremation with ashes mailed to the home in a metal container. The embalmed bodies of well loved pets even have been sent to Europe.

Twilight burials are among the features offered for convenience. And it is possible to reserve adjoining cemetery lots for future use.

Many of the markers have a picture of the pet embedded in the surface. This is done by a special porcelain process, preserving a snapshot or portrait. A photo service also provides a picture of the pet at rest in the pillowed redwood burial basket surrounded by flowers.

THE LITTLE GRAVES are tended carefully and many freshly filled flower baskets attest to the continued devotion of man to his animal friends. Decorated trees are placed on many graves at Christmastime, and Easter brings baskets of flowers. On Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Armistice Day flags furnished by the management flutter in the breeze above the more than 2000 graves.

In addition to dogs, some of which have done wartime service for their country, Pet Haven Cemetery is the final resting place for cats, horses, even white rats, turtles and cockateels. Among the horses is a Palomino from Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz' famous posse.

For all who have loved, and lost a while, a furred or feathered pal, the staff offers sympathetic help. To quote from a descriptive folder:

"High up in the Courts of Heaven today
A little dog Angel waits.
With other dog Angels he will not play,
But sits alone at the gates.
'For I know my Master will come,' says he,
'And when he comes, he'll call for me.'"

LOOK FOR THIS SEAL

"This Seal is your assurance that the genuine plaster and lath walls and ceilings in this structure have been inspected and certified for quality of product and workmanship by the Southern California Plastering Institute."

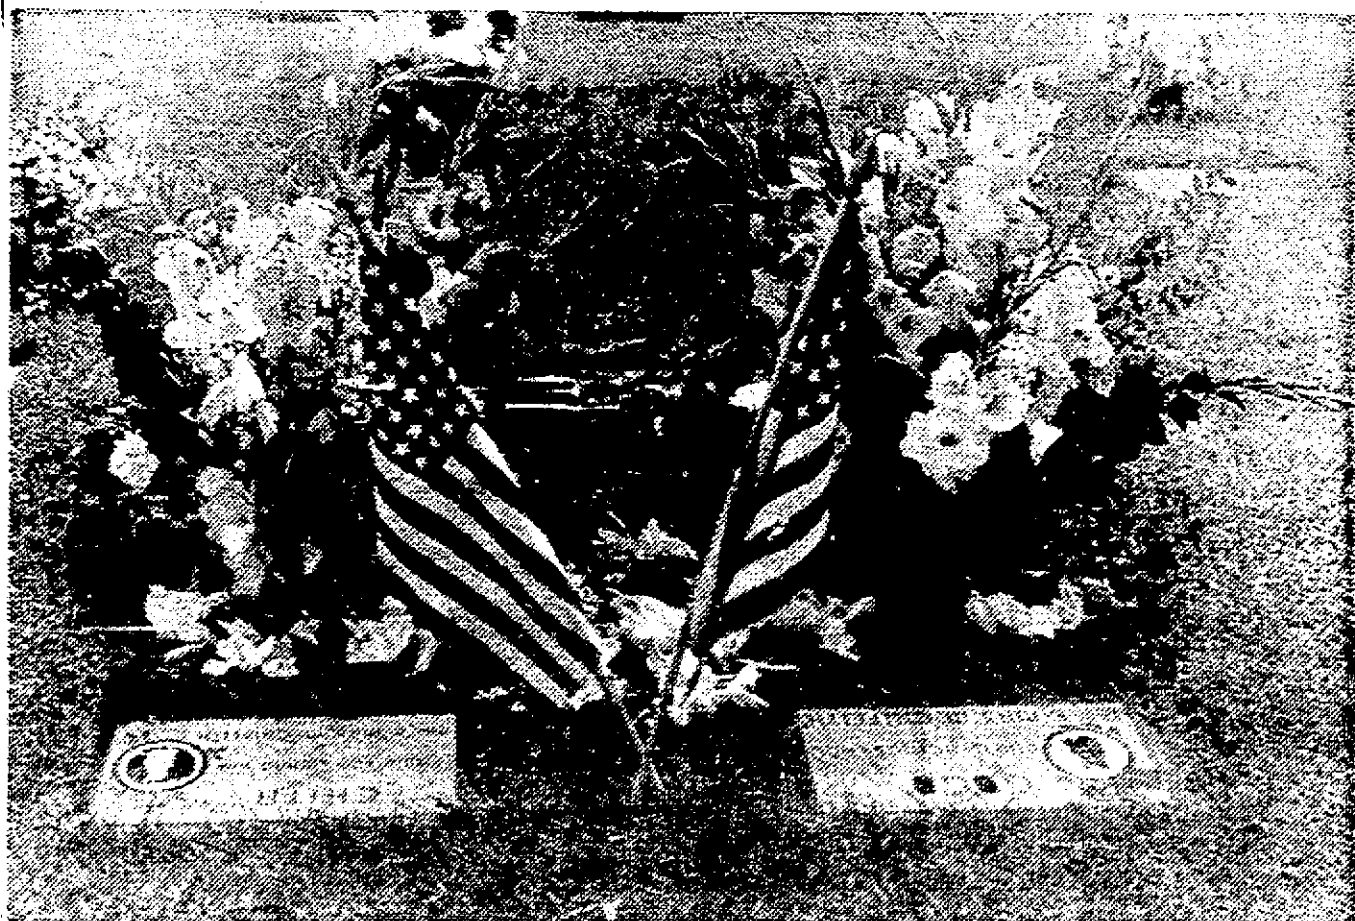

In these few words lies the basis of a wise home investment. What makes a Southern California Plastering Institute Certified Plaster and Lath wall superior? Many qualities. Unrivaled beauty, year after year through the decades . . . rock-like firmness . . . clean, vermin-proof . . . History's earliest building material, improved on through centuries — now bonded with lath for unmatched durability . . . holder of the full One-Hour American Standard Fire Rating — the most precious 60 minutes you may ever know . . . sound reducing . . . more economical.

Let your ears tell you the difference. KNOCK ON THE WALL. A firm, solid sound is your proof that the wall is Genuine Plaster and Lath — as strong as it sounds. A hollow, flimsy sound means that the wall is constructed of a substitute for plaster — an inferior imitation made to look like a plastered wall.

She Walks on Wood

DANCES ON WOODEN LIMB

'Peg-Leg Girl' Grins Away Handicap Myth

By JACK DAVIS

BELLFLOWER—More men than women are shy about wearing artificial limbs, according to Mrs. Frances Sherill of Bellflower, who has worn an artificial leg three years.

Experiences she has had since Aug. 5, 1950, when a B-29 bomber crashed and exploded near her trailer home at Travis Air Force Base, have convinced the vivacious brunette that the chore of wearing an artificial leg is not as arduous as some persons might believe.

"I'm not self-conscious about it at all," she explained. "I don't mind if people know I wear a wooden leg."

"I can do almost any kind of work that I did before I lost my leg. I can dance, bowl or even swim with it," she added.

The only sports she hasn't tried with the wooden leg, she said, are horseback riding and skiing. "The only reason I haven't is that I haven't had time."

Mrs. Sherill spent four months in Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco after the crash. She refused to accept the government-approved type of artificial leg, with its cumbersome straps, declaring that she would walk out of the hospital with no leg at all if she were not given a type perfected by John Aunger, San Francisco legmaker, from a German invention.

Government officials finally relented and she was allowed to have a leg which stays in place with no straps. The stump fits into a padded socket in the hollow top of the device. As it goes in, air is ejected through a valve in the calf and the resulting vacuum holds the leg in place.

In the hospital she learned that the last thing amputees want is sympathy, she declared.

On a tour of San Francisco with a group of amputees, accompanied by a nurse, Mrs. Sherill was approached by a woman who gushed, "Oh, my dear, you've lost your leg!"

"How careless of her!" cracked the nurse.

As a hint to woman amputees who fear that they may have lost their appeal to men with the loss of a leg, Mrs. Sherill opines that they don't. "I have just as many wolf troubles as I had before."

Ship Co. to Increase Port Operations Here

An increase in operations through the Port of Long Beach is in the air for Olympic-Griffiths Lines, oldest shipping firm in the local harbor, and now located at Berth 54, Pier 2.

The line, represented here by Victor M. Kruger, district manager, first began operations in Long Beach in 1936. At that time it was known as Consolidated Olympic Co.

Just prior to World War II, Olympic Steamship Co., Inc., and James Griffiths & Sons, Inc., both long-time shipping firms, received approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission to consolidate their west coast operations.

One firm had northbound rights, the other southbound. After consolidation, the new company—Olympic-Griffiths Lines—was able to carry cargo in either direction between Long Beach and Tacoma and Seattle.

Earlier this year, the ICC granted the Olympic-Griffiths Line permission to operate in any of the northwest ports.

Although the line operates only one freighter of its own—the 7216-ton Olympic Pioneer—it carries on an extensive operation in bunkering and husbanding ships of other lines for which it is agent. It also takes on charter hauls, a major example being the sailing last October of the freighter Pentire, carrying 37,000 drums of asphalt—one of the largest shipments of its kind through the port of Long Beach. The Olympic Pioneer hauls lumber and newsprint—about 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 board feet of lumber and from 6000 to 8000 tons of newsprint a month—into port here.

It leaves Long Beach without cargo as it stops each trip at Redwood City to pick up a full load of salt, 11,500 tons, to carry to Portland and Tacoma.

Headquarters for both parent lines are in Seattle, where both are agents for nearly a dozen lines each. E. C. Bentzen, president of Olympic Steamship Co., is chairman of the board of Olympic-Griffiths Line. James F. Griffiths, president of James Griffiths and Sons, Inc., is also president of Olympic-Griffiths Line. D. M. Gregory, whose office is in San Francisco, is manager of California operations.

Recent sailings of the Olympic Pioneer have been more frequent than in the past and, although no official announcement has been made, harbor authorities predict a definite increase in the line's local operations.

TAKES TWO TO TAIL 'EM

Case of the Shadow's Shadow

By JIM PHELAN

The machine age has caught up with the shadow, so the P.I.'s are using a double tail on wheels.

Translation: The parking problem has rendered the detective business quite difficult. To cope with it, the private investigators use two operators in a car to keep a subject under surveillance.

"Traffic has made the tailing business tough," says Tom Newton, head of the Newton Investigation Bureau in the Jergins Building. "In the old days, when people walked, one investigator could shadow a subject indefinitely."

"Now we use two or three cars on a tough case. We even put a motorcycle on some tailing jobs."

Even the simplest shadowing job requires two operators and a car. It's all the fault of Henry Ford and the parking meter.

"Think about it a minute and you'll see why," says Newton.

"Say a wife thinks her husband is meeting another woman. She puts us on the case."

"We station an operator in a car near his house. The guy drives over to downtown L. A. All of a sudden he ducks into a parking spot."

"There's the operator, out in the street in his car—a dead pigeon. There's no other place to park within blocks. By the time he parks, the subject has vanished."

THE ANSWER to the machine age has been the double tail. A second investigator rides along, ready to hit the bricks and follow the wayward husband wherever he strays.

When the operator "puts the subject in"—say at a hotel with a feminine companion—he calls the office. So does the other operator when he finds a place to park.

Then they join forces, and before you can say "Intimidation," papa's in the frying pan.

"That's on a simple case," Newton says. "When we're shadowing someone who suspects he's being followed, it gets complicated."

A suspicious subject will pull such tricks as driving down a boulevard and making a U-turn in front of a light just as it changes. Then he watches his rear-view mirror to see if any other car makes the illegal turn.

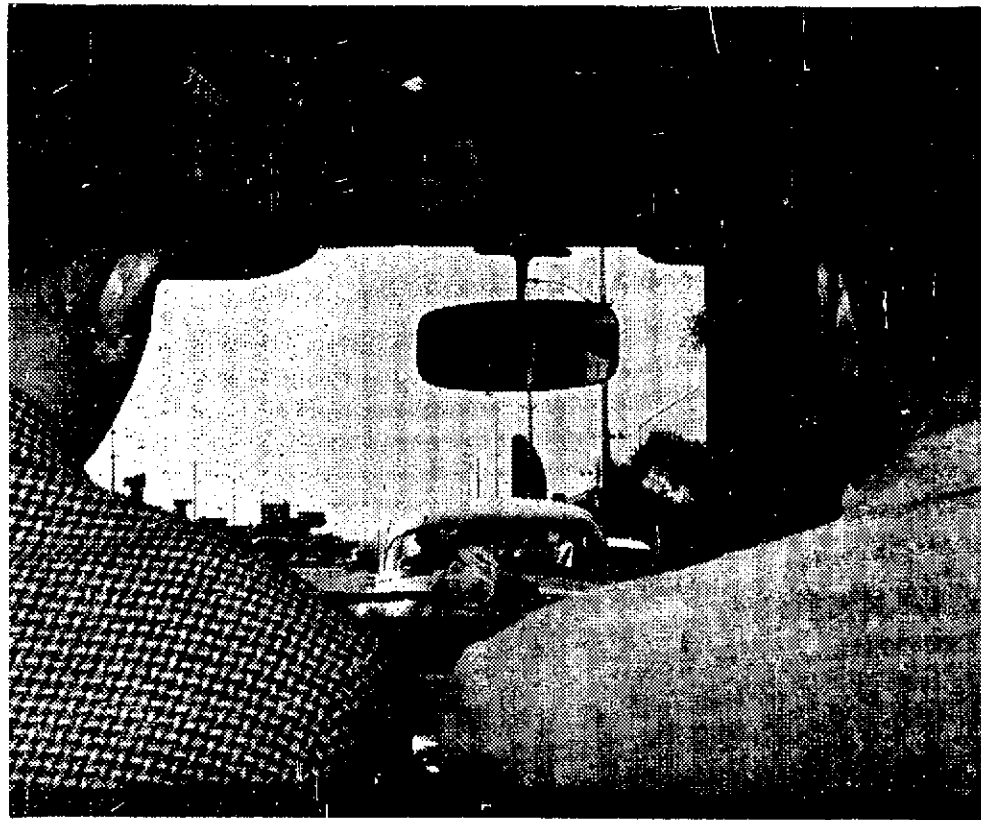

In such a case, the operator just drives on and drops the subject — for the time being.

"We lose all value to our clients if the subject learns he's being followed," says Newton.

But the next time out, Old-Fox will have three tails on drain."

"How did the case come out?" Newton smiled with contentment.

"The next day," he said, "The 'Youth and Society' Topic of Welfare Council Meet

"Youth and Society" will be the topic for the quarterly meeting of the Community Welfare Council delegates Tuesday afternoon at the YWCA.

Representatives from the 54 public and private agencies in the council will hear Karl Holton, probation officer of Los Angeles County, discuss current youth problems.

Holton, formerly director of the Youth Authority of the State of California, is an authority on delinquency and its prevention.

Mrs. Everett Findlay, in the absence of Rev. Bob Richards, who is chairman of the youth and recreation division, will comment on the need for additional camp facilities in her report of summer camp programs.

The health division committee's study of hospital facilities, problems of caring for aged persons and home care of the ill will be discussed by Howard Hatfield, division chairman.

Dr. Reuben Pieters, chairman of the Community Welfare Council, one of the Community Chest services, has invited the public to attend.

'Stage' Pictures to Tell Stories

In this picture of three young people on a picnic, the bat is center of interest and helps tell story.

By The Shutterbug

PRACTICALLY ALL OF US have at some time or other been connected with an amateur theatrical production. Thus we know that the play book lists the required properties right along with the cast of characters and the synopsis of the action. These properties are indeed essential to help tell the story.

That's why props should definitely be given consideration when we pose people for snapshots. We're all aware that story-telling snapshots are the ones we like best and the introduction of a simple prop can easily add to the impact of the picture.

Props are good for subjects of all ages. Babies and adults alike respond to them. I once heard a professional photographer of babies say that the prop you give them as a center of attention is a "natural anchor" because it tends to keep the small fry where you want them. With a baby it will help keep the subject's interest at a high pitch long enough for you to snap a picture featuring a lively expression.

With adults you use props, not to "anchor" them in one spot, but to relieve camera shyness and add to the naturalness of the pose and help tell the story.

Choose your props carefully, to be in keeping with the natural situation, and you'll find that they can dramatize your snapshot, add life, interest and naturalness to your subject. Make them work for you.

NEWLY ELECTED officers of the Cinema Club are Bob Ferris, president; Lewis Underwood, first vice president; Al Larrabee, second vice president; Lynette Stephens, secretary; Cliff Harris, treasurer; Ray Stober, Bob Piccirilli and Frank Kallenberg. The club will have its annual film contest Dec. 2.

LONG BEACH CAMERA GUILD now holds second place in color competition of the Southern California Council of Camera Clubs. Ilse Stevens of the local Guild won first place in a recent competition and Henry McCutchan won third. In the black and white competition of the Council, Long Beach Camera Guild is third. Lowell Weeks of the Long Beach Guild received honorable mention. In the color competition of the Photographic Society of America, Don Hayward, president of Long Beach Camera Guild, won honorable mention.

COMMUNITY CAMERA CLUB will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Fellowship Hall, 14752 Jackson Ave., Midway City. . . South Bay Camera Club will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Room 105, Redondo Union High School, Redondo Beach.

PET PARADE

He's a Crossed-Up Pooch

THE BASSET HOUND is an aristocratic breed of ancient lineage. He flourished chiefly in the royal family grounds of France and Belgium and was used in trailing deer, rabbits, hares, and so on. He is a cross of the old French bloodhound and the St. Hubert hound.

Here in the United States, this quick-learning dog is valued for hunting foxes, rabbits,

By Eleanor A. Price

pheasants and raccoons. He is steady and accurate and can go into dense cover on his very short legs. No breed except the pure bloodhound has greater scenting ability.

If handled and trained by one kind master, the Basset becomes a one-man dog — loyal, enjoyable, affectionate.

This dog weighs between 25 and 40 pounds. His body is low and long and his bones heavy. His head is long, and the ears are long, soft and pendant.

A simple daily grooming with a brush keeps the Basset's coat clean and shiny.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that dog licenses were first recorded during the reign of Henry III of England, 1207-1272, when all persons owning mastiffs were required to take out licenses. Today tags are included with the licenses, and all dogs should wear them when off the home grounds on a leash. If there is danger of small children letting the dog out of his yard, he should wear the tag at all times.

Recently, identicoding, or having the dog tattooed with a number on the underside, is becoming a popular measure to safeguard the dog and to assist the owner should his dog become lost. In the Long Beach area, this identicoding is a practice highly approved by the Pet Protective League.

In South of the Border Style

BORROWED from south-of-the-border neighbors is the architectural theme of the Ivan V. Isaacs home, 5140 E. Third St.

Mrs. Isaacs, a native of Mexico, has a deep and familiar fondness for the mode of architecture characteristic of her native land. The typical Mexican hacienda is structurally sound with the use of such "heavy" materials as plaster, adobe and stone.

And the Isaac home, a two-story building of terra cotta-colored stucco, closely emulates the appearance of a modern Mexican dwelling.

The entry is an interesting area with tiled floor, submerged floor-level planter and walls of combined combed wood and brick. Immediately opposite the front door is the entrance to the spacious "covered patio" that centers the house.

For purposes of comparison, this type of room is the Mexican version of the "family room" gaining such popularity in America. Centering the floor plan as it does, all the rooms on the lower level open onto it and most of the family's activities take place here.

The floor is of highly polished terra cotta-colored plastic tile. An inlaid shuffleboard court extends the length of the room. The slick surface of the flooring is, of course, ideal for this game. And, in combination with the expansive proportions of the room, this spot is ideal for square dance parties.

GAILY-CUSHIONED rattan furniture arranged in comfortable groupings repeats the vivid colors of the open beams of the ceilings. These rafters, which support the extraordinarily high roof of clear plastic, are painted alternate colors of lime green, deep green and shocking pink.

Two planters, sunk below the level of the floor, add lush greenery, compatible with the colorful Spanish atmosphere, to the room. In one corner is a large red brick barbecue. Decorating its bricked expanse are two Mexican masks carved of wood. These masks, worn by the "old men of the dance" in tribal ceremonies, are interesting accessories. On one wall is hung a large hand-woven Mexican rug. Two life-sized natives doing the musical background for ballet routines practiced daily by the Isaacs' young daughter. Additional music may be piped into the room by means of an intercommunication system that connects all the rooms in the house.

By Eileen Ball

The living room that is situated to the left of the entry is in sharp contrast to the patio room. Softer, more subtle shades of green and gold are used here, with the result that the room is more for repose than for activity.

The carpet is a sage green sculptured pattern, the cornices and draperies a soft butter yellow and the furniture is upholstered in restful metallic tweeds.

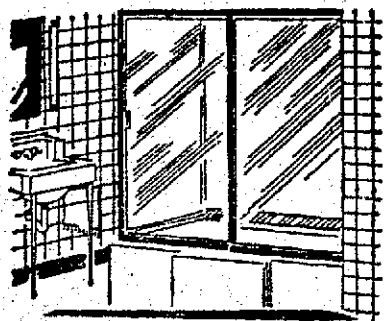

A doorway from the right of

Armistice Parade Tops Salute to Americanism

"Freedom in Action" is the slogan for Americanism Week, beginning in Long Beach and the harbor area today, with churches of all denominations observing Faith and Freedom Sunday.

Church bells and chimes will herald opening of the first major Pacific Coast observance of the week, with Pilot Club as sponsor. Peggy Finley is general chairman.

Highlight of the week will be the Armistice Day parade starting at 11 a. m. Wednesday, directed by the United Veterans Council, Fred Nessler chairman.

Grand marshal will be Maj. Raymond Harvey of Pasadena, Medal of Honor winner who knocked out four enemy emplacements in single-handed attacks in Korea.

Maj. Roy H. Bley of Santa Ana, POW Marine ace who survived enemy torture after being shot down in a flight over North Korea, will be honorary marshal.

Military might will be on display in the seven-division parade. Marching units will include El Toro Marine drill team, units of the Long Beach-based fleet, and 15 bands, among them those of San Diego Navy, Long Beach City College and Poly High School.

Shari Stennette, 17-year-old Wilson High ballet starlet, will be enthroned as Armistice Day queen.

Repatriated prisoners of war from Southland cities will ride in the honor division of the parade. A special feature of entertainment will be Milt Swift, Hollywood cowboy riding his palomino stallion Autumn Moon.

In an Armistice Night show starting at 7:30 in Municipal Auditorium, Judge Fred Miller will preside and introduce Maj. Harvey.

The schedule of other events of the Americanism Week observance follows:

MONDAY—Right to Assemble Day: Special programs by service veterans and fraternal groups. Repatriated POW's and youngsters of Long Beach Boys Clubs to be guests at patriotic dinner, Elks Club, 6:30 p. m. Community recreation program in Municipal Auditorium, Marine Capt. Keith W. Nelson speaker.

TUESDAY—Freedom of Education Day: Special programs at more than 60 Long Beach schools.

THURSDAY—Citizens' Responsibility Day: Long Beach Ad Club luncheon at noon, Lafayette Hotel, honoring student editors of State College, City College and high schools and Freedoms Foundation award winners. Dinner meeting at 7 p. m., Peterson's restaurant, for combined National Exchange Clubs of harbor area. Johnny Grant of KMPC, Hollywood, speaker.

FRIDAY—I Am an American Day: Special afternoon concert by Municipal Band.

SATURDAY—Family Fun Day: Special programs at recreation areas, with potluck suppers featuring national dishes of many nations.

SUNDAY, NOV. 15 — Rededication Day observed at churches.

Pilot Club will sponsor a dinner at 6:30 p. m. Nov. 18 at Pacific Coast Club with Kenneth D. Wells, president of Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., as guest speaker. Awards will be presented to winners in "What America Means to Me" essay contest.

ARLOHA PUZEY, Majorette queen, will lead City College Band on the march in the Armistice Day parade here.

Here's Your Invitation to Visit School

This is American Education Week and you are invited to visit the schools and see Johnny learning to read, Mary learning to add and subtract, and Johnny struggling with a spelling lesson.

Sponsored by the American Legion, National Congress of Parents and Teachers and the U. S. Office of Education, the theme this year addressed to the individual citizen is "Good Schools Are Your Responsibility."

Daily topics are "Moral and Spiritual Foundations," "Learning the Fundamentals," "Building the National Strength," "Preparing for Loyal Citizenship," "Your Child's Teacher," and "Parent and Teacher Teamwork."

Attention in the 65 schools in the Long Beach Unified School District will be focused on the day-to-day work in the classrooms. Parents are urged to see their youngsters develop the skills required for citizenship in a democracy. In the upper grades the spotlight will be on the development of marketable skills and learning the American heritage.

Douglas A. Newcomb, superintendent of schools says: "Adults in the district are urged to see first hand the work in the schools. We want them to visit individual classrooms and get acquainted with the teachers. American Education Week is inventory time. It is an occasion to review the purposes and accomplishments of the schools."

"Good schools do not just happen. In each community the schools are what the people make them. We in the schools want the interest and support and understanding of our citizens during American Education Week, and during every week in the year."

Link Safe Robberies to Marine

PORTUGAL VOTES TODAY

LISBON, Portugal—(AP) The Portuguese vote today in their first real parliamentary elections in 25 years. The outcome is not expected to weaken Premier Antonio Salazar's firm control. The three previous elections went by default to Salazar's National Union movement because the opposition conceded at the last moment.

ANAHEIM — A Marine charged with a series of safe burglaries in the Santa Ana-Orange area assertedly has confessed to Anaheim and Santa Ana police officers that he pulled 12 jobs before he was captured here.

El Toro Marine Pfc. Eugene King, 20, of 10861 E. Third St., Santa Ana, was arrested by Anaheim officers while allegedly attempting to rifle a safe at an Anaheim feed store. Under questioning of both Santa Ana and Anaheim detectives, King admitted entering 11 Santa Ana business firms and one Orange auto agency since he started his alleged crime spree Aug. 3.

Meanwhile, King's wife told officers her husband has been "out with the boys" or standing duty at the Marine installation at Santa Ana, several nights a week lately. She added that he generally came home with lots of money.

Anaheim police officers said when they arrested King he had in his possession a number of burglary tools. Sheriff's officers said they would question King concerning several safe burglaries in the county area.

College Plans Police Class

COSTA MESA — A 14-week class in police training will start Nov. 12 at Coast College. It was announced Tuesday by Dr. Bill J. Priest, assistant superintendent.

He said that the topics to be covered will include definitions of crime, elements needed to make arrests, and classifications of crime.

It will be instructed by Charles V. McCarty, member of Los Angeles Police Department, and each Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. It will be open to all police officers of Orange County, and others interested.

San Jose Editor Jack Wright Dies

SAN JOSE—(AP) Jack Wright, managing editor of the San Jose News, on which he spent all his journalistic career dating back to 1917, died Saturday. Wright, also known internationally as a photographer, was 58.

He helped found the State AP News Editors Conference, served as its president and helped work out the Northern California AP Wirephoto network. He was secretary-treasurer of the AP News Executives Council at the time of his death.

For nearly 10 years, he was assistant editor of the Journal of the Photographic Society of America.

Civil Service Chief Talks at Conclave

Three-fold responsibility of the civil service commission to balance interests of employees, management and the public was explained Saturday night by William T. J. Harris, vice chairman of the Long Beach Civil Service Commission, to delegates attending the convention here of California Federation of Civil Service Associations, Inc.

Harris, main speaker at the convention banquet in the roof ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel, asserted that employees should develop confidence in men heading civil service commissions.

He pointed out that the commission acts not only to see that various government departments get the best possible employees, but also to protect employees in hiring, firing and promotion methods.

The three-day conclave, the federation's 23rd annual convention, will end today with election of officers and selection of the 1954 convention site.

Six Speakers on Retarded Child Slated

Six speakers will participate in a panel discussion on "The Outlook for the Mentally Retarded Child" in Poly High School auditorium at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

The forum, open to the public, is sponsored by the medical advisory board of the Long Beach Exceptional Children's Foundation, the Long Beach branch of the Los Angeles County Medical Association and the Long Beach Pediatric Society.

Panel members will include: George Badenhausen, chairman of the health facilities committee for the Community Welfare Council; Mrs. Ven Fahrney, past president of the Exceptional Children's Foundation; Daniel Langston, co-ordinator for child welfare services of the Long Beach public schools; Dr. John A. Russell, former director of the Long Beach Mental Hygiene Clinic; Dr. Sebastian Casalaina, assistant superintendent of medical services for Pacific Colony; and Peter Updike, director of the Updike School for Retarded Children.

Topics of discussion include: problems of the retarded child and his family, how the problems are being solved here and what still needs to be done, according to Mrs. Albert Horn, president of the foundation.

Wednesday the foundation will launch a fund-raising campaign to construct an exceptional children's school on four acres of land at Xmeno Ave. and Stearns St., presented by the city to the foundation.

WHA' HOPPEN

He Can Tell Friends He Hit Door

HOLLYWOOD—(AP) When Donald Farrin, 24, left receiving hospital Saturday he said he was going home and lock himself in.

Attendants who patched up his bloody nose, scratches and bruises on the head and a knife gash in the shoulder said Farrin told them:

"He and his girl quarreled at her home, and she scratched him. He choked her a little, then decided he'd better leave."

As he walked down the apartment house stairs, straightening his tie, a dropped flowerpot shattered on his head. Farrin staggered out of the building, brushing fragments of pottery from his clothing.

On the sidewalk a stranger walked up to him, punched him in the nose. Then he drew a pocket knife and slashed groggy Farrin's shoulder.

An ambulance arrived before anything else happened to him.

Ha! Eavesdropper's Tip Beats Radio Flash

SALEM, Ind.—(AP) Radio Station WSLM here reported Saturday it's revising its idea that radio is the swiftest means to communicate in the world.

A woman called the station to get an ad on the air that she'd lost her cow. A few moments later, before WSLM could broadcast her plea for the straying bossie's return, the woman called to cancel the ad.

A neighbor listening in on the party telephone line had heard the call, spotted the cow and notified the owner.

RESULTS CHEER WORKERS

Chest Pushes Toward $708,000

Doubly confident that the Community Chest campaign is going over the top since more money has already been raised in three weeks than in the entire campaign last year, selected volunteers will make renewed efforts to obtain the $708,000 goal.

Drive leaders under H. L. Ridings Jr., Monday will assign to teams names of those who have not contributed to the 27 Red Feather services.

There will be no general report meeting this week, but a final tally will be made for the Community Chest annual meeting Nov. 17, he said.

While the residential division was receiving congratulations for being in first place of all children's foundations, Daniel Langston, co-ordinator for child welfare services of the Long Beach public schools; Dr. John A. Russell, former director of the Long Beach Mental Hygiene Clinic; Dr. Sebastian Casalaina, assistant superintendent of medical services for Pacific Colony; and Peter Updike, director of the Updike School for Retarded Children.

Woman Driver Ends Broadcast

WASHINGTON, Ind.—(AP) A woman driver broke up a radio broadcast Saturday, and it cost her $5.

State Trooper Don Smiley and Capt. Carl Cannon of the Washington Police Department were interviewing an out-of-state truck driver on a portable transmitter set up by station WFML. The woman driver, Kathleen Buchholz, sped past the broadcast scene on Ind. 57 south of the city, and the officers broke off the interview abruptly. A justice of the peace later fined her $5 for speeding.

Mesa Police Chief to Get Force Soon

COSTA MESA—After Nov. 21, Costa Mesa should have a police force of three officers—

The recently appointed police chief was named without an actual department pending competitive examinations to be conducted Nov. 21 at Orange Coast College under supervision of Joseph Kroll of the college psychology department.

The initial appointment of police officers will consist of a minimum force of three, McKenzie said, but it is expected to increase the staff to a complement of 17 by July 1, beginning of the next fiscal year.

Suspect Detained While Narcotics Tests Conducted

A former laboratory technician was being held in jail Saturday for investigation of narcotics possession pending police laboratory analysis of 27 yellow tablets officers said were stolen from Dr. Stephen A. Seymour, 836 Pine Ave.

Robert Hugo Frank, 30, was booked by police after the boxes containing the tablets were found in his apartment at 968 Via Carmelitos Friday night, officers said.

Frank, reports stated, asserted he formerly was employed by Dr. Seymour. The physician denied he ever had employed Frank and said the tablets were dextroamphetamine, used in treatment of alcoholism.

Legg Speaks Monday to Lakewood Leaders

County Supervisor Herbert C. Legg will speak before members of the Lakewood Civic Council Monday at 8 p. m. at Stephen Foster School, Bigelow St. and Fidler Ave.

Legg's topic will be "Services to be Expected by Lakewood from the County After Incorporation." William J. Burnes, council president, will be in charge of the meeting. Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

His Boat Was OK; Houses Had Bulged

MINNEAPOLIS—(AP) Charlie Ferraro had a ready explanation when the boat he built in his back yard turned out to be too wide to go between two houses on its way to the river.

"The boat really wasn't too wide," he said. "I measured the distance between the two houses and planned it accordingly."

"Actually those two houses bulged outward in the four years I was working on the boat. All the traffic of milk, garbage and grocery trucks through the alley made the houses come closer together."

Siding on the two houses was damaged during the boat moving operation.

Kidnap Cash Fenced?

ST. LOUIS—(AP) The search for the missing $303,720 ransom money in the Bobby Greenlease kidnap-slaying case was stepped up here tonight with reports it was sold by the underworld. The Globe-Democrat said one unidentified report was that the money was taken to Chicago and sold by professional "fences" for 30 to 50 cents on the dollar.

FOE OF NAZIS AND REDS

War's Victim Finds End of Journey Here

By PAUL FRAME

Vainovitch Radoslav knows how it feels to sink to the depths of despair without any apparent hope and then to re-establish himself as a man.

The symbols of the new estate of Vainovitch are a home and a business in Long Beach.

The second world war dealt harshly with Radoslav, born in 1903 in Yugoslavia. He had taken the required military training and risen to the post of manager in a Belgrade bank. Then, in 1939, he was called into the Yugoslavian army as captain.

He spent nine years fighting the Nazis and as a guerrilla against the Communists. He was wounded twice, once by each foe.

Twice he was captured and twice escaped from the Germans, the last time fleeing to a displaced persons camp in Austria. There, in 1945, at the age of 42, he decided to draw to occupy his time.

The drawings won him a job with American occupation officials and led to his emigration to the United States.

When he came into this country on an alien card, July 15, 1949, he could speak no English. He had no money. His wife had been killed by Communists, as had two of his six brothers. His daughter and mother were faring, God knows how, in Yugoslavia.

In Los Angeles he tried to learn how to be a house painter and how to speak English at the same time. Then he went east and managed to get a job as house painter at Silver Cross Hospital, Joliet, Ill.

At the hospital he made himself known by painting big cartoons in color for the children patients. He branched out into other things, and now is an expert decorator, sign painter, oil painter and sketch artist.

For two weeks Radoslav has been in Long Beach. He has a home where he and his new wife, widow of a World War I veteran, reside at 1615 E. First St. He has two stepsons in the armed forces and he hopes to bring his mother and daughter, now 22 and married, to Long Beach from behind the iron curtain.

And very important to him is his purchase of a Long Beach business, Long Beach decorators, painting contractors, at 726 E. First St. Purchase was from James Towers.

Just think, I now have my own business," Radoslav said softly, his dark eyes glistening. "And four years ago I had lost everything—friends, money. But I kept my belief in God, in people and in freedom."

"This," he concluded, "could only happen in America."

Red Formosa Strike?

TAIPEH—(AP) Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's elder son, Gen. Chiang Ching-Kuo, said that the Chinese Communists may be planning to open an air offensive soon against Nationalist Formosa. Young Chiang, who is the generalissimo's right hand man and most trusted aide, said the Nationalists had learned that the Reds were shifting the mass of their air force from northwest China.

Tour Backs Up Civic Center Site

Long Beach's selection of a civic center site conforms with a general trend in American cities, according to Planning Director Werner Ruchti. Returning from an inspection tour that took him to Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Seattle and Portland, Ruchti reported that all five are developing sites adjacent to the business district.

At Detroit, where he attended the National Planning Conference, Ruchti met with planning officials who are enthusiastic about the new development there.

The center encompasses 76 acres on the downtown riverfront. A Veterans Memorial Building was completed in 1950 full living for senior citizens at a cost of $5,178,000. A larger, Dr. Schug's lecture, second in city-county building, estimated to the current Senior Citizens For-the entry leads into the dining room, which is also directly accessible from the patio room. The same sage green carpet used for the living room has been repeated here. The limed ash dining-set has channel-back upholstered chairs covered in green and gold flecked tweed.

The Isaacs' unusual dwelling, with stucco in terra cotta color, capitalizes on the best features of Mexican architecture. It is "different" and very livable.

THE KITCHEN, like the adjoining dining room, opens onto the patio. It is a cheery room, larger than average, and enables the Isaacs to entertain a number of diners informally right in their gay red-and-yellow kitchen-dinette.

On the opposite side of the central family room are three downstairs bedrooms.

The daughter's room is carpeted in deeply napped rose wool that is a number of shades deeper in tone than the rose satin quilted bed spreads. Her adjoining bath is carried out in a delicate apple green with rose-tinted fixtures.

The master bedroom is very large. Three wardrobe doors are mirrored to form an ingenious three-way reflection. Their value, of course, is essentially for dressing purposes, but they also serve as interesting reflectors of the opposite wall. The bed is king sized.

The master bath is connected to the bedroom by means of a dressing room. The bath is apple green with rose fixtures.

THE THIRD BEDROOM, ever ready for overnight guests, is carried out in yellow and dove gray.

Upstairs is the family's sun deck, walled shoulder-high for privacy and protection from the wind. This is the site for a second barbecue, which, unlike the one in the enclosed downstairs patio, is out of doors. Chaise longues, tables and umbrellas make this a very welcome spot on a summer day or evening.

Inside, and directly opposite the hallway leading to the sun deck, is the door to the play room that effortlessly doubles as a guest room.

This room has a sofa-bed, several comfortable club chairs and coffee tables. In addition, it has a complete built-in kitchenette with its own thermador range, apartment-sized refrigerator and sink. It is separated from the room with a gay red counter top that makes the work of entertaining a crowd a lot of fun.

More Precious Than Jewels

By Caroline Coleman

ALTHOUGH gem collectors are currently combing the kimberlite (same type of diamond-bearing clay as found in South Africa) of our Navajoland for precious stones, the inhabitants of that reservation earlier discovered some friends more precious than jewels. They are Mr. and Mrs. Grant Thomas of 218 Norton St., who, inspired by a newspaper article published in 1947, are devoting their lives to relieving the misery of these "forgotten people of the United States."

It was the end of another day's work at the Long Beach City Water Department for Thomas. Dinner over, he had settled in his easy chair to catch up on the news. His wife, busy with her mending near-by, was startled as he jumped up, newspaper in hand, exclaiming excitedly:

"This is it!" while waving a news item before her eyes.

"It" to Thomas, whose own Creek Indian heritage made him feel close to the problem, was a way to realize his ambition. He would work to relieve the sorry plight of the Indian people, among whom the Navajos described in the newspaper were probably in the greatest need. Mrs. Thomas was eager to join in her husband's plan.

A TRIP to Window Rock, Ariz., for a first-hand look around the reservation decided the Thomases then and there that mission work was their destiny. Here is a summary of what they learned:

It seems that up until 1934 the 72,000 original American inhabitants of some 26,000 square miles of desert land of Arizona, New Mexico and Utah which comprises the Navajo Indian Reservation were self-sufficient. Some families had large herds of sheep which furnished food, a medium of exchange, and wool for rugs, the art form for which they are famed. But along came the Federal Commission on Indian Affairs who, deciding the land was overgrazed, ordered an immediate and drastic reduction of their flocks. Consequently 90 per cent of these nomadic people are without a means of supplying even their simple requirements. And their standard of living is a long step back from the most modest of the conquering whites! Their dome-shaped homes, called hogans, are about 15 feet in diameter and have no wall of glass. In fact, light enters through a square hole, skylight style, at the top of the hogan. This hole also doubles for a chimney, allowing escape for the smoke from the "kitchen range," usually made from a bisected gas drum.

No concrete slab construction here. The floors are merely hard-packed dirt. Furnishings, arranged without the help of a professional interior decorator, are in keeping. Blocks of wood, when obtainable, are used as table and chairs. Sheepskins are the beds. Nobody bothers to count calories as the menu automatically forestalls any chance of excess, avoidupois. past the nursing stage as well as to adults, is not only monotonous, but is responsible for the consistent malnutrition and disease so evident among the Navajo people. This, and the scarcity of medical aid, adds up to an abnormally high death rate.

LESS THAN 5000 of the 21,000 school-age Indian children ever see the inside of a schoolhouse. This in spite of the fact that Article 6 of the 1868 Navajo Treaty promised governmental provision of one school for each 30 Navajo children. Yet 3600 young men from these families served our country in World War II, and hundreds more in Korea.

No wonder Mrs. Thomas, after seeing the picture at Window Rock which brought home the magnitude of need, asked:

"But what can just two people do?"

Thomas had the answer. A plan which has resulted in much resident work at the Arizona Reservation for his wife (fortunately trained in the art of nursing), while he joins her there on days off from his regular Long Beach Water Department job.

Working first through a small, already established mission, they conducted their first non-denominational church service in 1948 with 13 in attendance.

On Oct. 4, 1953, the scene shifted to a new building, already bursting at the seams as 130 Navajos gathered to worship.

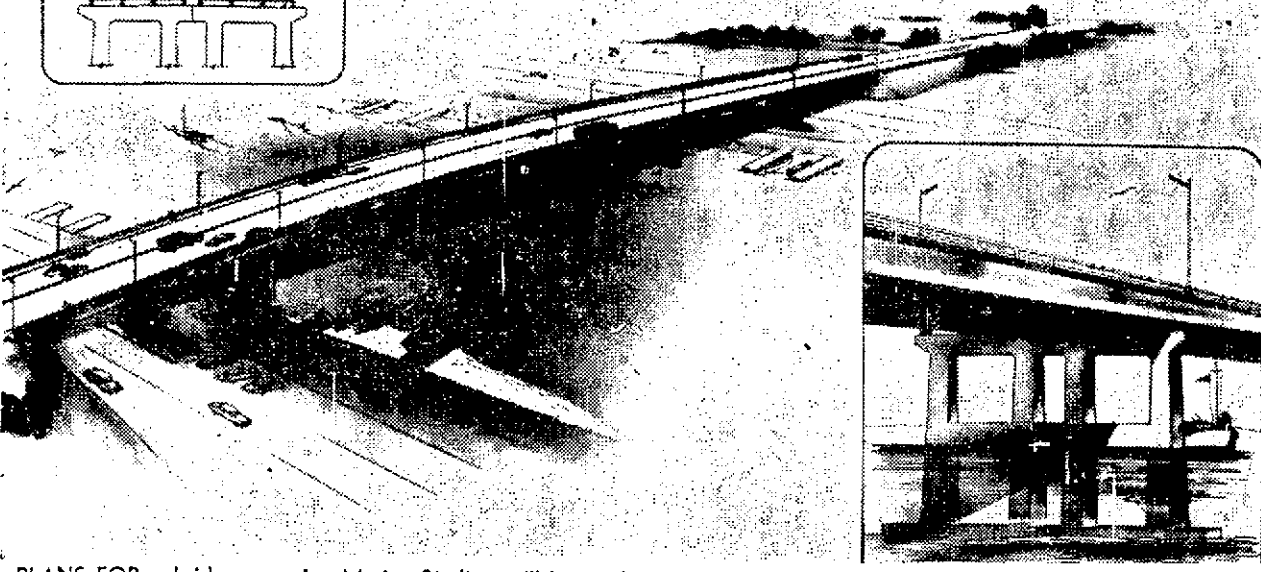

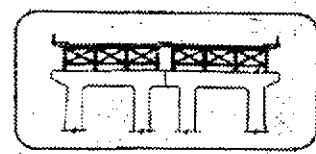

NOT SATISFIED to stop with this accomplishment, the Thomases are still in there pitching. They are now making plans for a mission school, a church, and eventually some hospital facilities, now that a well, long their chief concern, has been dug to provide much needed water. Working on their own towards this goal these two tireless people are without any sort of church or civic backing. Of course they have had supporting contributions and gifts from many friends. For instance, each year in advance of the holiday season many friends arrive at their Long Beach home carrying armloads of warm clothing, food, candy, or dis-

Bridge Will Span Marine Stadium Waters

PLANS FOR a bridge spanning Marine Stadium will be up for City Council approval Tuesday. Estimated cost of the span is $1,709,000, a major project in development of Long Beach small yacht anchorage. The structure would provide a direct link between East 2nd St. and Pacific Coast Highway. Architectural sketches were work of Iata J. H. Davies.

By DON BRACKENBURY

LONG BEACH HAS WON the bid for the start of next year's All-Women Transcontinental Air Race, we are informed by Barbara London, chairman of the local chapter, Ninety-Nines. The race will start here July 3 and end in Knoxville, Tenn., a distance of more than 2000 miles.

The city and the Chamber of Commerce are backing the start of the annual event and there will be a couple of social affairs for the women pilots before take-off time. Last year the race was from Lawrence, Mass., to Long Beach.

WINGS OVER THE NATION is getting closer and the activity of the annual observance of air transportation, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is picking up. The event is Dec. 11-13, climaxed with an air show at Municipal Airport on Sunday, Dec. 13.

The Harbor Transportation Club has arranged to hold its December meeting in conjunction with the big banquet Friday, Dec. 11. The Junior Chamber is having a ladies night meeting at the banquet. And the Southern California Aviation Breakfast Club will be host to the hostesses Sunday morning.

FIRST MEETING of the Douglas Hi-Flyers, Inc., new airplane club at the Long Beach plant of Douglas Aircraft, will be today at 3 p. m. in the administrative dining room. Officers will be nominated and elected, by-laws and articles of incorporation will be adopted and a committee will be named to buy airplanes.

P. A. Gibson, head of the organizing committee, said the club hopes to buy two aircraft to start.

SPEAKING OF DOUGLAS, warm-up of the big Allison J-71 jet engines which will be used on the new twin-jet B-66 bombers have been conducted in the noise-proof test cell at the local plant and results were highly satisfactory.

Efficiency of the plant mufflers on the Maxim silencer-constructed cell has kept noise down to where it is barely audible 100 yards away, according to Douglas engineers. The cell is one further step in cutting down noise from test operations.

NEXT MEETING of Flyers Post 765, American Legion, will

Ex-Cop Kills Self

HOLLYWOOD — (UP) Former Police Officer Stanley M. Briggs, 32, apparently despondent over the loss of his job, plunged to his death Saturday from the roof of a 10-story hotel. Authorities said Briggs recently lost a job as a bartender in Balboa, Calif.

'Typical' Farm Family Host King of Greece for Dinner

CHICAGO—(UP) A little girl cried Saturday because the queen of Greece didn't come to dinner—only the king.

Queen Frederika was confined to her hotel room with a cold, and could not make the trip to nearby Oswego, Ill., for an elaborate chicken dinner at the farm of J. George Smith and his family.

But King Paul and members of his party were entertained royally at the Smiths' comfortable white frame farmhouse southwest of Chicago.

Nevertheless, Smith's wife, Anna, said she was "terribly disappointed" that the queen could not come. The Smiths' children were disappointed, too. Cheryl, 9, cried and said:

"I've never seen a queen."

Annette, 11, said she was glad the king could come, and Kent, 5, took the whole affair in stride. He had to have his face washed shortly before the King arrived.

The visit to the Smith farm was arranged because the king had expressed a desire to see a typical midwestern farm during his U. S. tour.

Their host had to forego the University of Illinois homecoming football game with Michigan, the first that he and his wife have missed since 1941. Smith had two tickets to the game, but sold them when he and his wife were selected to entertain the king and queen.

She's Lost Her Sheep

Fight Seen for Added Slash in Income Taxes

WASHINGTON — (UP). Some Republican House members were reported Saturday to be planning to fight next year for a "bonus" individual income-tax cut, in addition to the 10-per cent reduction due by law on Jan. 1.

Whether they can get any support for a second tax cut from administration officials in the executive branch is problematical. President Eisenhower and his financial advisers have made clear their intention of trying for a balanced budget ahead of further tax cuts.

The problem was underscored by new estimates from congressional staff economists, not previously published, that tax cuts scheduled under present law will cost the treasury $1,300,000,000 in the current fiscal year—the period from their effective date on Jan. 1 to the year's end on June 30.

In fiscal 1955, the 12 months beginning next July 1, these confidential estimates place the revenue loss at $7,000,000,000.

Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-N. Y.) of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee is understood to be one of the group favoring more of an individual income-tax cut than is now scheduled.

Reed declined to commit himself publicly on the issue at this time. He said his committee's first objective in the new session next January will be a major tax-revision bill. It will be concerned, not with tax rates, but with correction of what many committee members of both parties consider inequities in both business and personal taxation.

Many Republicans are known to believe that a second tax reduction, a sort of "bonus," would help their political chances in the 1954 elections.

The 10 per cent cut which is due on Jan. 1, 1954, was written into law by a Democratic Congress when the tax rates were increased at the outbreak of the Korean war.

Arab-Asian Group Plans Publicity Program in U.S.

WASHINGTON — (UP). The Arab-Asian Institute today announced the establishment of a public information program to promote a closer understanding between Americans and the peoples of Arab-Asian countries.

The institute is a newly formed trade, research and cultural foundation set up jointly by Americans, Arabs and Asians, the institute said in a statement.

The organization plans to hold an annual institute on Arab-Asian affairs, conduct research and public relations work on matters of mutual interest among the countries, promote international trade, undertake cultural and student exchange, and encourage American investments, technology and economic assistance for Arab-Asian countries.

Corinne Calvet Will Renew French Accent

HOLLYWOOD — (AP). Corinne Calvet is taking no chances on losing her French accent. She is flying back to Paris after a four-year absence.

Her representative announced Saturday the French actress will leave by TWA tonight, spend a day in New York and leave Monday evening by TWA for a six-week stay in Paris.

AF Dedicates Base

RAMSTEIN, Germany — (UP). The U. S. 12th Air Force dedicated Saturday its new $6,000,000 headquarters base near here, 25 miles from the French border.

The base was carved out of forest land in only seven months. Maj. Gen. D. C. Strother, the commanding officer, said the base will be used to "consolidate the combat effort" of U. S. tactical wings in both Germany and France. The West German government paid for the construction as an occupation cost. Strother's headquarters was shifted here from Wiesbaden, east of the Rhine.

She's a Hit Without a Hit!

By Elaine Hauck

MINDY CARSON
... So Far She's Hitless ...

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, lovely, blue-eyed Mindy Carson hasn't had a record-selling record yet. Although she's made some honeys she's yet to cut her first smash hit. But it doesn't seem to bother this little songster.

She says, in fact, that it hasn't hurt her career in the least. She still packs 'em in her personal appearances in theaters and night clubs.

"Nowadays," she says, "hit records aren't essential to success in show business. If I got a hit record now, it would make things easier, sure. It would be gravy. But I can get along without it."

"For the last five years," Mindy says, "it's been tougher for a singer to get good theater and night-club dates without a hit record. But that seems to be changing now."

The reason for this, we reckon, could be that too many successful recording artists are OK in a sound studio but duds on the stage. Maybe an audience will show up once or twice to see a singer on the strength of his recordings, but if he doesn't have a good stage presentation, he's dead.

So Mindy, and other smart singers like the Ames Brothers and Fran Warren, concentrate on perfecting their acts and let others worry about his records.

ATHLETIC NOTE—Pro golfers Babe Didrikson Zaharias and Betty Dodd are turning singers. They'll record some country tunes for Mercury. They should, naturally, start off with "Tee for Two" and "Mashies in de Cold, Cold Ground."

TEN TOP TUNES — Still on top of the heap of favorites this week is Frank Chacksfield's "Ebbtide"; (2) "Rags to Riches," Tony Bennett; (3) "You, You, You," Ames Brothers; (4) "Vaya Con Dios," Les Paul and Mary Ford; (5) "St. George and the Dragonet," Stan Freburg; (6) "Oh, Pec Wee Hunt; (7) "Crying in the Chapel," The Orioles; (8) "Cumpari," Julius La Rosa; (9) "Story of Three Loves," William Kapell, and (10) "Many Times," Eddie Fisher.

ELAINE ELECTS: "Offshore" (Axel Stordahl, Capitol), "Golden Violins" (Frank Chacksfield,

the one that Charlie Mingus and John Parros started in New York City to present new compositions of young talent. Rumor has it that a university in the Southern California area will adopt a similar program. Man! What a class that will be! eh?

HERE AND THERE ... Ava Gardner to record for M-G-M with George Shearing's group to back her. ... Oscar Peterson to the Tiffany on or about Dec. 12th. (This group swings like made! Don't miss it!) ... Bill Harris' rendition of "Nearness of You" at the JATP concert last Wednesday night was a thing of thematic beauty. This guy has so much to offer in the way of tonal quality and lyrical ideas that it's a shame he wastes his time on up-tempo numbers. Hear: "Imagination," "Your Blase," and above all the unreleased as yet: "Jim." (I've been waiting for him to record the last one. It's wonderful.)

BEIDERBECKE MEMORIAL ... Heard the immortal Bix Beiderbecke on an old Paul Whiteman side the other night and thought I would see what the record companies were doing to put this jazz great on wax. Sooo ...

Brunswick set the middle of last month as the release date for an all-star session with Jimmy McPartland. The album includes compositions by Bix and tunes he helped make famous. Featured are such stars as Lou McGarrity, Ernie Caceres, George Whetting and tunes including: "Comin' Virginia," "Ostrich Walk" and "Davenport Blues."

DON'T MISS ... Coming to the Fine Arts theater next week end up in the city, is that weird psychological film, "Dementia." Jazz sequences throughout the flick are by Shorty Rogers who shares scoring honors with top rank arranger-composer George Antheil. Story is about a singer on a mentally-ill kick. Odd part about it is there's no dialogue. Johnny Graas' French horn is featured throughout with some nice solo work by him. (If interested, call me and I'll give you more info. One day run on the movie is all they're having and then off to New York for premiere.)

Jazz Mill

By John C. Tebben

JAZZ IN COLLEGE ... Prof. Wilburt Barranco of the University of California at Berkeley, who last year taught a class in the history of jazz, is offering the course again this season. The school has also inaugurated a Jazz Workshop. It is similar to carded toys to be transported by truck to Window Rock, so that Christmas may come there, too.

"Gathered for a service around the campfire," Mrs. Thomas says, "these dark-skinned brothers of ours lose their shyness and express their appreciation for the gifts."

At home for a rest (on orders from her doctor who seems to think trucking cement blocks from Gallup while constructing the mission has put her health in jeopardy) Mrs. Thomas is now planning for the coming yuletide.

"We're sure," she adds, "that a way will be provided to have our usual celebration, although this year the friend who usually transports the gifts in his truck has been transferred to another area, so will be unavailable."

The high spot of a visit to the Thomas home is a shy smile won from their two-year-old adopted daughter. Their love for little dark-eyed Tsianina (meaning Wildflower) suggests the nearness to their hearts of their self-chosen lifework. She is of Navajo parentage!

Deep in the Human Mind

A PASSAGE IN THE NIGHT, by Sholem Asch (Putnam, $3.75).

In this fine novel, which the same as a number of his books was translated from the Yiddish by Maurice Samuel, Sholem Asch tells the powerful story of a man's struggle with his conscience and his efforts to right a wrong of many years ago.

Isaac Grossman, aging owner of a chain of movie theaters and hotels, is haunted with guilt over the theft of $25 when he, as a young man, desperately needed $25 to get started on his career. Working as an underpaid clerk in an East Side clothing store, he had kept a wallet which fell from the pocket of Yan Kovalsky, a drunken Pole who had sought to buy a new suit to wear to his daughter's wedding.

Years passed, Isaac had married happily, reared a family and became a tycoon — although a lonely one — and then as old age nears he is tortured by the fear that Kovalsky could not attend the wedding because he had no suit to wear. And dined in Isaac's ears as a child had been the Hasidic tales of souls returning to earth to work out such guilts as beasts of burden.

Isaac tries to find Kovalsky, is sent to a mental hospital for his efforts, but at last his problem is solved and everybody forgives everybody. It's good reading for those who like to sink their teeth into strong fiction and look deeply into the human mind.—V. W.

BOSWELL ON THE GRAND TOUR: Germany and Switzerland, 1764. Edited by Frederick A. Pottle. Illustrated. (McGraw-Hill, $5).

This third volume of the Yale Edition of Boswell's autobiographical works is, indeed, a glorious jaunt through 18th-Century Germany and Switzerland . . . at a time when the Scottish biographer was only 25. And Pottle's editing is masterful as he clarifies the text to come and adds illuminating footnotes.—F. T. K.

SILVER ROCK, by Luke Short (Ballentine-Houghton Mifflin, $3.35 paper, $2 hardbound).

Prospects of a share in a rich silver mine brings Tully Gibbs to Azurite, but once there he wanted Sarah Moffit, too. Rough, rich Ben Hodes stands in his way for both. In going after these things, Tully discovers some things about himself. This is one of Luke Short's best westerns, which means it's at the top of the heap.

THE MUSTARD SEED, by Vicki Baum (Dial, $3.95).

Here is a moving tale of a family that is tormented, until at last the final inevitable act of horror takes place. Toni and Lissa are twins, and there is a veil over Toni's memory that is almost lifted from time to time. His periodic bouts with liquor cause his brother to summon an old army friend, Giano Benedetto, from Italy to work a miracle. Giano's faith is productive of many healings, but when at last he gets into Toni's memory the result almost destroys him. It is a rare novel, and one that the reader will follow with intense interest as the wild and tormented Lissa goes from lover to lover, and her twin gets lost in his own special hell. This tale is not sordid; it has a fine feeling of faith and a sense of justice.—G. L.

SHOLEM ASCH

LIVE BETTER AFTER FIFTY, by Ray Giles (McGraw-Hill, $3.50).

These splendid books open new vistas to those approaching their middle years. Dr. Daniels, noted gynecologist and psychiatrist frankly and illuminatingly discusses the building of a well-balanced life after menopause — physical, intellectual, emotional — with emphasis on how to live a happy sex life. Mr. Giles, reminding that life expectancy has been greatly increased in the last half-century, points to ways of achieving greater mental, emotional and financial independence and accomplishment for the retirement years.

20 DAYS TO BETTER SPELLING, by Norman Lewis (Harper's, $2.95).

Arranged for one hour's study each day for 20 days, here is a book for anyone wishing to improve in his spelling ability. Because, as Lewis admits, English spelling is difficult and troublesome, memory aids are needed to learn permanently the proper spelling of many words. By his system, you can learn the spelling of words ending in -ance and -ence, -able and -ible, -cede and -ceed and -sede. The memory system is not new. It is called "mnemonics" and simply means aids to memory based on the theory of association. Lewis' tricks are ingeniously devised yet simple.—P. F.

THE GIRL WITH THE GLASS HEART, by Daniel Stern (Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50).

This is the story of Elly Kaufman, a blond dish with captivatingly large eyes and beautiful legs. Men fall for her on sight and Elly — well, she gives each a little rope. More than casually intoxicated by this power, she would like to start a new life, away from her straight-laced parents who exchange fond love for her hate. There's an architect and a pianist and a rabbi in her life and they become quite real in this first novel of ex and conflict by the well known composer and musician.—F. T. K.

OUR WILL ROGERS, by Homer Croy (Duell, Sloan & Pearce-Little, Brown, $3.75).

Will Rogers never smoked or drank, he never played cards or gambled, and he never got into "situations" with girls. But to the chagrin of his father, who amassed considerable wealth, all Will wanted to do, and did, was to ride and do rope tricks, eventually joining Wild West and vaudeville shows. Final success with Ziegfeld and writing for newspapers led to international fame. Croy, once a Long Island neighbor of Will's, and in whose books Will starred in the movies, tells the fabulous Rogers story with great gusto, leaving a nostalgia for Rogers and his times.

HOW TO BE A CONSISTENT WINNER IN THE MOST POPULAR CARD GAMES, by John R. Crawford (Doubleday, $2.95).

SPLENDID POEUR: JOAQUIN MILLER — AMERICAN POET, by M. M. Marberry (Crowell, $3.75).

Joaquin Miller's proudest poetic boast was "My cradle was a covered wagon, pointed west," but this colorful and beloved figure of American literature — frequently claimed by California — did not come to the Golden State until he was quite a hunk of boy. Miller always lied handily when it suited his fancy, but his lies were often his attributes, which were so numerous that he was tremendously popular wherever he went. And he could write, too! Marberry, long a student of Miller and such contemporaries as Mark Twain, Bret Harte and Ambrose Bierce, discusses the "Poet of the Sierras" in this story of his life, never overlooking his extraordinary adventures. It is a book Californians will enjoy and appreciate.

CALIFORNIA AS A PLACE TO LIVE, by John A. Crow (Scribner's, $3.95).

A very general description of the state as a whole, its cities (Long Beach, California's fifth ranking city, rates three paragraphs), and data on climate, jobs, education, business opportunities, resorts, cost of living and payments to aged and needy, and concluding with a chapter, "California, Florida or Shangri-La?" For prospective residents and tourists, Crow picks California.

FAHRENHEIT 451, by Ray Bradbury (Ballentine, $3.35 paper, $2.50 hardbound).

In this one, a top-flight writer of science fiction tells the story of future firemen who burn books — and with a reason. It's all very fantastic, but it could happen. This novella, plus two short stories, each an original, comprise the book.

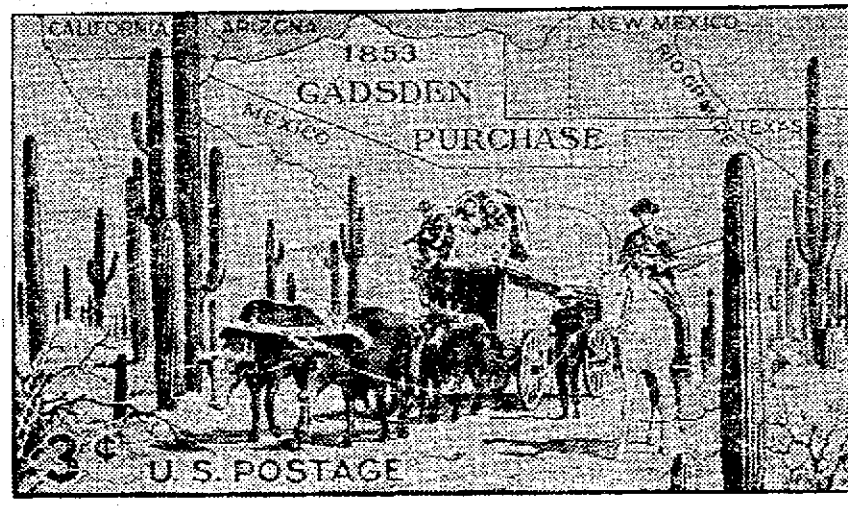

Stamps Honor East and West

Long Beach stamp collectors soon can add two more commemoratives to their collections—the 300th anniversary of New York City and the 100th anniversary of the Gadsden Purchase.

The New York City three-center will be placed on sale through the New York Post Office Nov. 20 in conjunction with the National Postage Stamp Show sponsored by the American Stamp Dealers Association. Collectors may obtain first-day covers by sending envelopes to the Postmaster at New York, N. Y., together with money order remittances.

The three-center honoring the centenary of the Gadsden Purchase will be placed on sale at Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 30, and first-day cancellations may be obtained by sending addressed envelopes to the Postmaster at Tucson with money order remittance covering cost of the stamps to be affixed prior to Dec. 30. The outside envelope for both the new commemoratives should be endorsed "First Day Covers."

French Union Forces' Drive Ends, Rebel Unit Crippled

HANOI, Indochina — (AP). The French high command abruptly broke off the offensive against the Communist-led Vietminh south of the Red River delta Saturday and pulled its troops back inside the key defense bulwark.

Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in north Indochina, said the 24-day-old offensive had achieved its prime objective—knocking Vietminh Division No. 320 out of action "for a long, long time."

Cogny estimated this division had lost 4000 effectives in the fighting around its key base for an attack upon the delta—the town of Phu Nho Quan, 50 miles south of Hanoi.

Cogny stressed that destruction of the Vietminh base ruined rebel plans for an early assault upon the delta.

The land, sea and air offensive by the French Union forces was called "Operation Seagull." Cogny said it proved the Vietminh's rear, communications and advance bases were all highly vulnerable to attack. He promised the rebels would get plenty of that in the months to come.

The battle-weary but smiling French and Vietnamese soldiers, plodding on foot and riding jeeps and trucks, came back to the Ninh Binh district of the delta, 58 miles southeast of Hanoi to regroup and rest. It was from Ninh Binh that the big push had been launched.

About 30,000 French and Vietnamese fighting men took part. Their casualties, although undisclosed, were reported comparatively light.

Cogny said his troops had posed a threat to Thanh Hoa simply as a diversionary action.

Nixon Encourages French in Indochina

By RUSSELL BRINES

HONG KONG (AP). The United States has begun a strong campaign to persuade the French to continue fighting their bitter, ironic war in Indochina.

Vice President Richard Nixon carried the fight into the open this week in Indochina with a series of carefully considered public statements designed to chill fresh demands in Paris for a negotiated truce.

From the American view, the biggest single problem in Asia now is to keep the long-growing French disillusionment with the seven-year campaign from exploding into an indefinite Korean-type truce.

Worried American and other foreign officials in Indochina say an armistice without victory inevitably would allow the Communists to capture all three associated states by political means. This, they add, would expose all of the rich and vital southeast Asia to a Red threat that 48,000 French and Allied troops have died to prevent.

Nixon, a politician turned diplomat, walked into an incredibly complex situation and handled himself like a veteran. Some French observers say his statements may help stiffen the resolve to continue the bloody jungle and mountain campaign.

Nixon was given a thorough bird's-eye view of the war. Despite his speeches of confidence, the situation is only partly reassuring militarily and is discouraging politically to the West.

These are some of the main points of the situation: The French became disgusted with the heavy human and economic toll long ago. The Korean truce spurred demands for a similar Indochina settlement which are becoming louder in the French Assembly.

Korea is divided by a clearly defined battle line and a definite political boundary. Indochina's guerilla war has no real battle lines and the Community-led Vietminh hold about 90 per cent of the most populous country.

Vietnam, with positions around and behind the French. Even if an armistice could establish boundaries for this tangled situation, the anti-Communist governments have nobody to counteract the powerful personal appeal of Ho Chi Minh, the Moscow-trained Vietminh leader. The highest estimate is that Bao Dai, the clever, but somewhat indolent state leader of Vietnam, has support from only 20 per cent of the people.

So diplomatic officials agree that a truce now would deliver Indochina politically to Ho. This explains Nixon's blunt statement, made to French leaders at an elaborate Hanoi reception: "Under no circumstances could negotiations take place which in effect would place the people who want freedom and independence in perpetual bondage."

French officials and Bao Dai both say that the present French government of Joseph Laniel, recently reinforced by a vote of confidence, will continue its policy of accelerating the war, which was exemplified by the decision to send 10 battalions of reinforcements.

U. S. 'Sunday Punch' Now Jet Powered

By BASIL C. RAFFETY

OMAHA — (AP) High-ranking Air Force officers who run the Strategic Air Command here don't talk about "the jet bomber" anymore. Now it's "our jet bomber force."

This tacitly confirms SAC now has bomber wings equipped with the world's fastest strategic bomber—the 600 mile-per-hour B-47 Stratojet capable of carrying an atomic bomb faster and higher than any other bomber in its class now in use.

Conversion of medium bomber wings from the piston-engine B-29 Superfort of World War II fame and the improved B-50, to the six-engine Stratojet began less than a year ago. By late summer SAC was able to highlight its progress with mass Stratojet flights to and from overseas bases indicating these ships and their crews were "combat ready."

SAC headquarters spokesmen will not say how many B-47s are in operational use. But they are willing to say the speedy bombers are being absorbed as fast as they are produced, crews trained and bases made available.

All these factors have to be integrated with SAC's traditional state of readiness to throw a Sunday punch at the enemy as he makes his first aggressive move.

Much of the enthusiasm for the new jet bomber force stems from the fact the B-47 has proved "a far superior bomber than we had anticipated," one SAC officer said.

IS YOUR CHILD

Too Shy?

A film made by child psychologists, "Shyness," will be given a public showing at 2 p. m. Tuesday in Lowell School.

The film is brought to the school by the Lowell PTA, and Mrs. Byron L. Howe will be in charge. It stresses three types of shyness as seen in the school-aged child, and was brought to Long Beach by Long Beach Mental Hygiene Society.

Edwin Morgenroth, chairman of the department of child development, parent education, City College, will lead a discussion following the showing, assisted by Fred Anderson, Lowell principal.

DR. CHAN SAYS: NO LONGER MUST YOU SUFFER FROM

ASTHMA-DIABETES HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

For the past two generations, the offices of Dr. Chan, D. C., located at 928 American Ave., have had outstanding results in treating chronic ailments such as ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, ARTHRITIS, NEURITIS, RHEUMATISM, HIGH OR LOW BLOOD PRESSURE, HEART TROUBLE, STOMACH OR LIVER DISORDERS, KIDNEY OR BLADDER AILMENTS, OR A GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION. Men and women of life come to take these treatments because other methods of healing have failed to help them. Many have spent a fortune in seeking cure before they try this simple, effective natural method of Dr. Chan. Our patients tell us that they wish they had known of our wonderful treatments sooner so that their suffering could have been avoided.

READ THESE AMAZING TESTIMONIALS!

928 American Ave.
Dear Dr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills, but got found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment, I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method."
Signed: Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "For over 30 years I have been suffering from one doctor's office to another hoping to find someone to help me with my asthma and stomach condition. No one knows how much I had suffered until I came to Dr. Chan. Night after night I had to sit up because I wasn't able to lie down to sleep. I was coughing and wheezing most of the night, besides my stomach was full of gas. After taking Dr. Chan's Natural Therapy for one week, I began to improve. Now, after five months of continuous treatment, my asthma and stomach troubles are just about over. I wish to recommend this treatment to anyone who is unable to get well. I am sure that Dr. Chan will do all he can to help you as he has helped me." Signed: Mrs. Tim Smith.

The Big Mum Show Is On!

By John Ronson

THE BIG CHRYSANTHEMUM show is on!

Throughout the Southland, varieties of radiantly colored mums will be blooming during the next few weeks, demanding and getting attention.

Most chrysanthemums will need generous amounts of nitrogenous fertilizer in the next few weeks. Gross feeders, they both exhaust the soil and have deficient stalks if not fed sufficiently. Last-minute disbudding to strengthen main stalks is also helpful in producing strong stock. It is always a good idea to bud lightly, even when a mass effect is desired, say California nurserymen.

Chrysanthemums should also be staked right away, for sudden autumn winds can easily twist and break stalks that are weighted with buds. Regular string or cloth strips fastened to green nursery stakes is one of the most satisfactory methods.

Gardeners who find small bare pockets in their chrysanthemum beds, where slips have failed or been broken, can take advantage of the large assortment of nurtured plants available in a variety of brilliant colors at nearly all nurseries.

If you are looking for new varieties with which to impress friends, try these: Button — a diminutive pompon chrysanthemum with tiny 1½-inch blooms; Spoon—something like the traditional spider, but with lacy tubular petals that broaden at the ends, faintly resembling the turned form of a spoon. And don't overlook the dainty Quill or Anemone mums, hardy perennials that bloom every fall, if planted in well drained soil.

ed water and dry each piece carefully. Season with salt and pepper and sprinkle them with as much flour as they will hold.

Heat the lard very hot in deep iron skillet. Fry chicken very, very slowly, turning pieces carefully. Cover from time to time, then uncover and turn chicken. This should require about half an hour or a little more. Place browned chicken on hot platter. Then pour off fat from skillet. In the same skillet melt butter, add salt, pepper and cream. When hot pour over chicken and serve.

Tipsy Dessert
 Take as many almond macaroons as one will require. Soak in sherry (if possible for several hours until macaroons are like soft, thick sauce). Spread mixture on best cake plate or platter, depending on how many there are to be served. Cover with thick layer of whipped cream (seasoned with powdered sugar to taste). Decorate, if desired, with bits of candied fruit and slices of blanched almonds. Serve with large spoon, asking guests to dig deeply into platter. Virginia uses small old-fashioned Meissen plates for individual servings.

Patience Does It With Orchids

By Walter Finch

DO YOU GROW ROSES? Begonias? Fuchsias? Chrysanthemums? Dahlias? Daffodils?

"They're all easy. You're not really in the upper bracket of flower-growing until you take on orchids!"

At least that is the position of Fred Brower, 761 Junipero Ave., plumber at Seaside Hospital, who at his residence has a homemade greenhouse with about 400 orchid plants, and at present about 15 blooms of breathtaking beauty. Up to this moment he has not had a lock on the greenhouse door, but perhaps effective at once he should install one.

"I've always liked orchids," he says. "I raised other flowers, but it always was orchids I wanted. Then a few years ago I began growing orchids."

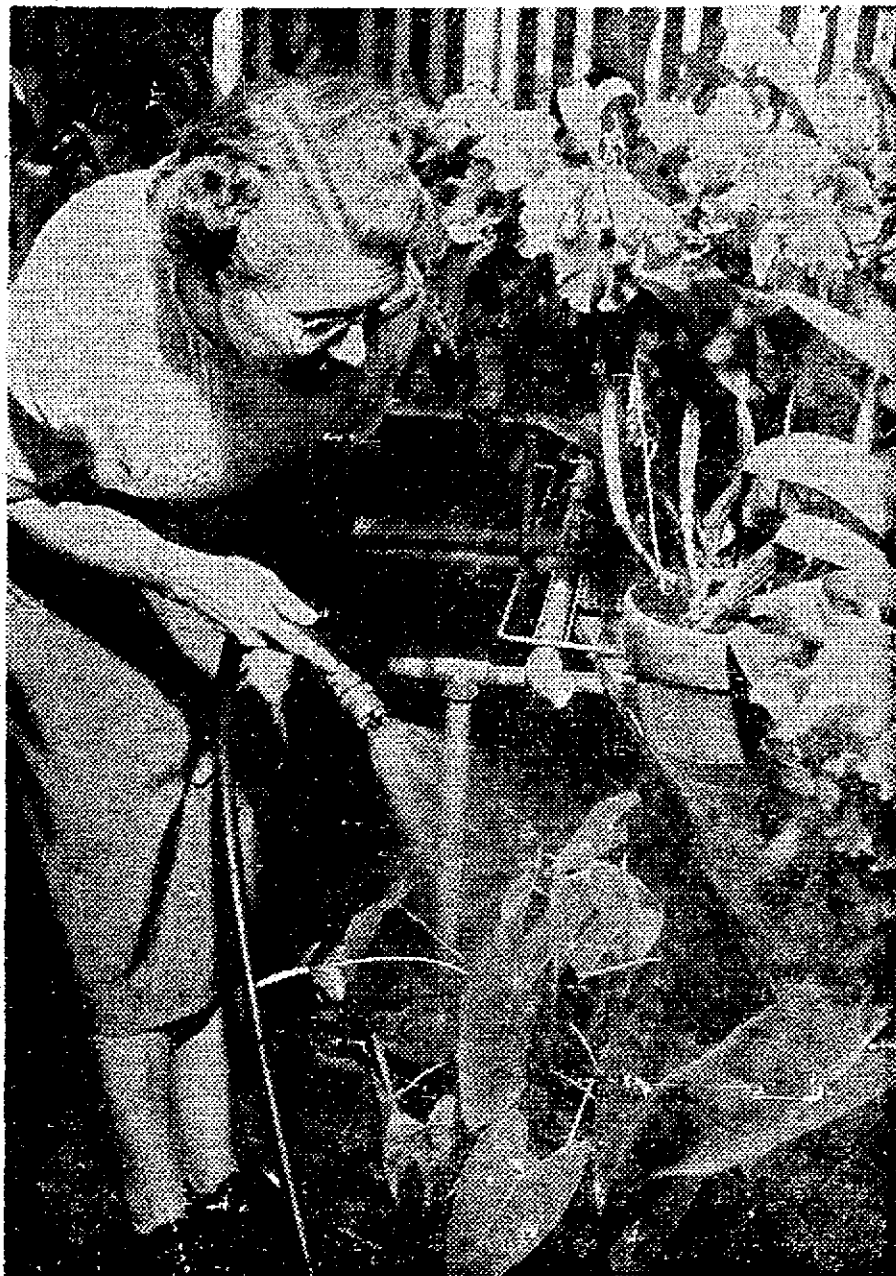

In the enterprise he is aided by Mrs. Brower, who has the traditional "green thumb" and who loves orchids almost as much as he does.

Brower already had a lath house. He covered the roof with glass and the sides with plastic screen. Summers he drapes netting under the ceiling as additional protection from too-bright sunlight. The netting, of course, is removed during winter months.

He bought an old coil water heater — about 35 years old, he thinks — from a salvage place, dug a pit under the greenhouse and installed the heater in the pit. Then he ran hot water pipes under the benches on which the orchids stand. Incidentally, "benches" is the correct word, he says; only a novice calls them "counters," "tables" or the like.

The temperature in the orchid greenhouse must not go below 60 or above 90 degrees, he says, and the humidity must be kept high, about 50 degrees.

"Three things are important in raising orchids," he says:

Orchids require humidity, so Mrs. Fred Brower sprays her plants to achieve such an atmosphere.

"Light, humidity and temperature."

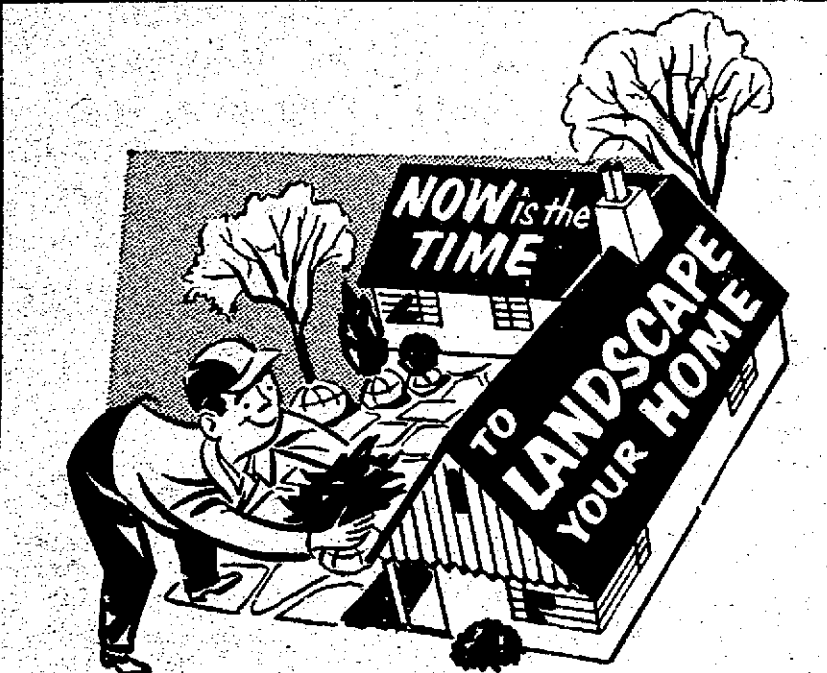

The hot water system is rigged so that it automatically goes on if the temperature drops to 59 degrees. To maintain the humidity, Mrs. Brower sprays the plants (not the flowers because water would spot them) with a fine spray at least once a day. In hot, drying weather she sprays the plants three times a day, and then she also sprays the floor to add to the humidity.

Brower specializes in Cattleyas, the most familiar kind of orchids, but he also has Cymbidiums, spray orchids and Cypripediums, slipper orchids. Only the Cattleyas now are in bloom, although the Cypripediums are budding, ready for blooming December through March.

He has orchid plants ranging from little fellows an inch and a half or so high, two years old, to plants about two feet high and which he estimates to be 20 years old. Orchid plants last practically indefinitely, he says.

He gets his plants by dividing the large plants and by buying (Continued on Page 25.)

SOVIET GALS HAVE MUSCLES

Russian Women Do Most Heavy Work

By TOM WHITNEY

LONDON—(AP). A large percentage of Russian women would never cause a stir at a U. S. beauty contest—unless the judges happened to be interested in muscles.

Most of Soviet industry and almost all of Soviet agriculture depends on women laborers. In fact, without the women to do the hard work, the giant Soviet industrial and agricultural programs would grind to a virtual standstill.

The Soviet union probably is more dependent on the labor of women than any other country of the world. And Russian women rank among the world's best female workers. They have replaced the 10,000,000 Russian men who died in the war against Germany.

The Russian working women are really tough! Short, and hefty for the most part, they do heavy tasks as part of their daily routine which many Western women would probably not be physically able to perform even if they were willing.

Soviet women are particularly active in the less skilled jobs. Take construction:

Much of the labor on Moscow's new buildings is done by women. The same goes for road construction. Most of the workers who trudge out in the winter to clear snow off city streets are women.

In farming, Soviet women perform a tremendous share of all agricultural work, both skilled and non-skilled. It's even hard to find male workers on some farms.

Some of Moscow's female street-cleaning gangs often are bossed by men, who stand by "supervising." Only once in a great while are the roles reversed with a woman overseeing male workers.

The Communist slogan of equality of the sexes seems to work one way only.

It's true that some women have gained fairly high positions in government administration, but they are far less numerous than Soviet propaganda would have us believe.

For example, there are no women among the "big nine"—the rulers of the USSR who make up the presidium of the central committee. Even when Stalin was alive, there were no women in the politburo. No Russian woman holds the rank of minister or ambassador.

Throughout the government and party organizations, the place occupied by women is not significant. But, on the other hand, Soviet women have great opportunities for education and advancement in many professions—far more than they had in Czarist days.

In most cases, Russian women view heavy labor as a privilege. They feel they have the right to show they can do it.

Many men in Russia are more than willing to let the women show what they can do, convinced that heavy labor is beneath their dignity and the proper province of females.

'Snow Treasure' Big Hit With Youngsters

By VERA WILLIAMS

The heroic story of Norwegian children who in the Nazi occupation of their country coasted through enemy lines on their sleds bearing a fortune in gold bullion to safety is a tradition today to 2400 Long Beach children. They saw it dramatized Saturday when the Long Beach Children's Theater, Inc., successfully presented "Snow Treasure" from the book by Marie McSwigan, script by Beatrice Lewis.

For the morning performance, Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium was filled to near-capacity by Girl Scouts and Brownies. In the afternoon it was open to the public.

The children were delighted audiences for the delightful play, groaning when luck went against the Norwegian children, cheering when they outwitted the Nazis.

Organized in 1947 to furnish live entertainment for children on their own level from their own favorite books, the Children's Theater, made up of adult volunteers, has presented 14 productions.

"Snow Treasure" will be repeated at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Nov. 14.

Bright Norwegian costumes and effective settings add to the drama of "Snow Treasure."

Heading the cast are Barbara Clark as Peter Lundstrom, stout-hearted young hero; Ethel Severson as Michael, who supplies much of the comedy; Irene Krancus as Lovisa, Peter's little sister, and Marjory Davis as Helga, a neighbor girl. These are the children, who, singing songs and jingling bells, go past the sentries transporting bullion from its hiding place in a cave to a snowman pit where it can be loaded onto a ship and taken to America.

Parts of the adults are taken by Marjorie Johnson, Leona Uhrig, Dorothy Frost, Jean Norris, Virginia Waters, Caroline Wagner and Katherine Shuman.

Special credit is given Ethel Severson who in three days' no-doubt took the role of Michael when June Collins was injured in a traffic accident.

Music, which is important in the play, includes "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," Richard Strauss; selections from "The Song of Norway," Edvard Grieg; and "Snow Man," a happy song composed by Charlotte DeComa, accompanist.

Marjorie Demler directs "Snow Treasure" and between acts fun is provided by Twirl and Twirl. One is a puppet and one a puppeteer and they are dressed exactly alike.

Curly of 'Oklahoma' Home Here for Visit

Philip Cook, Jordan High School graduate who toured four seasons with "Oklahoma!" is back from Houston, Tex., where for eight weeks he played in "Mr. Roberts" and danced in the American premiere of "Walk Tall," a musical of skits and sketches.

Of all the things he has done, "Oklahoma!" was the most fun, he says, because in it he had a variety of roles and he went a variety of places. He was in the chorus, he was an understudy to Curly in the ballet, he played Will Parker, and he was assistant stage manager. He toured the United States and Canada, and he went to Berlin. He played in every state except Maine, Florida, South Dakota and Idaho.

Celeste Holm went with the troupe to Berlin, playing Ado Annie, the part she had played when "Oklahoma!" opened in Berlin, the first and only time it was televised in its entirety.

"We played one week in the American sector, one week in the French sector and we went on a tour through the Russian sector," says Cook.

Cook toured New England in "Kiss Me, Kate" in the role of Bill Calhoun-Lucentio. He sang "Bianca," did a tap dance, a ballet and a little jazz.

At Houston he had the part of Willy in "Mr. Roberts."

He has danced on "Toast of the Town."

Cook, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oren C. Cook, 253 E. Plymouth St., was graduated in 1942 from Jordan. He appeared in "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" and "Susan and God" at the Community Playhouse. He was in the Navy, serving with the Marines and Seabees in Honolulu, Guam and Okinawa. When he returned, he was graduated from Pasadena Playhouse School of the Theater.

He is 5 feet 9 inches, with brown hair and hazel eyes. He is good-looking, and he is not married.

Gala Opening Set for 'Historama'

A star-studded invitational premiere in the best Hollywood tradition will be held Thursday night, Nov. 19, to mark the opening of "Hollywood: The Story of the Movies" at 6753 Hollywood Blvd.

Stars of motion pictures, television, radio and the music world will be on hand to see the four-floor exhibit of sets, props, scenes, costumes and technical equipment used in show business from 1903 up to the present time.

The stars will be greeted by actor Edward Arnold, general chairman of the exposition.

"Hollywood: The Story of the Movies" will be open to the public the following morning and daily thereafter from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

More than 44,000 square feet of floor space will be utilized to display the mammoth cavalcade of Hollywood's 50-year history.

Color-Conscious Freesias

MODERN hybridists have made the freesia color-conscious. There was a time, not so long ago, when the only available freesia was a white one. But thanks to California hybridists, freesias are now available in a wide range of gorgeous shades. You have your choice of white, yellow, bright red, clear blue, rose, lavender, pink and purple.

White freesias are well suited for cut flower arrangements as the flowers are somewhat larger than the colored sorts. However, all varieties may be used advantageously both indoors and in the outside garden. It is best to plant at intervals of every few weeks to obtain a succession of bloom.

Freesias started now should flower in about three months. The exact time of maturity depends on local growing conditions, such as soil and heat. Keep in mind that Southern California and the southern states are the only areas where freesias thrive outdoors during the winter months.

Southern California is perhaps the most important growing center in the country for freesia bulbs or corms, as they are botanically described. Freesias are natives of Africa — a long way from this state — but growing conditions of these two regions are comparable. That explains why freesias thrive here, growing almost like weeds.

DURING THE WINTER months freesias demand a sunny location. They require excellent drainage. The roots must not be exposed to standing water. A cool and moderately moist environment is what they like. After the flowering period — when the corms for next season's planting are being formed — plenty of sun and heat are required.

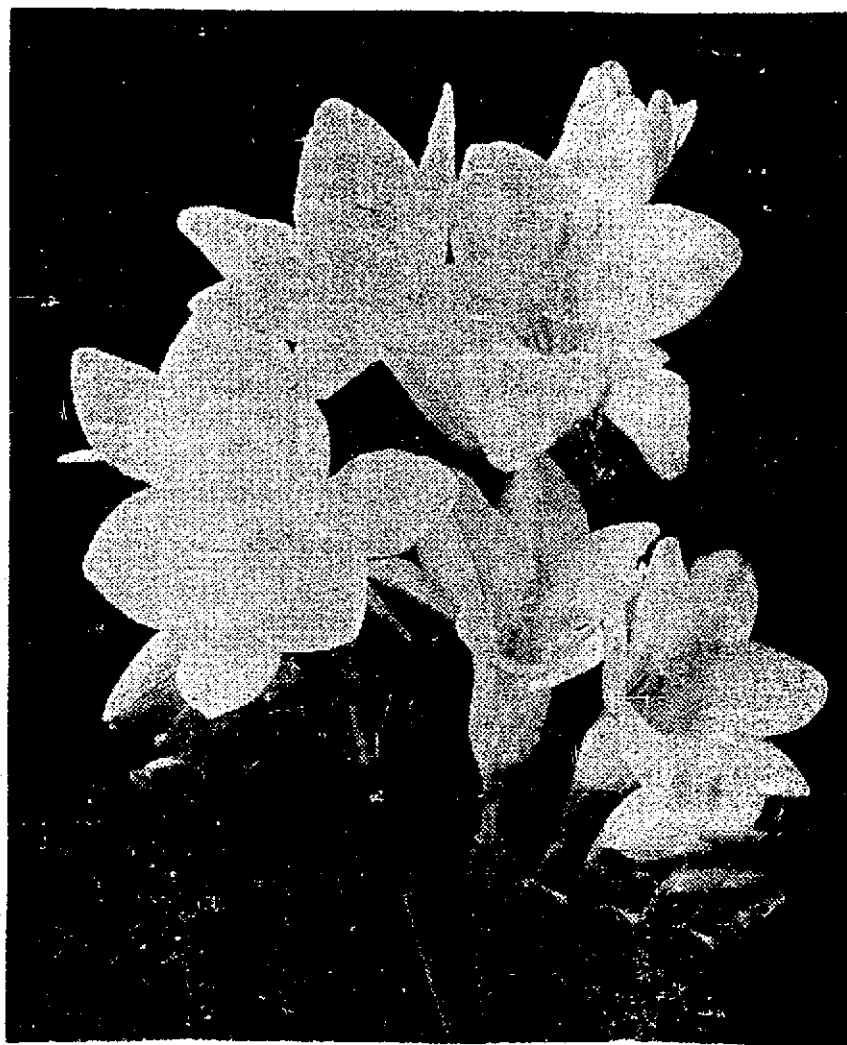

Freesias should be planted fairly close together. They may be massed for bedding or spotted here and there throughout your garden. The stems are quite wiry and seldom grow taller than about two feet. Space the corms from two to three inches apart and cover them with not more than two inches of soil. Light soils require slightly deeper planting than heavy ones.

A soil mixture containing sandy loam and coarse sand plus some bone meal or other comparable type of food should suffice. Freesias are fairly heavy feeders and require regular applications of plant food during the season. The flowers will be of high quality if the plants are fed when the buds start to show.

FREESIAS are propagated by corms which are quite small. They are just a fraction of the size of bulbs such as tulips and hyacinths. However, they are sold by size and the larger corms are naturally a bit higher in price. But for prize-winning blooms the difference in price will prove very small. Plant with the pointed end of the corms closest to the surface.

Keep the soil well cultivated where freesias are being grown. Stir the soil only close to the surface so the feeding roots will not be disturbed. Start cultivating at an early date to keep weeds down. It is easier to get rid of weeds when they are young than after they have become established. A mulch placed over the root area tends to cool the surface and conserve moisture.

Freesias are available in a wide range of colors, including white, yellow, red, blue, purple and others.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Nurseries now have available a wide range of established transplants. These include stocks, snaps, pansies, violas, calendulas, godetia and Iceland poppies. These plants will flower during the winter, a time when garden color is at a premium. Keep the ground thoroughly wet after planting so the tiny roots do not suffer for want of water.

Hedges such as boxwood, privet, cypress and myrtle may be trimmed at this time. Since their growth slows down during the winter months a good trimming now should keep the plants in good appearance until next spring.

Hawaiian ferns have become exceedingly popular during recent years. They are quite hardy and tolerate wind as well as low temperatures. They may be planted in either sun or shade.

Fuchsia Society

Long Beach Branch of the National Fuchsia Society of America will have its annual business meeting and election of officers at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at 728 Elm Ave.

President Carl A. Bjorkman will present the annual report of the club's activities and committee chairmen will give reports of work accomplished. Plans for the annual Christmas party and potluck dinner will be discussed and committees appointed to plan for the installation of new officers. Mrs. Monroe Hubbell, program chairman, will present a short program of interest to gardeners. Mrs. Carl Edmond, chairman, and her committee will be in charge of the coffee hour.

Orchids

seedlings. He has bought seedlings from Florida, Holland and Hawaii. He likes to tell about the time he sent an air mail letter on Friday to Hawaii, and the next Tuesday his order of 16 seedlings was delivered at his door. The air mail charge from Hawaii was $1.95.

Brower grows his orchids in osmndine, a fern which he says comes from Florida and along the New Jersey coast. It is porous. His system is to water orchids well once a week and then let them dry out before the next watering. This watering is an entirely different process than the humidity-spraying.

He has produced orchids ranging in color from lavender to red, and also has raised white, yellow and bronze orchids.

"Orchid-growing is no job for an impatient person," he warns. "It usually takes an orchid seven years to bloom, and it takes three to four months for a bud to open."

Independent-Press-Telegram Art Editor

Long Beach art exhibits this week:

- Pacific Coast Club Gallery, 850 E. Ocean Blvd.: Long Beach Art Association fall exhibition.
- Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.: California Water Color 33rd national exhibition.
- Spectrum Club Gallery, 225 E. Third St.: Paintings by members.
- Main Public Library, Ocean Blvd. and Pacific Ave.: Long Beach Academy of Art annual show.
- Hotel Lafayette Gallery, Broadway and Linden Ave.: Paintings by Helen Rousseau.
- Long Beach Branch Los Angeles County Medical Association, 814 Pine Ave.: Paintings by George Crowell.

SPECTRUM CLUB, organization of men artists (painters) will celebrate the 24th anniversary of the founding of the club with a banquet at 6:30 p. m., Wednesday, Armistice Day, in the Lafayette Hotel supper room. This annual banquet is the only function at which ladies are included and the members will be joined by their wives and friends in the evening's festivities.

Chester Smith, banquet chairman, has arranged a program to include "crits" of recent paintings by members and the showing of color picture slides of summer vacations of the members. R. V. Johnson and his Wranglers will furnish music.

President D. P. Durham will welcome guests. William J. (Bill) Wilson, charter member and co-founder, will talk on the club's founding and early history.

Edgar H. Lore and Harold Bragg are in charge of the reception committee.

PAINTINGS, water colors and drawings by students of the Long Beach Academy of Art will be on view through Nov. 30 in the art department lobby of the main library.

The show, installed by John Lynch, library staff artist, is an annual event at the library. It may be viewed from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. daily and between 1:30 and 5 p. m. Sundays.

Exhibitors include Karl Seethaler, Jack Pullen, Marion Davis, LaVerne Hansen, Frank Woelfel, Carolyn Clay, Ruth De-cow, Margarite Seethaler, Eileen Bolinger, John Lynch, Minerva Curry and Donna Harvey. Three pieces of sculpture by Clare Roberts are displayed.

Arrangements for the show were made by Mrs. Mary Pearson, librarian in charge of exhibits, and Karl Seethaler, director of the Academy of Art.

SAN PEDRO ART ASSOCIATION announces the opening today of a one-man show of 35 water colors by Alice Tenneson Hawkins. The exhibition will begin formally at 2 p. m. in the Association gallery, 820 S. Beacon St., San Pedro, with a tea honoring Mrs. Hawkins, a charter member of the 23-year-old San Pedro Art Association and its immediate past president.

Mrs. Hawkins has exhibited in the harbor area for many years. She is a graduate of the University of Washington and has studied with Arthur Beaumont and Caesar Hernandez. Her work has been shown at the Long Beach Municipal Art Center, Pacific Coast Club, Palos Verdes Library Gallery, Los Angeles Coliseum, Cabrillo Museum and San Pedro YWCA. Mrs. Hawkins has won awards in the annual San Pedro Fishermen's Fiesta art exhibition and in past Art Association shows. "Mrs. Hawkins' water colors are executed without affectation and with a spirit of sincerity that is easily transmitted to the observer," said Art Association President Jay Meuser.

On exhibition concurrently with Mrs. Hawkins' water color paintings is a display of rare stones and jewelry by her husband, Alvin Hawkins, an ardent member of both the San Pedro Lapidary and Mineral Society and the San Pedro Art Association.

The show will be open to the public daily from 1 to 4 p. m., except Tuesdays, through Nov. 22.

BENTON SCOTT will demonstrate painting a landscape in oil at the luncheon program of the Southland Art Association at 1 p. m. today at the Taylor Ranch House, 737 N. Montebello Blvd., Montebello. Mrs. Frances Mae Durr of San Pedro, Elsie Smith of Montebello, Ethel Turner of Whittier and Hazel Park of Los Angeles will be hostesses. All friends of art are invited.

TIME FOR DECISION

The UAW-CIO strike at North American is two weeks old.

It has cost North American employees more than $6,000,000 in wages. The loss of this income has hurt everyone in the communities where we operate.

THE STRIKE WAS CALLED BY THE UAW-CIO after 52 days of negotiations between the company and the union, during which the union flatly stated impossible economic demands and refused to agree to anything less. The strike was started before the union membership had been given a chance to choose between striking and accepting the company's final offer of settlement.

THE UNION'S ECONOMIC DEMANDS including a demand for a 26.2 cents per hour general wage increase, would add an estimated 72 cents per hour to the company's labor cost, and would increase the company's yearly operating cost by more than $95,000,000, which is equivalent to the cost of 475 F-86 Sabre Jets — more than eight times the number of Sabre Jets shot down by the MIG's during the Korean war.

THE COMPANY'S FINAL ECONOMIC OFFER provided wage increases ranging from 8 to 20 cents per hour. Included was a 4 per cent general wage increase PLUS an additional 4 cents per hour increase for highest rated jobs PLUS an additional 2 cents per hour under a more liberal cost of living plan PLUS an additional 5 cents per hour increase for leadmen. The company has put into effect its offer of increased wages, which gives North American workers pay of $1.50 to $2.47 per hour, as high as paid or offered in any of the airframe companies in the areas where the company operates. The company's economic offer also included increased group insurance benefits and more liberal holiday and vacation plans.

THE UNION'S OTHER DEMANDS included compulsory union membership under a full union shop; the creation of hundreds of new union representatives free to roam the shop on union business instead of working, and enjoying super-seniority over all other employees; the abolishment of all plant rules; and elimination of the no-strike clause included in previous contracts, thus giving union leaders the right to call strikes at any time.

NORTH AMERICAN CANNOT YIELD to the union's extreme economic demands and still maintain its competitive position in the airframe industry. The company will not yield to the union's other demands, which will increase the power of union leaders without regard for the interest of the company or its employees. We will continue to meet with the union at all times the U. S. conciliator feels that constructive progress could result.

THE COMPANY WILL CONTINUE to use every lawful means to get the plants back to full production at the earliest date.

IT IS NOW TIME for the men and women whose wages have been stopped by the action of UAW-CIO leaders to make their decision.

HERE, KITTY-KITTY!

Note to Mr. Bones: Your Medal's Here!

Mr. Bones: In case you wish to return to your old haunts in the Seaside Hospital storeroom, a beautiful bronze medal and citation await you.

It's the truth, Mr. Bones, and you can't be more flabbergasted than pretty Patricia Cline, your benefactor, who received them for you.

PATRICIA CLINE

Mr. Bones: It's Your Medal

Very, very sick, apparently with cat fever, you groped your way into the Seaside Hospital storeroom some 10 months ago and lay down. You were a stray, and nobody knows who told you it was a hospital, and you would get care there.

But you did. Blond, hazel-eyed Patricia Cline, the hospital's purchasing agent, found you, and the best medical brains of Seaside went to work on you, with even a little kibitzing from Irma Witke, superintendent.

You recovered and got to be a husky, good-looking cat. Then for reasons of your own, you disappeared.

Then you came home. The hospital rejoiced, and The Independent-Press-Telegram ran a story which reached the Puss'N Boots Bronze Award Committee.

Now you have been gone again for another two months. But the award wheels were moving and your award and citation came from Dorothy K. Smith, committee secretary, to H. F. Burmester, editor of The Press-Telegram, who likes cats and particularly likes those with enterprise.

Under blazing floodlights in the Indy-P-T photographic department, Patricia received citation and medal for you, Mr. Bones, in absentia.

In case you are interested, the medal has on one side a figure of a cat and on the other, a tribute to the way cats, and especially you, have contributed to human happiness.

The citation says "Where does a sick and homeless wanderer go? To a good hospital, if he is sensible. That's what Mr. Bones did..."

You'd better come back, Mr. Bones. You might even get a helping of steak and salmon along with medal and citation.

WHEN A local restaurant's French cuisine attracts gourmets from as far away as New York and Chicago, you can bet your last franc that it must be outstanding.

But "outstanding" is really too mild an adjective to apply to the food at Francois' Manhattan, 1909 E. Fourth St. "Remarkable" and "exceptional" are far more appropriate, especially when one is describing the Manhattan's specialty — Flaming Duckling with Bigardarde orange sauce.

This dish was originated by Frank Richmond, the Manhattan's owner. Guaranteed to make any palate glow with pleasure, it consists of a whole, beautiful Long Island duckling, roasted to perfection and served with yams and wild rice.

FRANK RICHMOND
Master of French Cuisine

Resting in splendor in a copper chafing dish, the duckling (which serves two persons) is rolled with its side dishes to the guests' table on a serving wagon. Then Richmond, with the skill of a magician, pours on the following liqueurs: Grand Marnier, Cointreau, Curaçao and brandy.

He touches fire to the dish and the duckling bursts into a blue flame which burns for approximately a minute. Then Richmond skillfully serves the delicately browned fowl and watches the expressions of delight in the guests' eyes as they savor the first mouthful.

Other dishes served at the Manhattan are just as pleasing. Soups arrive in tureens, permitting second and third helpings. The tossed salad bowls are things of beauty. And the anti-pasto trays—with stuffed celery, file of sardines, garbanzo beans, Greek olives and Italian peppers are out of this world.

The restaurant, which also serves luncheons, is open daily from 10 a. m. to 2 a. m. It is closed Mondays.

Tsagalakis' Field Goal Nips Tribe

Miller's Interception Paves Way for 23-20 Triumph in Final Seconds

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM — A toe was heard around the football world here Saturday when Sam (The Toe) Tsagalakis booted a mighty field goal from the 28-yard line with only 14 seconds left to play to give the University of Southern California an electrifying 23-20 victory over Stanford in a hysterically-played Pacific Coast Conference crucial before 79,015 wild-eyed fans.

The defeat derailed, for the moment at least, Stanford's headlong dash to the Rose Bowl and leaves final decision of the bowl issue up to the final two showdown games on November 21—SC vs. UCLA in the Coliseum and Stanford vs. California at Palo Alto.

Stanford and UCLA are now tied for the top spot in the conference with one defeat each . . . but the Indians still hold a slight edge in the Rose Bowl race because of their recent 21-20 triumph over the Bruins.

In order to set the stage for Tsagalakis' kick, we have to go back to the 4:46 mark in the final period.

That's when the Trojans knotted the count on a quick-striding 42-yard advance featured by two beautiful passes off the buck lateral series. George Bozanic whipped a 15-yard aerial to Ron Miller on the 27. Lindon Crow picked up a yard and Bozanic then hit Tom Nickloff in the end zone for the touchdown.

Tsagalakis' "pressure" placement was good and the score was tied at 20-20.

Disaster almost overtook the Indians on the first play following the kickoff. Ron Cook blasted through a gaping hole in the middle of the line and churned 26 yards to the 46-yard line, but fumbled when hit by Bozanic and Des Koch, and Crow recovered at that point.

However, the Indians shook off this bit of adversity and actually pushed the Trojans back into their own territory, Koch finally kicking from the SC 47 into the end zone . . . giving Stanford the ball on its own 20.

The Indians made one first down in moving out to the 42, but were then forced to punt . . . Garrett getting off a beauty that rolled dead on the SC 10.

Then came the first of the pulse-stirring events in the weird climax that left the crowd limp from excitement.

With two minutes remaining to play, Bill Riddle, listed as a fifth-string fullback, fumbled when hit by a ferocious tackle and Bill Rogers recovered for Stanford on the Trojan 20-yard line.

It looked like curtains for the men of Troy right then . . . and also the end of UCLA hopes of still winning the Rose Bowl bid. A score at that point would have given Stanford a free ticket to Pasadena.

But on the first play, End Leon Clarke crashed through the protective environs of Stanford's "cup" and spilled Garrett for a 15-yard loss back on the 35.

Then, with only a minute and a half left to go, Garrett, whose accuracy had been perfect up to then, flipped a pass out to his left intended for Rogers, but Miller rushed in to intercept and then streak 47 yards before being dragged down from behind on the Stanford 20-yard line.

There was only a minute remaining as the Trojans lined up. Everyone, of course, was looking for a pass . . . but instead SC sent Riddle straight ahead for five yards to the 15 as the second hand began to bear down on the "0."

Then the crowd knew what the Trojan strategy was in keeping the ball in the middle of the field when "The Toe" came running onto the field.

Troy was penalized five yards to the 20 for taking too much time . . . forcing Tsagalakis back to the 28-yard line for the crucial kick. With the goal posts in college ball stationed 10 yards behind the goal line, his kick actually was 38 yards in length.

That's an exceptionally long placement for a collegian, but with Bozanic holding, the little Greek kicker booted the ball squarely between the uprights for the three points that slammed the door of the Rose Bowl in Stanford's face if the remainder of the PCC race follows pre-season form.

There was just time enough left for the kickoff and Stanford had no chance of running it back when the Trojans laid down a "squib." Sam Morley returned only four yards to the Indian 44, fumbled, but recovered as the gun sounded.

Until Garrett's final pitch of this game was picked off by Miller, the Stanford quarterback had given the Palo Alto school one of its finest hours in sports with his greatest performance thus far.

He proved beyond a doubt that he is one of the top passers in football today as he completed 20 out of 31 pegs for three touchdowns and a total of 324 yards, a new Pacific Coast Conference single-game record.

His yardage figure via the airwaves betters the old conference mark of 308 set by UCLA's Bob Waterfield against Idaho in 1942.

Garrett pitched the Indians into command in the first quarter and, after the Trojans had surged into a pair of second-quarter scores, came back with two spectacular aerial maneuvers in the third stanza to give Stanford a 20-13 lead going into the final 15 minutes of play.

FANCY TRIO

Giving Garrett a tremendous assist in the aerial department were Stanford's fancy-catching trio of Morley, Ron Cook and John Steinberg.

Morley nabbed eight pitches for 147 yards, Cook four for 111 yards and Steinberg four for 37 yards. Each scored a touchdown.

Steinberg's first on a 15-yard toss in the initial period. Cook on a sensational 64-yard screen pass at the outset of the third quarter and finally Morley on a fantastic catch in the end zone of a 15-yarder.

Not even the most terrific rush of the season by the Trojan linemen was able to put enough pressure on Garrett to wipe out his pin-point accuracy until his last effort of the day which Miller intercepted. After hitting 10 for 20 in the first half, Bobby connected on 10 straight throws in the third and fourth quarters until the "fatal 11th."

The game was replete with spectacular action from start to finish. There never was a dull moment.

Stanford "rolled" with one brief Trojan move to the SC 45 in the opening minutes of play, then retaliated with one of its own from the 11 out to the 49 that almost paid off in a TD when Garrett unleashed the longest throw of the day which sailed over 55 yards in the air. However, Steinberg dropped the ball on the eight-yard line.

Stanford came right back the next time it got the ball to

Caroline-Led Illini Triumph

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(AP). Spectacular J. C. Caroline, skittish sophomore halfback, shattered the 30-year yardage-making record of Illinois' immortal Red Grange Saturday in leading the unbeaten Illini to a 19-3 Big Ten homecoming victory over Michigan.

Bruin Bowl Hopes Soar

UCLA's Rose Bowl aspirations were given a lift with Saturday's 23-20 defeat of Stanford by SC, the Indians dropping to but 33 percentage points over the Bruins.

Stanford with a 5-1 PCC record must still face California while UCLA has games remaining with Washington and the Trojans.

Illinois, with an unbeaten season record and 4-0 in Big Ten play, is the favored club for the Western Conference bowl bid.

49ers Pit Rushing Attack Against Ram Aerials Today

Two of professional football's most explosive attacks will be on display in the Coliseum today when the Western Division leading Los Angeles Rams host the San Francisco 49ers, the only club to have beaten them in league competition this season, nemesis to Los Angeles. He fired a crowd of some 65,000 is expected to be on hand for the 2:30 p. m. kickoff. The Rams are favored by 10 points to win the game, the current three-year game home stand.

Buck Shaw's San Franciscans, deadlocked with Detroit in second place behind the pace-setting Rams, boast the NFL's best rushing attack. Fullback Joe Perry is currently topping the league's runners with 532 yards in six games. Halfback Hugh McElhenny is in sixth place with 311 yards. Quarterback Y. A. Tittle's club to have beaten them in league competition this season, nemesis to Los Angeles. He fired a crowd of some 65,000 is expected to be on hand for the 2:30 p. m. kickoff. The Rams are favored by 10 points to win the game, the current three-year game home stand.

Orange Wins, 26-0

ITHACO, N. Y. — (UP). Cold and ten inches of snow proved no damper for fired-up Syracuse Saturday as the Orange swept past helpless Cornell, 26-0, on the pin-point forward passing of Pat Stark and the running of Bob Leberman.

L. A. was off winging to a 20-0 second-quarter advantage in that one, but the 49ers rallied to salvage their victory on a field goal by Gordy Soltau with six seconds to play.

Passing was the keynote in the two clubs' first league meeting. Ram Quarterback Norm Van Brocklin completed 20 of 34 for 285 yards and a pair of touchdowns while Tittle hit 16 of 31 for 188 yards and one TD.

Troy 'Shuns' Orders--Wrong Man Held Ball

By DICK ZEHRMS

The wrong man held the ball for Sam Tsagalakis—who was crying at halftime and was a much-pummelled hero at the end of the game—on his field goal from the 28-yard line which temporarily derailed Stanford's Rose Bowl express in the Los Angeles Coliseum Saturday.

Jess Hill sent Jim Contratto, third-string quarterback, into the game for a two-fold purpose at 14:46 of the final period—to stop the clock and hold the ball for Sam.

Those were "orders from headquarters."

Sam and George Bozanic unknowingly thought otherwise. Jim asked Sam who he wanted. Sam pointed to George . . . "let George do it," as the old saying goes.

Sam got George instead of Contratto, who was sent in as a sub for Des Koch. Jim, in turn, took Bozanic's place as a blocker.

All of this minor confusion, which produced the three points which broke a 20-20 tie with the Indians, rekindled UCLA's bowl hopes and sent 79,015 people into bedlam, bordering on insanity.

"I sent Jim in to stop the clock, knowing full well we'd get a five-yard penalty for too many times out," said the relaxed, grinning Hill between munches on a shiny, red apple in the raucous Trojan dressing room 10 minutes after the game became melodramatic history. "We had to have the three points. We couldn't risk a pass, perhaps an interception. It was RIGHT NOW!"

"I told Jim to hold the ball for Sam, but you know the rest of the story. I honestly thought Contratto, did the holding. I was too busy watching the blocking up front and then the course of the ball between the uprights.

"But that Garrett. Whew! He is the finest passer I have seen in college football. And he has two of the toughest, cleverest ends—Sam Morley and John Steinberg—a school could have. Stanford is the finest passing team I have seen, but I didn't think their running game hurt us much."

"All Sam could do after he kicked the field goal was jump straight up in the air," the enthused Hill continued. "But you should have seen him at halftime. He was crying because he had missed the conversion on our second touchdown. The scales

Spartans Crumple Buckeyes

COLUMBUS, O. — (UP).

Leroy Bolden scored three touchdowns here Saturday to keep Michigan State in the Big Ten title chase with a 28-13 victory over Ohio State that knocked the Buckeyes out of the race before 82,328.

A great Michigan State defense saved the day for the Spartans by twice stopping Ohio State on the 20-yard line when the visitors led 14-13 in the final period.

Bolden battled his way for 31 yards in five plays to cap the first touchdown drive with a three-yard plunge in the first period to put the Spartans in a lead they never relinquished.

The Michigan State junior from Flint, Mich., scored his second touchdown late in the second period on a 37-yard dash and added the clincher late in the final period with a 20-yard sprint.

Bolden put Michigan State in front the first time the Spartans got the ball, but Ohio State battled back with Bobby Watkins turning in an amazing display of power running. He made 53 yards on four plunges to end a 73-yard Ohio march with a 15-

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

AROUND AND AROUND WE GO ON THE SPORTS MERRY-GO-ROUND:

If the Chicago Bears had upset the San Francisco 49ers last Sunday, one of the biggest stinks to hit pro football in several years would have resulted.

Earlier in the week Howie Livingston, a former 49er back now with the Bears, was discovered taking notes on San Francisco defenses and plays during a secret drill. With him was an unidentified partner.

San Francisco's 24-14 victory, though, soothed the ruffled feelings of the 49ers and the latest word is that the incident probably will be dropped.

In fact, the 49ers now laugh about it. As one player says: "How stupid can George Halas be. If he wants to send a spy, why did he send a guy we'd be sure to recognize?"

DUQUESNE IS THE early favorite to win national collegiate basketball honors this season with Kentucky rated a strong second choice and Indiana, defending NCAA champion, third.

Dayton is ranked fourth in pre-season ratings followed, in order, by Kansas, LaSalle, Western Kentucky, Bowling Green, Oklahoma A&M and California.

Second 10, in order, are Niagara, North Carolina State, Santa Clara, Louisville, Wyoming, Fordham, Notre Dame, Louisiana State, St. Louis and Rice.

Meanwhile, the Minneapolis Lakers are once more favored to sweep all honors in pro basketball.

IT IS HEARD that a high-ranking mobster and eight of his henchmen attempted to "muscle in" on the wrestling setup in Southern California the past week, but were nailed by police. The story was hushed for some reason or another.

It is also heard that boxing is at a racket-infested peak.

The question arose recently as to how George Sauer was able to prime Baylor so quickly for the opening game in which the Texan smothered California, 25-0, and he explained how he accomplished it thusly: "On the first day of practice in September we picked 19 boys and concentrated on those alone in getting ready. Right of them played over 50 minutes against Cal."

Many local football fans are having their aerials fixed to tune in the new San Diego TV station (Channel 8) which is showing pro football games we don't receive on local stations. For instance, today's Ram-49er game will be aired over the Border City channel.

ALL-AMERICA candidate Ben Funderly quit undefeated West Virginia because he lost his starting tackle job to sophomore Bruce Bosely, who is called another Joe Stydahar. Bosely, incidentally, is the AP's latest "linebacker of the week."

It is said that Steve Owen, who reportedly has a lifetime job with the New York Giants, nevertheless, may step down at the conclusion of the current season. Morale on the club has hit a new low.

Middle name of rugged Notre Dame end Dan Shannon is Mary. Although Billy Martin of the Yankees was the hitting hero of the World Series, baseball men say he never will be more than a 250 batter because he can be pitched to.

Tony Trabert, presently considered America's No. 1 tennis amateur, is expected to bypass a return to his studies at the University of Cincinnati to enroll at either SC or UCLA.

ONE BUDDING New York baseball star, according to reports, has had his career slowed down because he discovered the bright lights of the big city.

Columbus' forward pass combination, Dick Carr to right end and Paul Hopp, is known as the "Drive-in battery" Carr-Hopp.

Payoffs of 100-1 in horse racing are more rare than people realize. There were only 13 such payoffs in the United States last year and there may be even fewer this year.

The California State League was left with only seven clubs recently when Santa Barbara dropped out, but officials now report the loop may expand to 10 teams next season with the addition of three of four cities interested in joining—Las Vegas, Porterville, Reno or Salinas.

There is a group in San Francisco reportedly serious about using Bay Meadows for major league baseball. Those behind the plan have even contacted Joe DiMaggio in regards to being a part owner and to manage the club if they can swing the deal.

Layne Leads Lions To 17-7 Win Over Colts

DETROIT—(UP). Quarterback Bobby Layne rifled two touchdown passes Saturday night as the defending National Football League Champion Detroit Lions came from behind to defeat the Baltimore Colts, 17-7, before 46,508 fans at Briggs Stadium.

Layne, who relinquished the starting role to second stringer Tom Dublinski, passed 10 yards to Halfback Bob Hoernschemeyer for a second period score and duplicated with an eight-yard toss to End Leon Hart in the final period.

Halfback Doak Walker provided the other three points which actually were the margin of victory with a 14-yard field goal in the third period.

LONE TD
Baltimore marched to its lone touchdown the first time it had the ball. Halfback Tom Keane pounced on Dublinski's fumble after the opening kickoff on Detroit's 38-yard line. Seven plays moved the ball to the end zone with Halfback Carl Taseff carrying the final yard. Buck McPhail booted the extra point.

The Colts continued to dominate play throughout the first period and wasted a scoring opportunity in the dying minutes when Quarterback Fred Enke's pass was intercepted by Jack Christiansen in the end zone.

Detroit knotted the score with less than two minutes remaining in the half on a 59-yard drive in 13 plays. The Layne-to-Hoernschemeyer pass climaxed the march and Walker converted.

End Jim Cain recovered a Baltimore fumble on the Detroit 46 midway in the third period and two Layne-to-Hoernschemeyer passes moved the ball to the Baltimore seven. The Colts stiffened and Walker split the uprisings for three points to send the Lions ahead for good.

Baltimore repulsed Detroit twice in the shadow of its goal posts, once on the two and then on the one.

But the Lions finally picked up an insurance touchdown with five minutes left to play after Christiansen intercepted an Enke pass on the Detroit 34. Hoernschemeyer raced 37 yards on the drive in scoring position and seven plays later Layne flipped a short pass to Hart for the score. Walker again converted to end the scoring.

STILLWATER, Okla. — (UP). Oklahoma A&M ground out a 72-yard drive capped by Halfback Dorsey Gibson's one-yard thrust to come from behind and defeat Wyoming, 20-14, Saturday before a homecoming crowd of 10,000.

Wyoming's five-by-five tailback, Joe Mastrogiovanni, battered five yards for one score, passed to Chic Magagna on a play that covered 77 yards for another and almost pulled the game out of the fire with his passing in the fading seconds.

Johnson in Easy Victory

MILWAUKEE — (UP). Harold Johnson, number one light-heavyweight title contender, won a unanimous decision Saturday night over Henry Hall in a dull, 10-round bout at the Milwaukee Auditorium before an estimated 2500 fans. Johnson weighed 174½, 9½ pounds less than Hall. Fans booed the bout virtually all the way, shouting such comments as "that's nice, don't fight" and "watch out, somebody might get hit."

Judge Ray Jackson and Billy Lachenmaier scored it 8-1-1 for Johnson and Referee Barney Ross had it 6-2-2 for Johnson. The Associated Press card showed 5-2-3 for Johnson.

Field Goal Edges Houston

TULSA, Okla.—(AP). Opportunist Tulsa cashed favored Houston's mistakes Saturday night for a 23-21 upset victory on End Tom Miner's 11-yard field goal in the second quarter.

The Golden Hurricane, a seven-point underdog, shot to the lead in the first five minutes and held the advantage throughout except for fleeting moments in the third period when Houston's third long march for Fullback Paul Carr's touchdown put the Cougars into a 21-16 lead.

Illinois scored midway in the first on a 75-yard thrust in 16 plays with Caroline bolting for 37 yards in four attempts. Bates eventually drilled across from the five. Ken Miller missed the conversion from the 25 after Illinois drew a holding penalty.

The incessant Illinois ground game added another touchdown in the second. It was a 95-yard drive in 18 plays, with Caroline totting the ball eight times and contributing a 32-yard sprint. With the ball on the 10, Caroline fumbled as he hammered through the line. The ball squirted a good eight yards into the end zone and Steve Nosek recovered for an Illinois touchdown. Miller booted the point.

Rice Rambles Over Razorbacks, 47-0

HOUSTON, Tex.—(UP). Scampering Dicky Moege, operating behind a swath-cutting line, piled up 201 yards rushing in little more than a half Saturday night to lead Rice to an easy 47-0 win over inept Arkansas before 32,000 chilled fans.

Halfback Moege, fifth-ranked rusher in the Southwest Conference, scored one touchdown on a 23-yard run in the third period and set up two others with runs of 50 and 23 yards.

Rice scored the first time it got its hands on the ball early in the first period and after a brief puzzlement over the Razorbacks' single-wing formation, took control of the game and never let go.

The score hardly indicated the Rice supremacy. The Owls had three touchdowns called back by penalties, one a 56-yard run by substitute halfback Horton Nestra, but promptly made back two of them.

David (Kosse) Johnson, the conference's leading ground gainer, easily kept his lead with 71 yards in 15 tries before he too left the game in the second half. He scored two Rice touchdowns and kicked two conversions.

Lamar McLean, who sparked in last week's Razorback victory over Texas A and M, and the loop's top offensive leader, racked up 101 yards passing and made four rushing.

Referee Mushy Callahan gave Johnson the nod, 57 to 53 points. Judge Leo Grossman gave Daniels the decision 58½ to 51½. Judge Jack McDonald's card also named Daniels the winner 57 to 53.

IN THIS CORNER

with DICK ZEHRMS

The trend is up—bigger paying crowds are watching local football games this season.

Attendance figures for 1933 local games, as compared to the 1932 games show: Wilson High, up nearly 50 per cent; St. Anthony's High, up 10 per cent; Jordan High, up 15 per cent; Poly High, up 17 per cent, and City College, about even.

The answer, no doubt, lies in the fact that the locals are enjoying more success on the field of play. By and large, they're winning, where a year ago some were suffering more defeats than the public wanted to see. Any way, it's encouraging.

In general, counter attractions have made it rather rough on the preps and jayees in recent years. They've had to avoid conflicts of all kinds, and eventually found in night football their salvation, this despite the fact that there is still opposition to nocturnal games and for a variety of reasons.

Then came television. The preps and jayees took another rap. Gates nosedived—alarmingly.

This reawakening of '33 can be pin-pointed directly to the moderate-to-exceptional success of the Bruins, Saints, Panthers and Jackrabbits to date. All four have been championship contenders in their respective conferences.

"Our increase of approximately 17 per cent at Poly High is from the general public," said Walter Holt, veteran Hare athletic director. "The records show that our student body ticket sales have been constant with very little deviation."

In five games, Wilson High has attracted 9511 paid admissions, a figure which does not include student body ticket sales of the opposing schools.

Wilson officials believe the big boost in Bruin attendance is partly due to increased student enrollment and partly to greater response from the general public.

Jordan High's Rocky Kemp, a noble Trojan of other years, is pleased with the Panther gates, stating:

"We're well satisfied. We've been ahead of Poly and Wilson in attendance figures the past four years. I think it's because we have more consistent followings from a more closely identified district."

"I think we had just about 50 per cent increase in the Jordan-Cornell and Jordan-Poly games this year. Well, do all right."

PERHAPS THE busier turn-out this season indicates a re-awakening in prep sports hereabouts. It's the heavy sign of the city's prep sports leaders are happy to see. They'd like nothing better than increased response from the public to their sports activities presented by stronger, more representative teams.

Once a football power in the Southland, but long since abdicated, Poly has had little success in recent years, either on the field or at the gate. Last year the Jackrabbits began the long climb back up the trail and hope to continue a one-way flight toward recapturing elusive honors.

Bell, who has been directing Poly's athletic policies since the late 1920s, now contemplates a return to Saturday afternoon football, if he can reach agreement with certain opposing schools.

"We would like to try Saturday afternoon football again this season," he said. "It'd be to have Poly play perhaps two games on Saturday afternoons as an experiment. Perhaps local fans would like it. I don't know. It's worth a try to find out."

SMALL TALK — Among the candidates for Nibs Price's defending Southern Division champion California basketball team are Bob Blake, 1932-33 star forward at Long Beach City College, and Wes Robinson, who captained the '34 UCLA freshman quintet. Robinson transferred to Cal after military duty, needs scholastic clearance.

M. Dykema of 426 E. Broadway wants me to assemble an All-Poly All-America, starting with Paul Cameron, Paul Larson and Paul Giel. I'm working on it, but so far have but one helper for this trio—Paul Matz, Notre Dame end. . . . There is no truth to the report that Illinois plans to change its football song to "Can't You Hear Me Callin' Carolina?"

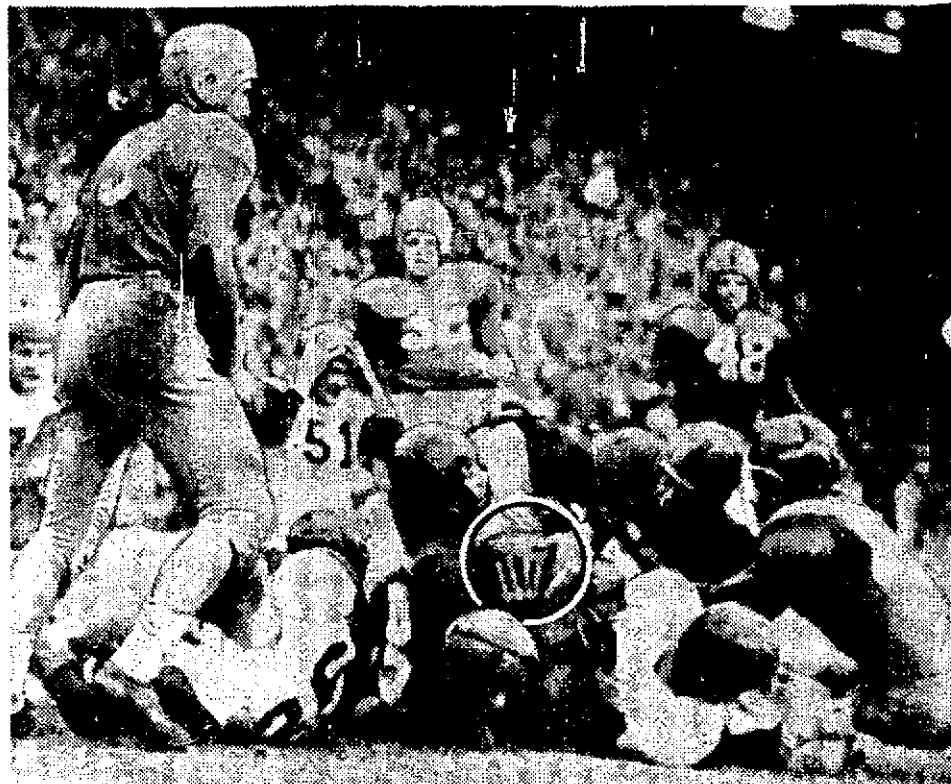

Reps are flying through the trap this day that the St. Louis Cardinals will fly out to Los Angeles in March for a four-game series with the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field. Honest. . . . The fourth and fifth practice games on SC's new basketball schedule are listed for our City College gymnasium against the University of Hawaii on Dec. 11 and 12. Yippee!

Oregon State's Sveide Halbrook was a 7-foot-7-inch, 240-pounder when he started at Portland High. Now he's up to 7 feet, 8 inches, which makes the Beavers drool when they think about the upcoming basketball season. . . . Ball control in a football game is one of Gene Rowland's pet theories—a good one. . . . A week ago one of the local schools sent a scout up to Compton on a Friday night to watch the Tarabees in action. He didn't. The game had been played that afternoon. . . . Jordan High was assessed a 15-yard penalty for "coaching from the bench" in the Poly game, and all Bob Farke, Jordan's coach, had done was holler at one of his players—

"Calm down, don't get in a fight." . . . Len Casanova's Oregon Ducks used seven different defenses whipping the Trojans. . . . So expect the best basketball team in 10 years.

That's what the man said, he did. . . . He did.

Wisconsin Pounds Out 34-13 Victory

EVANSTON, Ill.—(U.P.) Jim Miller, sophomore quarterback, demoralized the Northwestern pass defense Saturday, while Harlan Carl and Alan Ameche moved on the ground to give Wisconsin a 34-13 victory before 47,000 Northwestern homecoming fans.

Miller lofted dead-to-the-mark touchdown passes of 42 yards to Ron Locklin and 53 yards to Carl for the principal difference between the two teams.

Carl and Ameche kept the Northwestern defense loose with hard, slashing runs and trips around the ends. Carl's 44-yard run set up the third touchdown, which he made two plays later from the four. The Badger halfback gained 86 yards to lead his team on the ground.

Ameche displayed the usual plunging, driving style. He gained 81 yards and scored the Badger's last touchdown with a four-yard run with two minutes left in the game.

Miller completed nine of 16 passes for 153 yards. He easily outclassed the Big Ten's heretofore leading passer, Dick Thomas, who completed only three passes for 20 yards in 10 attempts.

The bright spot of the Northwestern game was the running of Lloyd Israels and Bobby Lauter and the defensive play of Ed Demyan and John Damore.

53-25 ROUT

Larson's Aerials Pace Cal

BERKELEY—(U.P.) Paul Larson, a pre-season candidate for All-America halfback who was put into the quarterback slot with misgivings, shattered a school passing record Saturday and Washington in the process as he led the revived Golden Bears to a 53-25 victory over the confused Huskies.

Larson passed for 240 yards to break the old record of 214 set by Bob Celeri against UCLA in 1949. He completed 10 passes out of 12 tries, and rolled his season's total to 1148 net yards passing. This also smashed a Celeri record of 1081 yards set in 1949.

Before the game started Larson already had broken the single season completion mark of 46 which was set by Billy Mair in 1951.

What had been billed as a fairly tight contest fell apart after Cal swept to a 13-0 lead in the first period, then exploded for three more scores in each the second and third quarters.

Larson scored one of the touchdowns himself, passed for two others and set up most of the remaining scores. Al Taylor, who caught two of the Larson aerials for touchdowns of 54 and 48 yards in the second was responsible for the other scores.

Jim Dillon smashed over for two touchdowns to get in on the carnage and Jim Carmichael, Don Marks and Cliff Wright scored the others.

The Huskies didn't get into the scoring column until Cal was leading 26-0. That was midway through the second quarter. Sandy Lederman passed 32 yards to George Black for the first tally.

Washington scored again in the third period when Lederman sneaked around left end from eight yards out against the Cal scrubs.

Roake made his on a two-yard quarterback sneak, while Sprague went over tackle for one and the six points.

IRISH NOD PENN, 28-20

Lattner on Rampage in Snow Battle

PHILADELPHIA—(U.P.) Top-ranked Notre Dame, with ailing Coach Frank Leahy back on the sideline bench, was pushed to the limit by a fired up Pennsylvania team on frigid Franklin Field Saturday but the Irish utilized the brilliance of Johnny Lattner to sweep to a 28-20 victory and remain unbeaten.

Lattner, a dazzler on kick returns, ran back a kickoff 92 yards for a touchdown, set up two other scores by sparking returns and then snuffed out a fourth period Penn surge with an end zone interception.

While 69,071 spectators, who braved a 7 1/2-inch snowfall sat in the stands—the stadium's 74,711 capacity was sold out three weeks ago—Lattner brought the Irish on even terms in the first period after Penn had started by scoring in the first four minutes of play.

After that, Notre Dame went into a 21-7 halftime lead, but the Quakers, 19-point underdogs, amazed by outrushing the Notre Dame first team all through the third period to score twice. But this burst by Penn went for naught when Lattner returned another kickoff 56 yards to set up what proved the winning touchdown.

For the opening minutes of the game, Penn looked worthy of meeting the best in the nation. Notre Dame had set itself in the hole by coming on the field late for a 15-yard penalty at the kickoff and then were penalized 15 for clipping on the game's third play. The Irish punted to the Penn 38 and the aroused Quakers marched 62 yards in seven plays to counter. The touchdown was a five-yard naked reverse scamper by Walt Koski. Ed Gramigna converted.

But on the next kickoff, Lattner took the ball on his eight near the sidelines, cut for the center and went the distance. Menil Mavrides converted to tie it up.

Then the Irish took command. Beginning on their own 32, they moved goalward on the ground with Neil Worden, Joe Heap and Lattner the workhorses. A pass gave Notre Dame a first on the 20 and Lattner took an aerial for a first down on the five. Quarterback Ralph Guglielmi scored from the four and Notre Dame went ahead to stay.

A 25-yard punt return by Lattner took the ball to Penn's 37 and the Irish moved to the three as the period ended.

With the change of goals, Leahy sent in a second team ensemble and quarterback Don Schaefer scored from the three extra point following a bad pass from center to give Notre Dame a 21-7 halftime lead.

The Irish first team came back to open the third period and Penn treated them like scrubs. The Quakers went 67 yards with Gramigna passing to Bob Felver for five and a touchdown.

Lattner then set up the victory when he returned the kickoff 56 to the Penn 26. Guglielmi passed to Heap for 23 and the clinching touchdown although Penn recovered to march 77 yards for a touchdown with Varatis ripping over from the one.

Duke got another break when Gattuso punted only 14 yards to the Navy 42. That threat was stopped on the Navy 15 when a pass play by Quarterback Worth Lutz to Halfback Bob Pascal was short by two yards of a first down and Navy took over on its own 15.

Navy got up steam when near the end of the third period carried to the Duke 16. But Gattuso intercepted the Navy pass to prevent a score.

Couldn't 'Teer' Away Bears Fall From Ranks of Unbeaten

NORTH CAROLINA STATE'S Will Teer fails to squirm out of clutches of Army's Pat Uebel, who stops him after eight-yard gain in second quarter.—(United Press Telephoto.)

Cadets Chalk Up Easy 27-7 Victory

WEST POINT—(U.P.) Army's Saturday and went on to an easy 27-7 victory.

For three periods the underdog Wolfpack made it close as the Cadets wasted a lot of motion in taking a 13-7 lead.

But with backs Tom Dell, Pat Uebel and Gerald Lodge grinding out huge yardage in the final period, Army launched touchdown marches of 49 and 48 yards to clinch an easy triumph.

It looked as though State might tie the score in the third period when Quarterback Eddie West passed the Carolinians down to Army's 13-yard line.

But a 15-yard pushing penalty set them back to the Cadets' 28 and West lost 12 more attempting to pass, ending State's last serious threat.

Army scored in the first period when Pete Vann connected with Don Hollender on a 59-yard play. The Wolfpack tied it up when West booted 63 yards with a punt.

Lodge boomed over to give the Cadets their 13-7 half time edge, and Lodge scored from the five and Vann plunged from the one in the last stanza.

AUSTIN, Tex. — (U.P.) Texas tumbled Baylor from the thin ranks of the nation's undefeated football teams, 21-20, Saturday and the difference was a guard's toe.

The guard was Phil Branch. He kicked three extra points to provide the margin by which Texas beat the nation's third-ranked team before 54,000 spectators.

Texas turned back a fourth-period threat by Baylor and its powerful backfield to throw the Southwest Conference race into a deadlock between Texas and Baylor.

Texas struck with touchdowns in each of the first three periods, with Fullback Douglas Cameron cashing in from the two in the opening quarter. Halfback Delano Womack plunging over from the one in the second, and a 23-yard pass from Quarterback Charles Brewer to Womack in the third.

Halfback L. G. (Long Gone) Dupre, a sparkplug of Baylor's backfield, counted all three Baylor scores, bouncing over from the two-yard line in the first and the seven in the next frame. They snared a 15-yard pass from Francis (Cotton) Davidson in the fourth.

But the difference was spelled in Baylor's first conversion try when 195-pound Texas End Carlton Massey, a defensive hero, rushed in and blocked the extra point try by the usually unerring James Ray Smith, a burly tackle.

Fumbles and pass interceptions cost Baylor dearly, as every member of the starting backfield bobbled the ball away to Texas, with two of them leading to Longhorn touchdowns. Another Texas score was set up by a pass interception.

In addition to his sparkling offensive play, Dupre also converted one. Smith came back after Baylor's 72-yard march in the third to kick the point.

Texas counted its touchdowns on scoring drives of 41, 71 and 33 yards, marching to its second score with only 11 seconds left in the second period.

Bruins' Bob Davenport Honored by LB Boosters

Bob Davenport, Jordan High's contribution to the UCLA Bruins, is the Long Beach Sports Boosters' "Athlete of the Month" for October, it was announced Saturday.

The hard-running fullback has been one of the big reasons for the Bruins' top-notch record this season. He's been second only to UCLA's great Paul Cameron in the running department.

Bruin Coach Henry (Red) Sanders speaks of Davenport, a sophomore, as one of the hardest working boys on the squad. Davenport's aggressiveness and hustle won him the starting fullback post from last season's regular, Pete Bailey, early this season. He's been a Bruin mainstay ever since.

Big Bob, 6 feet, 190 pounds, can get those extra couple of yards for a first down just about every time his number is called. His come-through gains in crucial moments have stamped him a real "clutch" player.

Second in the Boosters' balloting was SC's powerful guard, George Timberlake, also an ex-Panther griddler. A current Jordan grid star, Eddie Lauer, was third in the choosing. Mrs. Beverly Fleitz, Long Beach tennis star, was fourth.

Giel Spearheads Gopher Triumph

MINNEAPOLIS—(UP). Minnesota used Paul Giel as a decoy much of the time and discovered its other backs could also make yardage Saturday in toppling Indiana, 28-20, before 59,486 homecoming fans.

Giel still stood out. The All-America halfback candidate scored two touchdowns and passed for a third. But he frequently fooled Indiana by handing off to halfback Bob McNamara and fullback Mel Holme.

Giel's handoffs caught Indiana off guard. The first Minnesota touchdown found Giel carrying the ball only once in a drive that covered 33 yards. McNamara and Holme alternated at smashing Indiana's line. Holme set up the touchdown with a 19-yard run before plunging over from the one.

Oklahoma Outlasts Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo.—(UP). Oklahoma dug up a crushing ground attack in the closing minutes of the fourth period Saturday to beat Missouri, 14-7.

A crowd of 29,200 had seen an excellent Missouri line thwart the heavily-favored Sooners under a bright sun and in crisp 40-degree weather.

But Missouri, sparked by six-foot, 190-pound Vic Eaton at quarterback, made one mistake in the final period. Missouri had rolled deep into Oklahoma territory before the attack bogged on the Oklahoma 17.

A field goal then was attempted, but the kick was short.

This was the cue for Oklahoma to take over. And the Sooners did. They drove 80 yards on 16 plays for the tie-breaking touchdown and they were only five yards short of another score when the game ended.

Larry Grigg, veteran Oklahoma back, scored both Sooners touchdowns but it remained for Bob Burris, an 18-year-old sophomore, to be the work horse. Grigg took it over from the one for the decider, Buddy Leake converted.

Oklahoma scored first in the opening period, Grigg going over from the seven, Gene Calame converted.

Missouri tied it up in the second period and Eaton was virtually the whole show. From the Oklahoma 24 he passed 12 yards to Roy Schoonmaker. Then he passed to Pete Company in the end zone. Ed Merrifield converted to make it 7-7.

Wilson, Poly Clash Friday

Wilson and Poly clash Friday night at Memorial Stadium in the 22nd renewal of one of the most colorful rivalries, but the suspense usually associated with the annual tilt will be lacking.

The two schools are currently lodged at opposite ends of the Coast League ladder, with the Bruins riding along on the top and the Jackrabbits in the cellar.

Nevertheless, a season record have often meant little in this "game of the year" locally.

A 7-0 winner of last year's battle, Poly goes into the game with a 13-6 series edge. Two games ended in ties. The week's schedule:

FRIDAY

J.V. Football—Wilson at Compton, Downey at Poly, both at 3 p. m.

SATURDAY

Water Polo—A and B and C—Compton at Poly, Jordan at Downey, both 3 p. m.

Baseball—Wilson at Poly, Jordan at Downey, St. Monica at St. Anthony's, all 3 p. m.

SUNDAY

Varsity Football—Wilson vs. Poly at Memorial Stadium, Downey at Jordan, Compton at St. Monica, both 3 p. m.

Water Polo—Wilson at Jordan, 3 p. m.

Cross Country—Poly vs. Wilson at Recreation Park, Downey at Jordan, both 3 p. m. enough to lead the National Football League in point production with 195. has been sparked by the aerial combination of Van Brocklin to Ernie Eroy (Crazylegs) Hirsch and Bob Boyd and the running of Fullback Deacon Dan Towler and Left Half Volney (Skeet) Quinlan.

Towler, the circuit's top ground gainer in 1952, is making a late bid to repeat. He is now in second place behind Perry with 396 yards.

McElhenry and Perry are two of the finest grid articles to ever come out of the Southland. Husting Huth earned All-City honors at Washington High and then went on to star on Compton College's Junior Rose Bowl championship club of 1948 before moving to the University of Washington for All-America honors.

The fleet, hard-hitting Perry picked up prep honors at Los Angeles Jordan High and also was a sensation at Compton College. After a stint in the service he joined the 49ers in 1948 and has been their workhorse for the past six years.

Only end Tom Fears and line-backer Lewis (Bud) McFadin are definitely out of Sunday's game. Fears will not rejoin the Bruins until the game with Baltimore on Nov. 22, having been placed on the injured list after sustaining a back injury in Detroit three weeks ago. McFadin suffered a severe "charley horse" in last Sunday's 37-24 win over the Lions and will be sidelined for at least three weeks.

Today's game will mark Los Angeles' final home appearance until they tackle Baltimore Colts on Saturday, Dec. 5.

Tsagalakis' Boot Brings Troy Win

charge 67 yards in nine plays, the ball with a 67-yard advance in 10 plays that was culminated by Aramis Dandoy's sweep 22-yard gain, hit Cook with a screen pass for nine more, fired a 12-yard to Morley on the 15 and then passed to Steinberg for the score at 12:20. Garrett added the extra point.

That was the signal for the Trojans to get going.

They hammered their way 53 yards to the Stanford 23 before being held for downs.

BOUNCES BACK

They bounced back the next time they gained possession of the ball with a 67-yard advance in 10 plays that was culminated by Aramis Dandoy's sweep 22-yard gain, hit Cook with a screen pass for nine more, fired a 12-yard to Morley on the 15 and then passed to Steinberg for the score at 12:20. Garrett added the extra point.

Key plays in the march were Dandoy's "screen" to Jim Contratto for 11 yards, Dandoy's 16-yard sprint to the Stanford 41 and Contratto's 22-yard aerial to Dandoy on the 14-yard line.

The Trojans rocketed into a 13-7 lead at 11:41 of the second session on one of the most spectacular plays of the day.

A 33-yard aerial strike from Bozanic to Crow off the back-lateral series.

Crow took the ball on the Stanford 40, cut back when his "normal" path was shut off and outraced the Indian secondaries to the goal-line. Tsagalakis' kick was wide.

It appeared as if the Trojans were in complete control of the game when the two teams left the field for the intermission, but the Indians stunned SC with a "haymaker" shortly after the third quarter got under way from which the men of Troy actually didn't recover until Stanford had pulled out to a 20-13 lead.

The Trojans had kicked the Indians into a hole on their own 16-yard line when the "Garrett Air Corps" struck again.

SCREEN TO COOK

This time it was a screen pass out to Cook, who caught the ball on the line of scrimmage and then, accompanied by four blockers, proceeded to thunder 84 yards for a touchdown. Garrett's kick was wide, leaving the score tied at 13-13.

But the Indians were on the move and the next time they got the ball they were off to the races again.

From the Stanford 15, Garrett passed the Indians out to the 50-yard line with three short pitches to Ernie Dorn and Cook, then rifled one to Morley that carried 39 yards to the 11-yard line. Two plays later he fired a bullet into the end zone that the brilliant Indian left end nabbed with an unbelievable diving catch that no doubt will earn the rating of one of 1953's greatest receptions.

Garrett's kick this time was good and Stanford was back out in front by seven points with six minutes and 10 seconds left in the third heat.

Thus, the scene was set for the Trojans' great comeback in the "last act."

Stanford started the final quarter on its own 15 following a punt. The Indians zoomed out to the 41 on Garrett's 27-yard pass to Morley, but were shoved back into the hole on a 15-yard holding penalty and Orlando Ferrante's savage "rush" that downed Garrett for a 14-yard loss on the nine-yard line.

Garrett then punted out to the 42... and three plays later Bozanic had passed the Trojans into the 20-20 desert track that preceded the wild and woolly conclusion to the most thrilling college game of the Coliseum season.

SC's victory, incidentally, kept the Coliseum slate clean of a defeat by a local team this season. The Trojans, Rams and Bruins have won every game they've played on their home field this year.

Match Race at Caliente Today

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico—Presidio Stable's Magic Lead drew the No. 1 post position for her mile match race with Rex Ellsworth's Ara Time here today.

Ara Time is famous for her fast breaks so the draw by Magic Lead's trainer, Forest Burkholder, could have considerable bearing on the outcome. Both horses went through their final practice runs Saturday.

Scheduled good weather should mean a fast track and the biggest crowd of the season for the 11-race program. Two other strong attractions are billed with nine juveniles racing for the Flinders Purse, a mile and 70 yards, and ten sprinters in the six-furlong Armistice 'Cap.

Hall Wins 3rd 2-Minute Mile

INGLEWOOD — The triumphant return to Southern California of the world's richest trotting horse, Pronto Don, was overshadowed Saturday at Hollywood Park as Western Harness Racing Association's 27-year-old driving sensation, Don Hall, drove his third two-minute mile of the meeting.

Pronto Don won his 10th victory of the season with ease in the $12,850 Los Angeles Stake, sending his record lifetime earnings over the $280,000 mark. But young Hall, a native of Bucyrus, Ohio, who is making his first appearance in major league harness racing this season, stole the spotlight.

The slim, little reinsman piloted Mr. Dean, a five-year-old gelding stallion from the powerful Saunders Mills Stable of Toledo, Ohio, to victory in 1:58 3/5 in a mile free-for-all named the Billy Direct in honor of harness racing's fastest horse.

Warriors Rip Cal Ramblers

BERKELEY — (UP). The Fort Ord Warriors powerful team ran over the University of California Ramblers, 40-7, Saturday in a preliminary game to the Washington-California encounter.

Olle Matson, formerly of the University of San Francisco, ran 54 yards for one of the two touchdowns he scored.

Pat Cannarella, former Southern Cal line-backer, went into the backfield and plucked four yards for another Warrior score.

Dave Mann, former Oregon State star, Jack Price, from LBCC and University of Redlands, and Charles Holloway, formerly of Fullerton JC, also counted Warrior TDs.

The Ramblers were the first rival to score against the Warriors this season.

A 71-yard pass play scored for the Ramblers. Quarterback Hugh Maguire threw it to End Johnny Escano.

RACE ROUNDUP

Find Wins Empire 'Cap For Vandy

NEW YORK — (AP). Alfred Vanderbilt's Find sloshed to victory in the $50,000 added Empire City Handicap Saturday and moved his owner's earnings to near the $1,000,000 mark for the season. Find led from start to finish over a track sloppy from yesterday's rain and snow.

Despite the horrible weather conditions, some 20,507 saw the race.

Find, a three-year-old, and ridden by Eric Guerin, triumphed by a half length over the Valley Farm's Impasse, with third money going to Mrs. Harry L. Nathenson's Guy, three lengths further in the rear.

The winner was the favorite and returned $5.40, $3.50 and $3.10. Impasse paid $3.80 and $3.30 and Guy $11.30 to show.

Hasty Road Ramps In

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(UP). Hasty Road, leading two-year-old money winner, added to his laurels Saturday when he sped to victory in the $25,000 added Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes at Churchill Downs as highly regarded Fisherman wound up in a dead heat for fourth.

Off as the 7 to 5 favorite, Hasty Road, owned by Hasty House Farm and ridden by Johnny Adams, defeated Goyamo by one and one-half lengths in the mile event. Goyamo finished five lengths ahead of Outsider Pine-ture, who defeated Homestake and Fisherman for show money by a head.

Hasty Road returned $4.80, $3.00 and $3.00. Goyamo paid $3.80 and $3.60.

Determine in Victory

SAN MATEO—(UP). More than 15,766 fans watched Willie Shoemaker lead Determine home to a length and a half victory in the $10,000-added Robert O'Brien Handicap Saturday at Bay Meadows.

Zee Bull was second and James Session third in the field of 13 two-year-olds.

Shoemaker rode five winners to boost his total to 430 for the year.

Snow Halts Classic

LAUREL, Md.—(UP). A six-inch blanket of snow covered the turf course at Laurel Race Course Saturday, forcing postponement of the $65,000 Washington, D. C. International until Wednesday.

Crafty Admiral, owned by Charfran Stable, remained a 2 to 1 favorite to win the first renewal of the International Classic.

Hydrogen Top Money

MELBOURNE, Australia —(UP). The immortal Phar Lap's money-winning record was wiped off the Australian record books Saturday when Hydrogen, the latest glamor horse "down under," won the C. B. Fisher plate at Flemington.

Hospital, 68 Medical Offices Next Construction in Lakewood

Construction is to start shortly on the first 100-bed unit of the Lakewood Center Hospital, it was announced Saturday, and with the hospital plans now are to construct 10 one-story buildings to house 68 doctors' offices adjacent.

Plans for the hospital have been sent to the state for approval and George Schechter Associates, arranging the construction of the hospital, said a lease has been signed by Lakewood Hospital, Inc., to operate it. A second unit will increase the hospital to 250 beds.

Jerome Paul is president of the hospital group and Hutton Figueras is secretary. An office of Redondo Beach will have been opened at 453 S. Spring St., Los Angeles.

Plans for the doctors' offices are on drawing boards of architects. Originally the plan was to construct a 13-story medical center for the doctors' offices.

Although not ready for an announcement, it is known that negotiations are nearly complete for another major department store for the center.

Next formal opening will be the 30-lane Lakewood Bowl on Nov. 20. The alleys are now in use but the formal opening is delayed until all work is completed.

Construction is nearing completion on 25 shops in one of the malls adjacent to the Peoples Bank and work has been started on another two mall, 320 feet by 80 feet which will be toward the Lakewood Bowl at the east side of the center.

Leases were signed this past week with several firms for space in the center. In the mall nearing completion the firms will include Beal's Department Store, Holiday Shoes, Judy's Sports, C. H. Baker's Shoes, Comar's Children's Shoes, Anticipation Shop, Helen Grace Candies, Melody Dress Shop and Thom McAnn Shoes.

In the east mall, for which construction is just getting well under way, leases for store space have been signed with Revyn, Jacquan Paints and Wallpaper, Col. George F. Taylor's Quality Meats, Bud DeCannis Hair Styling, Gordon's Barber Shop, Sav-On Family Shoes, Lakewood Center Stationers, Ranger's Chow Mein, Lakewood Center Tasty Freeze, Caltex Curtains, Slenderella Dress Shop, Gilbert's Hobby Shop, Choate's Doughnuts and Hawkins Photo Shop.

Two new subdivisions for the Lakewood area will be one of 20

Wide Selection Offered

COUNTRY COMFORT characterizes the three-bedroom, two-bath homes of Lans-Dale Farm Estates in Santa Ana, according to Pioneer Land & Realty Co., sales agents. Located near 17th and Bristol Sts., the homes offer a choice of 15 individualized elevation styles. Veterans may buy with no-cash-down terms.

'Remote' Home Now Close Because of New Freeway

Lans-Dale Farm Estates, new community of 238 three-bedroom, two-bath homes, "a nothing down" for veterans deal, is attracting more than half the buyers of the homes from the Long Beach-Los Angeles area.

It was noted by the Pioneer Land and Realty Co., sales agents, that most purchasers are attracted by the convenience of the Santa Ana Freeway and the special values in more remote sections.

Homes in the new community, situated at Bristol and 17th Sts., in Santa Ana, are priced from $13,305 and available to veterans for nothing down except the initial outlay for standard costs and impounds.

Stratford Square Is Attracting

Steady sales in Stratford Square, the Cunningham Co. development, show that home buyers appreciate many advantages offered in the FHA community, reports Walker & Lee, Inc., the sales agents.

Good neighbors are assured, the company points out, for responsible people who are able to make a sizable down payment in their home investment, are buying the homes. Those folks will desire to keep their homes and neighborhood attractive.

Stratford Square is in the city of Long Beach and enjoys the benefits of the municipality, the agents point out.

This is one of the relatively few FHA communities. It is on colored TV is here, has a long Bellflower Blvd., three blocks south of Spring St. Many floor plans are available with 2, 3 and 4 bedrooms and two baths. All sites are large and features include large picture windows in the living rooms, extra large kitchens and spacious patios.

Shea Goes to James Motor

Frank James, owner of the James Motor Co., 1760 American Ave., announced this week that Larry Shea has joined the company as general sales manager.

James not only operates the "Busy Corner" in Long Beach, but he also is the owner of the Constitution Finance Corp., 1589 American Ave. He has been in the automobile business in Long Beach for 17 years and lives at 280 Venetia Drive, Naples. He has two sons, 17 and 16, both in Wilson High School.

Hair Stylists in New Home

Planned and constructed for efficiency and comfort for the patron, the new home of Cooper's Hair Styling, 620 Pacific Ave., is drawing wide comment. Ralph and Lucinda Cooper, the operators, recently moved into the modern structure. The exterior is of cement block construction. A large plate glass window with bamboo drapes in the reception offers patrons a relaxing out-of-door view. The Coopers' former location was at 125 W. Fifth St.

Builders Exchange
Members of the Builders Exchange of Long Beach will hear all about hunting at their dinner meeting Monday night at the Lafayette Hotel.

Cigaret Firm in Expansion

Expansion of the Long Beach Cigaret Service, Inc., into new quarters at 1700 Daisy Ave. is announced by George M. Seddman, president. Clarence Ball will continue as manager. The new building which was arranged through Norm Masterson of the Bill Brooks Co., industrial realtors, provides 6250 square feet. The company will use eight trucks and 20 employees. Vending of other products is expected shortly.

Two Promotions Here by Bank of America

Two Bank of America promotions were announced here today. All 15 of his years with the bank, Charles A. B. of A. have been at the same branch. B. is now assistant manager and Jack Stanley at the Main Branch moving up to assistant cashier.

Gillespie is well known in Long Beach, having been with the bank for 30 years. He was with the old Marine Trust & Savings when it was sold to the Bank of Italy and then came to the Bank of America. He is now assistant manager of the Long Beach branch.

Irvin C. Baechold, 850 W. Burnett St., has been appointed associate director of special activities for the Los Angeles Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants. He is chief accountant with American Latex Products Corp. in Hawthorne.

Home Savings and Loan Association has passed the $125,000,000 mark in resources, reports Kenneth D. Childs, executive secretary. Childs came to Long Beach to personally thank Dwight E. Jenkins, manager of the branch at 201 E. First St., for the part the local office had in the increased business this year. A gain of $23,000,000 has been shown since Jan. 1. The company has seven offices in Southern California.

George N. Gibbs of Bethel, Conn., National Bank has opened his office in Beverly Hills for the Charles A. Jr., who is in college. Halperin & Co., mortgage specialists.

Edwin Simons of the Long Beach office of Insurance Securities Inc., Trust Fund has received a $1000 bonus for having written over $1,000,000 worth of new business.

When Jack Stanley came to Long Beach and went to work for the Bank of America, Fourth and Pine Ave., he really got a "promotion" before he started. He might have been employed this year, top as a messenger but because of his two years of banking experience in the company, he was elevated to "batch clerk." To the outside, the job meant just that. There was a "batch of work."

The past week Jack received another promotion, to the position of assistant cashier. He may be facing another "batch of work" in his new position but associates say he'll tackle it with vigor. Looking young for a banker with 17 years of experience, Jack will serve as assistant operations officer of the big branch. His home is at 376 Grand Ave. Stanley and his wife

COUPLE KEEPS HOME THREATENED BY FALSE DEED

TITLE INSURANCE STANDS BACK OF STILL ANOTHER SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA POLICY HOLDER

Jack and Genevieve G—invested most of their savings in a small home near Los Angeles. Two peaceful years went by. Then one day an attorney called Mr. G— and said his client claimed she had never signed the deed for the house! Mr. G— had his title insured with Title Insurance and Trust Company, and he asked us for a full explanation—fast. We went right to work and traced the original owner. We discovered that he had forged his wife's name to the deed when he had separated from her some months before. Although we had relied on a forged deed, we were obligated to make good on it. The former owner's wife agreed to accept one-half of the net amount received by her husband—which we paid her. Jack and Genevieve G— are still living in their home... grateful that their bank had the good judgment to insure title to it with Title Insurance and Trust Company.

TITLE INSURANCE RATES IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA ARE FAR LESS

For 60 years it has been our job to help make land in California a safe investment. As a result, you benefit...for today the cost of title insurance in California is now well below most other populous U.S. areas. This means that title to your property can have the protection it deserves—inexpensively.

ENTERS ROAD RACE—Two stock Lincoln Capris driven by Jorge Descotte and Pablo A. Berger, nationally known drivers from Argentina, will represent our local Lincoln-Mercury dealer in this year's Mexican Road Race.

SIGNED to drive for Harbor Lincoln-Mercury in the big Mexican Road Race are Jorge Descotte and Pablo A. Berger of Argentina. Each will be in a Lincoln Capri.

coln-Mercury dealer in this year's Mexican Road Race. Jorge Descotte is ranked as the No. 2 driver in Argentina and when he isn't driving, he assumes the duties of mayor in his home town.

Jay Walker of the Harbor Lincoln-Mercury Co. will take motion pictures of the entire road race from a low-flying plane.

DISCLAIMS MERGER RUMORS — In a speech before Southern California Nash dealers and members of the press, George W. Mason stated "Nash now is in its fifty-second year and Kelvinator is in its fortieth year. Nash has grown consistently bigger despite the continued growth of the larger companies. Nash Motors has endured through two major depressions and two world wars. And I want to tell you right now, I haven't the slightest doubt about both Nash and Kelvinator staying in business and continuing to progress."

"I also want to say to you most positively that Nash Motors' future will not be dependent upon merger with any other company. Because Nash Motors is part of the much larger Nash-Kelvinator structure we feel we are the strongest of the so-called 'independents.' If there is a merger at any time in the future between Nash and any other automobile company, it will be in the best interest of Nash and Nash dealers; otherwise it will not be considered."

"RALLYE INTERNATIONAL"—Art Stephan, who formerly wrote this column and who now works for the papers' representatives—Ridder-Johns, Inc., in Los Angeles... took off for the rallye in a Jovett Jupiter roadster borrowed from local dealer Dick DeBelle of Consolidated Motors. But as a race driver Art makes a better columnist as he didn't even come close to the rallye itself.

ALONG THE ROW—Lloyd S. Lee, formerly a DeSoto dealer in Moorehead, Minn., has joined the sales staff of Marshall-Campbell, local DeSoto-Plymouth dealer. Charles Hubbard, of General Truck Sales reported that October was the biggest month in the history of the firm for the sales of parts and service. The sales force of Ridings Cadillac held a dinner meeting Thursday which was attended by J. J. Brynes, merchandising manager and I. R. Westwood, wholesale manager of the Cadillac Division of General Motors. The Chevrolet dealers of Southern California furnished sixty new Chevrolets for USC homecoming celebration Friday, prior to the USC-Stanford game.

Nice to see genial Mike Salta, general manager of Harbor Lincoln-Mercury back on the job after an illness of two weeks. Robert Bailey and Thomas Brown have joined the new car sales staff of Belmont J. Sanchez Studebaker Company. Campbell Buick have leased the lot adjoining their new building on American Ave., which will now give them over 300 feet frontage. The construction on the new building is running on schedule and Charlie Campbell hopes to move in about the first of the year. Lyle Southwick, sales manager for Corvair Chevrolet announces the following new additions to his present sales force: G. Herber Thompson, Bob Fuller and Bill Teske.

Bonded Homes Newest Unit Fullerton Tract Open

With sales of $5,000,000 made in three weeks, the fourth unit of Bonded Homes' latest program in Anaheim is 40 per cent sold out, according to C. Fred Smith, president of the development firm. The company's three other units were sold in a short time and this latest development, still under construction, appears certain to be sold out shortly. This latest community development features three three-bedroom and bath and one-half furnished models complete with walled brick patios, sunken barbecues and attractive landscaping.

More Mirrors for Homes

Look for mirrors to leap back into the home decoration spotlight this fall. That's the advice of interior decorators who maintain that home fashions are veering toward "practical elegance." The accent on elegance naturally will bring about greater use of mirrors to reflect the beauty of a room setting, decorators in leading department and furniture stores say. During the week of Nov. 2-7 special displays reflecting new trends in furnishings will be shown in stores.

New Advertising Head for Market

Robert Mann has been named advertising manager for the McDaniels Markets, it was announced by Albert L. Wolins, general manager. Mann attended San Jose State College, school of advertising and journalism, was formerly associated with May Co., Los Angeles, as divisional advertising manager and also with W. & J. Sloane, Beverly Hills. He served five years in the Army, three in combat. Mann makes his home at 11214 Segregal Way, Culver City. Mann replaces Edward Belford, who joins Frank Oxart Productions, Hollywood.

Used Cars in Bargain Sale Here

Offering the greatest bargains of the year, Long Beach used car dealers today are launching an eight-day selling event which will feature "Green Tag Specials."

Prices on every car sold in the special will be reduced by at least $100. Some will have even greater reductions.

With a huge stock of good cars on hand, the dealers have launched the special event for a double purpose. They are cutting down on inventories before the rush of new cars brings more trade-ins to the lots. They also want to stress the reasonable prices offered on a second car for a family.

Many families, especially those living outside the city, need a second car for transportation to markets or schools.

The classified section of The Independent Press-Telegram daily will carry the advertised "Green Tag Specials" in this big event. Different cars will be advertised each day.

Giant green windshield tags will identify the cars on the sales lots and showrooms all over the city.

Potential buyers can use the green tags as guides for the special value purchases.

The initial offering of "Green Tag Specials" will be found on today's classified advertising section.

Real Estate Class

Harold E. Wilson, teacher of real estate law, will hold a semi-fall class in the fundamentals of real estate preparing applicants for the California real estate examinations at Poly High School Room 424 on Nov. 10. The class will convene each Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p. m.

There's a lot of election mixed up with realty news this week. In fact, some of it overflowed from here and if you will check society news you will find that our own Barbara Moss is getting honored. She'll be proxy of the National Secretaries Council of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. We'll check the society story and if they overlooked anything about Barb we'll report it next week.

Other election news included the organization by the directors of the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

Arnold Berg was elected president of the Realtors for the year 1954. He will take office Jan. 1 with formal installation Jan. 22 at the Wilton Hotel.

A native of North Dakota he came to Long Beach about 1945, after being in the Army. He has been in the real estate business for 15 years and maintains his own office at 418 E. Broadway. Berg attended the University of Minnesota and State Teachers College in Minn.

Other officers are E. T. Moore, president of the Moore Realty organization, first vice president; Harold K. Steele, second vice president, and Martin Culley, secretary-treasurer. Other members of the directorate: Howard Butler, Ed Walsh, George Massey, I. N. Page, John T. Webster, Dick Hamilton, O. L. Michael, Sherill Muntz and Steve Spindell, salesmen.

You Select Site, Hamlet Then Will Construct Home

Under the building plan designed by the Hamlet Development Co., it is no longer necessary to buy a tract home to stay in the lower priced units and have a quality home, points out Joe McGrail, building consultant. "Many families want a low priced home outside of a tract, and we have solved this by designing a two- and three-bedroom home, 'way above standard, for far less money," McGrail said. Complete from roof to foundation, the homes by Hamlet have much to offer every family in the market for a modern home constructed on the lot of their choice in the community of their choice. Keynoting the sales program is their model home at 15724 Lakewood Blvd. Included in the features are hardwood floors, walks and driveway, sliding doors, attractive Pomona tile, dual floor furnaces, steel sashes, large wardrobes and cabinets, gutters and downspouts, and a garage, all included in the package price of $6895 for the two-bedroom unit. The model home is open daily, according to McGrail, or buyers may make a special appointment by phoning the Hamlet Development Co. in Bellflower.

Aldon Pushes Sales

Aldon Construction Co. is to non-veterans and veterans alike on FHA terms of low down payments and low monthly payments in its history in preparation for the official marketing of a half mile east of Bellflower. 1169 four-bedroom, two-bath homes, with a valuation of more than $15,000,000, it is announced by officials of the firm.

The homes are being built in three different developments, one in Lakewood and two in San Fernando Valley. The Lakewood development is in a new section of Aldon's Lakewood Plaza. Five hundred and nine of the homes are being built just east of Studebaker Rd. and one mile south of Spring St.

In preparation for the campaign, efforts are being made to sell out all homes in Aldon's current developments. Largest of these is the Lakewood Plaza "Non-Vet" unit, which offers three-bedroom "luxurized" homes.

In the "Non-Vet" unit, eight model homes, fully furnished in different styles by the Aaron Schultz furniture stores, are attracting visitors daily from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

The dwellings are noted for their many added and built-in features. All have rear living rooms. Kitchens are spacious. Many features including two-car garages, are offered.

The other current Lakewood development is Lakewood Plaza "New Horizons" unit, where three-bedroom, two-bath homes with fireplaces are being offered to veterans for no down payment except costs and impounds.

Available Now for 'Non-Veterans'

ATTRACTIVE EXTERIOR shown above is one of many available in Lakewood Plaza "Non-Vet" unit, on Spring St. a half mile east of Bellflower Blvd. in Lakewood. The three-bedroom homes are available to non-veterans and veterans on FHA low down payments and monthly terms.

THIS TWO BEDROOM HOME CAN BE BUILT ON YOUR OWN LOT IN THE COMMUNITY OF YOUR CHOICE

Families who don't want to live in a tract, but who do want a low cost quality built home, are choosing this great home by the Hamlet Development Co. It offers all the features of homes priced much higher, plus the advantage of your choice of location. Three bedroom designs are also available. See this home today or throughout the week. This is the home you've been looking for.

A Factory Begins!

BREAKING GROUND for the new home of the Touch-Plate Manufacturing Co., is Art Linkletter, president and Mary Ellen Parziale, Chamber of Commerce hostess. Ward Johnson, president of the chamber, looks on. The factory will have about 12,000 square feet and is at the north edge of the city on Cherry Ave. Linkletter, well-known radio and television entertainer, said the company's business has been increasing rapidly since it was founded in 1947. Few Mortgages Are Delinquent Borrowers are setting a phenomenal record in maintaining regular monthly payments on their mortgage loans, a nationwide survey made by the Mortgage Bankers Association disclosed. Particularly outstanding in the results, as of Sept. 30, is the excellent record established by veterans with the survey showing that only 11 of one per cent of the GI borrowers surveyed are delinquent two months in their mortgage payments. For three months' delinquency, the figure goes down to .19 of one per cent.

Delinquent borrowers with Federal Housing Administration insured loans amount to only .30 of one per cent for two months' arrears and .12 of one per cent for three months' mortgages—those made without government insurance or guarantee—only .31 of one per cent of the loans are two months delinquent and only .18 of one per cent are three months delinquent.

INCOME PROPERTY sales in Long Beach were high lighted the past week by the sale of this 21-unit apartment at Gaviota Ave. and Wardlow Rd. Mrs. Jean Rogers sold the building for $160,000 to Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Lash. The O'Farrells represented both parties.

O. L. Michael must have had a hard-headed customer Monday. When he showed up Tuesday, he hoarse he couldn't introduce a guest it was proof he had been talking plenty. . . .

Fabe C. Blackman is leaving soon for Hawaii. Another indication that business in handling downtown real estate is good.

Frank MacBride Jr., president of the California Real Estate Assn., says the activity of the real estate market is greater now than at the same time last year. "The public is more selective and is shopping around more but more real estate is being sold," he adds. "The economy of the state is excellent. Bank deposits are 12 per cent more than last year and employment is at an all-time high."

Grace M. Dixon scores with another goodie. She represented both parties in the sale of the 20-apartment building at 229 Cedar Ave. Jack Barro, a resident here for 20 years, bought the property from Miss Gertrude K. Wilcox.

Peter Plain is among those folks unlucky enough to have his birthday fall on Christmas.

Howard Butler will have a grand opening today of his new office at 6176 Atlantic Ave., across from Cole's Market. It is a stucco with modernistic front, beautifully designed on the interior. A picture would look good, Howard, at the top of your ads. His staff besides the boss will be Clyde Ming, Inez McAttee and Claire Reed. Anyway, Howard, congrats on another brave soul opening on Atlantic. . . .

Realtor Mildred Robinson of Park Estates just returned from Europe. (Wonderful trip she says through France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and England. The boat trip on the Queen Elizabeth really out of the world.)

Gene Nebeker of Nebeker-Gifford Co., Bud Thompson and Jim Atkinson of Wofford Realty and Wayne Grisham of Moore Realty met each Thursday for a round of golf at Lakewood Country Club.

C. O. Libbey has just returned from a month's stay at River Bend Fishing Lodge on the Colorado River, just north of Blythe. He took along his trailer and said he "lived like a retired real estate man," just loafing and fishing. He found beautiful sunny weather—no fog—no smog—and caught lots of fish—bass, catfish and crappie. He returned Oct. 29 to the office at 5435 Atlantic Ave. all rested and raring to go to work.

Charles O. Guthrie of Jetmore, Kan., member of the Kansas State Board of Real Estate Commissioners, visited Monday with John W. Teed, of the Press-Telegram, an old friend. Mr. Guthrie is attending the National Association of License Law Officials in Los Angeles as a representative of the state board.

We didn't go into detail about the conventions in Los Angeles for most of you will be there and know what's on the program. Remember there'll be no breakfast this week.

About 40 Realtors were at the opening of the Lakewood Businessmen's Bowling League at beautiful new Lakewood Bowl. Among the teams represented the following are sponsored by the real estate firms. H. Herschel Hart, Wofford Realty, John Toner, Nebeker-Gifford Co. and Moore Realty. Wofford Realty is defending champion of the league.

Glenn Gustine, 3535 Atlantic, has a new salesman, Bert Parker, who was a resident of Long Beach from 1929 to 1946, has been an active Realtor in the San Francisco area for the last few years. He is very experienced and specializes in fine homes and income property.

Convention Honors to Long Beach

Capturing the award for best service to its members for the third consecutive year, the Long Beach Board of Realtors has taken permanent ownership of the Arthur J. Delano trophy. It was announced Saturday at the state convention of the California Real Estate Association. The convention is under way in Los Angeles. I. N. Page accepted the trophy as president of the board.

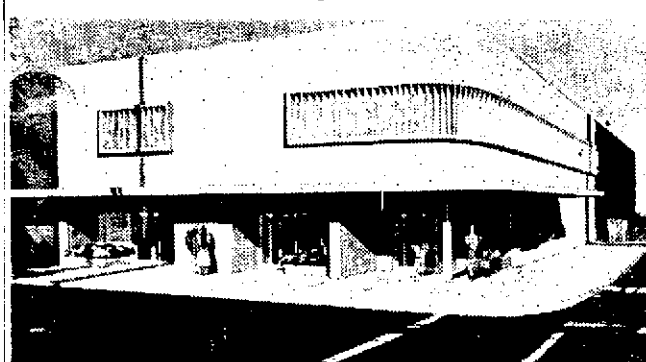

Charles J. Hughes, 1520 Ramilla Ave., placed second in the state-wide oratorical contest on the subject "My Home Town." The contest was at the Biltmore Friday night.

Contest winners on the essay "Why I Want to Own My Own Home" were James Krulic of Lynwood High School and Richard Tanquary of Crestline grade school.

High school division honorable mention winners included Carolyn Newman, Bellflower; Willis Foster, Long Beach Wilson High School.

Grammar school honorable mention awards included Sandra Strain, Compton.

For Metropolitan Life

JOINING "INSURANCE ROW" in the Uptown Atlantic Ave. area will be Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., when it moves into a new home at 4202 Atlantic Ave., near several other insurance company offices. This is a drawing by Architect Hugh Gibbs of the $100,000 structure which will be completely air conditioned with an elevator.

No Quick Embargo Seen to Check Oil Market Glut

WASHINGTON — (C.P.) The administration informed oil producers it is powerless to give them relief from what they claim is oppressive competition from imports.

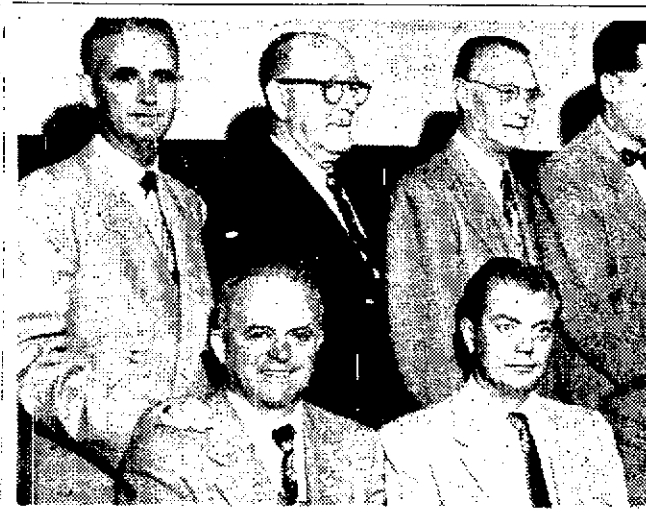

L. K. Macy, commerce department, told operators who had recommended an immediate embargo on all foreign oil there is no authority for such action.

Instead, Macy suggested, oil interests might lay their case before the tariff commission. If oil interests pursue that course they will find it time-consuming. Macy said oil producers could "appropriately" ask the tariff commission to take away special concessions for foreign petroleum.

The White House would have the last word in the case.

The current problem is an over-accumulation of some 31,000,000 barrels of petroleum. The outlook for 1954 is cloudy. The Independent Petroleum Association of America has calculated the U. S. need—both domestic and imported—at an average of 8,332,000 barrels a day, an increase of 2.5 per cent over the 1953 average.

On that basis, IPAA figures domestic crude production of 6,600,000 barrels daily will be needed—unless there is a change in the imports of crude and refined products "in which event the requirements for domestic crude would increase or decrease accordingly."

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

Heavy Construction Bolstering Economy

Heavy construction contracts for the month of October, with calls for bids showing the trend continuing plus favorable earnings and dividend reports are giving the nation's business a good shot in the arm just before the big Christmas rush gets underway.

Prentice-Hall shows that while over the nation some signs point downward, including a noticeable reduction in overtime, which reflects in some sales, others give an upward trend.

Locally the Department of Labor Bureau of Statistics shows that construction in Long Beach was $4,534,000 compared to $26,962,000 last year. There have been 2486 new units of housing here compared to 1965 in 1952.

Returning to the Prentice-Hall California Electric Power Co. at Riverside, the question is asked: What's the outlook? Improve the most firms in good condition to meet any moderate business downturn, the report says. "Our San Bernardino and Riverside. American industry will not be threatened."

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. will launch a new "L. & M." filter-type cigarette in a day or so and will carry a remarkably heavy advertising and sales contract with it. These cigarettes were perfected after long research.

Things to come: Texas has developed a cantaloupe which will defy aphids. A new adhesive tape will be out for wrapping Christmas presents on which you may write your name and then sprinkle glittering crystals over the writing to give a 3D effect.

The bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association reports that most retailers expect this year's Christmas season sales volume to be greater than last year's.

The bureau's survey of stores of varying sizes in 35 major metropolitan markets showed that only nine per cent expect a decrease.

The optimistic retailers pointed to the increase buying power and savings in the hands of the public, better values at more attractive prices, improving sales personnel and earlier and more aggressive advertising as plus factors.

More than a quarter of the merchants covered by the survey plan to invest 100 per cent of their Christmas promotional outlays in daily newspapers; 46 per cent plan to place at least 95 per cent in newspapers; 80 per cent plan to allocate at least 90 per cent in newspapers; and 70 per cent will earmark at least 85 per cent in newspapers.

A new $6,000,000 generating unit has been placed in operation at the High-grove plant of the Riverside. Constructed by Fluor, the new 40,000-kilowatt unit brings to 100,000 kilowatts the production of the plant which is just off U. S. Hwy. 18 between San Bernardino and Riverside.

Emerson Radio & Phonograph Corp. shipped more television receivers during October than in any previous month in history, President Benjamin Abrams reported from New York. The company is mass producing models listing for $250 or less. To show that such a major company doesn't believe color television is near the schedule calls for mass production of the black and white sets well into the coming year.

Members of the Western Growers Association will be in session this week at Coronado. Their program calls for some action to keep their markets and business. The 500 members will hear discussions on such things as labor, refrigeration, research and packaging of products. It is noted with interest that while the meeting is deeply concerned with the future of the citrus, melons and farm produce industry in this section, there is nothing on the program scheduled for discussion of advertising, which could be the answer to their problems.

Baltimore Lawyer's Hobby Filing Taxpayer Suits on City and State

By LOU PANOS
BALTIMORE.—(AP) Red-haired Hyman Pressman is a man who believes you can fight City Hall. The jaunty, 38-year-old Pressman is a lawyer by profession and "Mr. Taxpayer" by hobby. Practicing both his hobby and his profession, he has hauled city and state officials into court in 16 separate cases, winning nine and losing four. Three others are hanging fire. Pressman casts himself in the role of a tax-paying citizen of Maryland with an interest in public affairs. All told, his suits have involved hundreds of millions of dollars. "Why does he do it?" "I just figure nobody speaks up for the taxpayer," he explained. "So I might as well." In some cases he has fought against levying new taxes. In others he has sought to have one public agency turn over tax money to another. In one case he sued a private business concern and a public agency together because the agency did not want to accept the money Pressman thought the business should pay. One of Pressman's defeats was an unsuccessful attempt to block the Maryland sales tax in 1947. After the case was thrown out of court, he gave state officials a series of proposals which he said would enable them to raise $18,000,000 a year without the sales tax. At the end of the fiscal year he confronted officials with figures which he said proved him right. He also lost a suit against the City of Baltimore when he tried to prevent awarding a memorial stadium construction contract $184,000 higher than the low bid.

This Little Piggie

... has an ingrown toe-nail. It hurts. And it isn't very pretty, peeping out of a sandal, with the ugly "V" its owner cut out trying to relieve the maddening pressure. If you are this lady's friend, why don't you tell her about the miraculous PYRAMID SKIN SOFTENER? Not only does it clear up ingrown nails, painlessly and invisibly, but PYRAMID SKIN SOFTENER gently removes raspy, scaly skin from elbows, knees, hands, arms and legs. Smooths, softens, tones, re-vitalizes. Easy to use—floats in the bath—lasts for months. A beauty necessity.

First Book Ever to Use Word 'California' a Gift to Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(AP) A copy of the world's first book to mention the name "California" is now the property of the Yale University Library, James T. Babb, university librarian, announced Saturday. The book titled "Las Segas de Esplandian" is one of a group of rare books presented to the university by William Robertson Coe who is also the donor of Yale's famous Coe collection of western Americana. The Spanish novel in which the name California appears was written by Gutierrez de Montalvo and published in Seville in 1510. The Yale copy is the only known copy of an edition published in Burgos, Spain, in 1526. The novel describes a mythical island of "California" as a paradise inhabited by handsome, Amazon-like women ruled by a Queen Calafia.

Storm Returns Dishes Blown Away in 1944

OLD LYME, Conn.—(AP) When storm-thrashed Long Island Sound high tides washed over their property Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. John Roach remembered how the same thing happened in 1944—how a box of chinaware was swept from their cottage and was lost. Saturday the Roaches lost some of the top soil on their property. But right there in the yard was that set of chinaware.

Why more than a million owners this year have chosen the "Worth More" FORD!

They have discovered first hand what the surveys show... Ford, with all its fine-car features, is worth more when you buy it, and worth more when you sell it!

OVER A MILLION OWNERS can't be wrong! Ford is the one fine car in the low-price field. It gives you the "Go," the style, the comfort, and "build" of cars that sell for far more. And, it's only natural that Ford keeps its value better, in resale, than any other car on the American Road. Check the features below for some of the "Worth More" reasons for the swing to Ford.

Lowest-priced V-8 in America! And the only V-8 in the low-price field. Ford's high-compression V-8 power plant delivers its "Go" on regular gas!

Most Modern Six of all is Ford's high-compression, low-friction Mileage Maker. With Over-drive, it was the winner in 1953 Mobilgas Economy Run.

Smoother Ride, with front end road shock reduced up to 80%, is another Ford big-car feature... and you get it without gas-eating extra weight.

Fine-Car Build means using steel of the same quality and thickness as in the costliest cars. And Ford is the most completely insulated car in its field.

Fordomatic Drive is the only "automatic" in its field to offer the "Go" of an automatic intermediate gear plus the smoothness of a torque converter.

Finest Power Steering—that's Ford Master-Guide. It does up to 75% of the steering work yet retains the normal steering "feel" on the straightaways.

Davises' Trip Ends; Cytrons Fete Artists

By BETTY CAREY
Independent Women's Editor

Three eventful months abroad have ended for Vivian and John Davis but the lovely memories still continue to color their thoughts. They sailed over on the elegant Liberte and spent their first month in England, for the most part in London. A particular highlight was a visit to John's mother's home at Ivy Bridge near Plymouth.

And then there was the week end spent in Gloucester and Cheltenham with friends. Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Corps on leave from Burma, in their huge old manor house. Nice addenda is the news that Mr. and Mrs. Corps are now visiting in Los Angeles with the Robert Harcuses (Mr. Harcus and Mr. Corps having been associated formerly in the Burma Oil Co.). The Davises will now have an opportunity to help the British pair compare the California countryside with the English.

Back to our travelers, we find them next in Paris for their second month. They side-tripped to Italy aboard the Rome express and returned through Switzerland, thence home on the Queen Mary.

Welcoming parties have been hosted by numerous friends including Laura and Henry Dunn who were dinner hosts. Others invited were Lorraine and Earl Miller, Betsy and George Taubman, Helen and Frank Reagan, and Marianne and John Pahl down from Los Angeles. Lillian and Glenn Thomas plan to entertain at a buffet supper on Thursday eve.

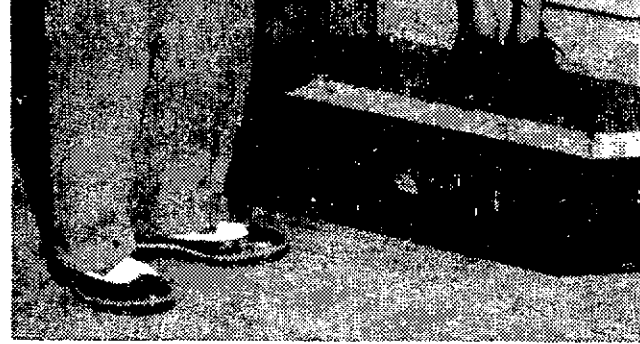

Some of the names on the guest list for Lois and Dave Cytron's cocktail party last Sunday are more often seen as signatures at the bottom of glowing water colors or oils, the guests being artist members of the California Water Color Society and their friends. They drifted over to the Cytrons' following the impressive opening of the 33rd national exhibit of the society at the Municipal Art Center.

Among those present whose paintings you may have for would like to have) were Joan and Rex Brandt up from Laguna, Watson Cross, who's president of the society, and his wife, June; the Emil Kosas Jr., Mary Fry Thomas and her husband, Tom Thomas; Fran Soldini and her husband, Jack; Noel and Helen Quinn, Richard and Nora Haines, Edgar and Suzanne Ewing, George and Jill Gibson, John and Eve Leeper, Clinton and Mary Adams, Bob and Liz Holde-man, Earl and Edith Gummels, Pat Swallow with Anthony Rizzo, Dorothy Jordan, Al Kramer and George James, as well as Sam and Helen Heav-enrich from the Art Center, (awfully good people to give you tips on buying that painting).

Cool drinks and hors d'oeuvres were served in the lanai overlooking the Cytrons' tropical garden on Rivo Alto Canal.

All those pert and pretty young things gathering tomorrow night at Joan Parks' for a "get-acquainted" dessert will be members of the Bachelorettes and Spinsters, the former hosting for the latter. Discussion will turn, no doubt to the O.A. (Officers' Assembly to those in the know) on Nov. 13 at the Pacific Coast Club. Their first one for the season in October was a vast success, we've been hearing.

Freedom Is Everybody's Job, Observe Americanism Week

The task of telling people the true meaning of freedom is a mammoth job. A few words and an occasional meeting will not touch the surface of such an important subject. So it was necessary for the public affairs committee of the Pilot Club of Long Beach to begin months ahead to plan for its harbor-area-wide sponsored "Freedom in Action" Americanism Week which begins today.

Early in the year committees were formed to start laying out the pattern for this important patriotic endeavor. Inspiration for the event came to Peggy Finley, general chairman, through the work being done throughout the United States by the Freedom Foundation of Valley Forge, Pa. Primary objective of the effort is to bring about a better understanding of the American way of life and to bring about a renewal of faith in our priceless American heritage in peoples of all faiths, nationalities and creeds.

The Pilot Club, through its public affairs committee, voted to assume responsibility of sponsoring the program. Months have rolled by since the first stages of planning, until now each phase of the program has been developed and put into its place. As the curtain unfolds today the work of many individuals, church groups, civic and fraternal organizations, veterans, military, schools, recreation department, service clubs and patriotic groups will be much in evidence.

Today is "Faith and Freedom" Sunday. Freedom, based on a fundamental belief in God, is the cornerstone upon which the Freedom Foundation credo rests. Local churches of all denominations will observe the day with church choirs and bells ringing out throughout the city, calling people to worship in the church of their choice.

High lights of the week will

Luncheon Has Autumn Decor

One of the larger society events of the past week was the bridge luncheon given by Mmes. J. Roscoe Howell, M. A. Sneed, and Raymond J. Kirkpatrick Friday at the Lafayette Hotel.

Setting the color theme for the party were the unique place favors. They consisted of name cards decorated with orange bittersweet, set in the eye of a dark brown buckeye, which was mounted on a red maple leaf. The autumn materials were native to Ohio and brought from there for the occasion by Mrs. Kirkpatrick when she returned from a visit with relatives in that state.

Long, low floral arrangements of chrysanthemums in russet and yellow shades decorated the E-shaped tables at which 125 guests were seated.

Wilsons Home

Col. Ronald Wilson, USAF, and Mrs. Wilson of Long Beach have returned from a two-week visit with relatives in Oregon.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS COMMITTEE of Long Beach Pilot Club, women's service organization, chaired by Peggy Finley, has been the guiding force behind the "Freedom in Action" Week beginning today in the Long Beach Harbor area. Working on this patriotic effort, which is the first of its kind ever conducted in a major Pacific Coast city, are Pilot members, from left, Glada Strode, Grace Burkey, Sally Gregory, Eleanor Boyd, Margaret Darby and Gladys McMullen. They are viewing the official insignia of Freedom's Foundation. Mrs. Boyd is Pilot president.

Courtesies Compliment Bonnelyn Timboe

Popular young bride-elect Bonnelyn Timboe, who will fly to Hawaii Monday night to become the bride of Lt. (jg.) Gerald Rost on Nov. 14, has been honored with several bridal showers recently. First on the list of complimentary events was a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Elmer Monson of 2071 Fashion Ave. and her daughter, Mrs. Naomi Cowan. Guests were Mrs. C. T. Timboe, mother of the bride-elect; Mmes. Gilbert Timboe, grandmother of the honoree; Mmes. Floyd Timboe, Lyle Timboe, Robert Timboe, Richard Timboe, George McDonnell, James McDonnell, Margaret Perry, Helen Trimble, William Rose, John Casey, Irwin Dahlund, John Neilsen, Ralph Neilsen, Walter Road, Johan Fylpaa and Miss Leila Fylpaa.

A Hawaiian theme was carried out at the evening party given by the bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. Lyle Timboe, and Mrs. Robert Shortle at 3316 San Anselmo Ave. A beach scene centered the refreshment table and chrysanthemum leis were presented each guest.

Polytechnic High School friends of Miss Timboe were bidden to a linen shower: hosted by Mrs. Carolyn McClellan and Mrs. Beverly Kadinger of 1523 Summit Ave.

Bon Voyage Bade Benwells as They Depart for Hawaii

Friday was a gay afternoon down by the harbor when, at 4 p. m., the Lurline sailed for Honolulu. Preceding its departure, many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas B. Benwell of 3925 Lemon Ave. gathered in their cabin for a bon voyage cocktail party.

The Benwells will vacation in the islands for three weeks and return to the mainland by plane.

Among those gathering to bid Mr. and Mrs. Benwell farewell were Mrs. and Mmes. John W. Faris Jr. and Wesley W. Rowe; Messrs. and Mmes. Stanley E. Allen, Donald W. Barden, William M. Barry, Albert A. Beach, Clinton Belcher, Phillip A. Carey, Robert F. Dunbar, Jack Dalton, Raymond E. Davis, Charles L. Fletcher, J. A. Garver, Robert C. Greenberg, Charles W. Hoyt, Barry Laffoon, Richard W. Leebrick, Lyman W. Lough, Wesley W. Rollo and John E. Roggeveen.

Others were Messrs. and

Cocktail Parties Precede Panhellenic Dinner Dance

Many gay parties preceded the annual formal dinner dance at the Wilton Hotel last evening by Long Beach Panhellenic. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Freeland, 6020 Bay Shore Wk., entertained Mr. and Mrs. Scott Gillespie and Mr. and Mrs. E. Dozier. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Webb, 3616 Colorado Ave., invited for cocktails Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Cavin, Allen Paul, Kermit Moore, Harry Dawson, David Heald and Miss Margaret Lupton.

Dr. and Mrs. Donald Cruse, 3950 Lime Ave., had as guests Messrs. and Mmes. Edgar Outten, Wayne Linscott and Henry Cooke.

Mr. and Mrs. William Webb, 279 Nieto Ave., entertained Messrs. and Mmes. William Riley, David Mealliffe, Harry Breslin, W. R. Nylac, R. S. Berg of Santa Ana, and Dr. and Mrs. Wolf de Lyre.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Davis, 153 Bay Shore, had as their guests, Messrs. and Mmes. Stanley Smith, William Stuart, Kenneth Sampsons, George Lorenze and Harry Boucher.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Gatchell, 6141 Village Road, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Reed Jensen and Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Bartlett.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sanders entertained Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Pond, Harold Ramsden, O. H. Brower, William Dietz, and Ronald Schroeder.

A cocktail party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gooseman, 4539 Whitewood Ave., feted Messrs. and Mmes. John Pitblado, J. R. Townsend, Paul H. Sharr, Wayne Swigart, Franklin Moreland of North Hollywood, and Guy Cooper Jr. of Westwood.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Artese and Mr. and Mrs. I. G. Rasmussen, entertained at the home of the former, 3783 San Anselmo Dr., for Messrs. and Mmes. R. F. Furbach, R. N. Clinegan, James B. Rosey, Perry Land, and Bernard Young.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ritzer, 235 Claiborne Pl., and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cassidy entertained at the home of the former, for Messrs. and Mmes. Lee Denny, Vern Gerten, Lorix Cox, Eugene Moore, Wendell Schoelling, Donald Murphy, Ryan Whisenant, John Dickson Walker, Christensen, Price, Donald Berger, W. G. Hein, L. McLane and C. Roy Conn.

TWENTY-SEVEN ANNIVERSARY BALL of the Auxiliary to the Long Beach Osteopathic Society will be a gay society event of Friday evening at Virginia Country Club. Proceeds will be used to help build a new osteopathic general hospital here in Long Beach and the model of the proposed hospital can be viewed in the foreground. During the dinner hour, fashions in furs will be presented by Frank A. Hill & Sons, with Wilma Hastings as

VCC Indoor Set Joins Golfers for Soiree

By IOLA MASTERSON

All four corners of Long Beach have reverberated with fun affairs, all sizes and types, for John and Jane Q. Public this week. Among them was the buffet dinner dance at the Virginia Country Club last Sunday which drew many a flattering comment from those who attended.

It was the windup for the club's annual invitational golf tournament but that didn't slow up the nonplaying members from joining the outdoor set. They may not know a niblick from a putter but they know a good time from a stodgy one and were there to prove it. Let's cast an eye around the room in retrospect—over there were Doris and Frank Uhlberg and Judy and Hal McGrew at a laugh-filled, no-host table; Blanche and Jack Hurley entertained a group in honor of son Jim's birthday preceding attendance at the Symphony. Mildred and Carlos Gates were hosts to a group of friends, and Eleanor and Roy Brown practically had a reception line of their own as friends kept crowding up to congratulate Roy on his fine showing in the tournament (second prize, no less). Others glimpsed, seen, or otherwise accounted for were Carleen and Jack Burrell, Betty and Bill Barbee, Evelyn and Lyman Berg, Mollie and Bob Reid, Verla and Dick Browning, John Conley, and, and, and...

Guess who's coming home from Europe ahead of schedule! Peg and Ray Webb. They leave Europe today by plane and are due home Tuesday. They've been touring since September and, as we understand it, planned to stay until about mid-December. Our guess is they got homesick for the children. What does the Eiffel Tower have to offer compared to the bubbling-over, welcome home hug of your youngsters!

Informal good times at Edie and Jack Taylor's house Friday night as they hosted at a dinner party for a few friends.

Nicest thing that could happen on a gal's birthday happened to Evie Hodges yesterday when she and Don toted home their youngest—little Carol Donelle, born Nov. 3 at Seaside. Greeting the newest member of the family were Carol's brother, Davey, sister, Connie, and proudest of the proud, Eleanor and Raymond Kirkpatrick, the grandparents.

Gertie and Noel Guertlin and Alice and Homer Duke drove over to Las Vegas last week end and then drove back again. Between the two "doves" they had a whizzeroo of a time.

Dorothy and Vic Burton will leave town this week for new home in Newark, N. J., and they are going to leave with many a warm memory of friends and parties and farewells. Doris Reid and Jeanne LeRoy were cohostesses at dinner party in honor of Dorothy last Monday night at Doris' home, 5259 E. Ocean. Among Dorothy's closest friends who gathered round were Willie Gilman, Lorraine Fulton, Clara Ludlum, Joanne Steffen, Mary Schafman, Dorothy Montgomery, Jane Smith, Virginia Leininger, Merle McLucas, Virginia Waters, Charlotte Reynolds and Nancy Kennedy. Last Sunday Vic and Dorothy were feted at cocktails by Nancy and Bob Kennedy and Charlotte and Paul Reynolds and the house bounced with people who drank a toast to happy years ahead for the Burtons.

Yak-yak-yak—a million words a minute; enough, anyhow, to make a breeze like something off Lake Louise. It happened when a gang of former friends from Poly High (class of '20) wouldn't-you-like-to-know were "reunionized" by Mrs. Wilson (Betty Robertson) Turner in her Los Angeles home last Monday. Those who made with the "remember when" were Mrs. Don (Jean Miller) Hook, Mrs. Odie (Lois Griffin) Wright, Mrs. Alvin (June Russell) Allen, Mrs. George (Dorothy Early) Beck, Mrs. Don (Pat Amstrong) Beck and Amelia Shaw Weston.

Ruth was frying chicken and Harrison was putting around doing whatever it is husbands do when their wives are fixing dinner when the doorbell rang last Monday night. On the doorstep were 19 people, arms laden with casseroles full of food and the surprise housewarming for the Moores was on. Bringers of spaghetti, salad, garlic bread and angel pie were Liz and Tom Kendig, Marian and Tom Hardesty, Dorothy and Paul Southgate, Anita and "Spec" Stevenson, Alice and Art Utter, Katherine and Hal Fisher, Julia and Bob Helms, Gladys Lane, Beth and "Pal" Tenkhoff and Alice and Paul Nichol.

Dorothy and "Sid" Jones and the Joseph Harveys of San Gabriel are at Warners Hot Springs this week end celebrating Dorothy and "Sid's" 10th anniversary.

Davises' Trip Abroad Ends; Cytrons Entertain Artists

Includes the lecture series on modern painting being planned for the club at the Art Center with Helen Heavenrich in charge. They'll start Nov. 26. Many a fine plan is afoot also for their holiday dance at Portuguese Bend Clubhouse the night after Christmas, and the gals are doubtless putting a sparkling new dress at the top of their request lists to Santa.

Waving farewell to friends from the deck of the Lurline on Friday afternoon were Lynne and John Arkush who will vacation for a long, lovely month at the Royal Hawaiian. Embarking on the Lurline also were the Daniel Tschantz of 2157 Chestnut Ave. who had a large group of friends to a bon voyage party on shipboard before their departure. They'll be gone three weeks and will headquarter at the Moana.

Circled on many calendars will be Nov. 19 when two large parties are slated. The first a brunch at Virginia Country Club with Mildred Wing, Lucille Putnam and Cecile Stone as cohostess. The second is the bridge and tea at which Maude Pande and Nancy Mertz will entertain. Another much-anticipated party in the offing is the coffee hour at Cecile Appleton's lovely peninsula home slated for Nov. 24 with Marie Sawyer as cohostess.

Howard Coys at SC Homecoming

Spending the weekend in Los Angeles where they are taking part in the University of Southern California homecoming festivities are Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Coy of Long Beach. Friday evening they were at the Biltmore Hotel for class reunions and Saturday noon at luncheon in the Sigma Chi fraternity house with their son, Charles, a student at USC.

Mr. Coy has been appointed a member of the School Relations Advisory Council for USC and is Trojan chairman for scholarships for the entire southern bay area.

Social Life Beginning for Young Princess

By COLIN FROST

LONDON — (AP) A shapely 16-year-old with misty blue eyes is edging Princess Margaret for the role of Britain's most eligible "spinster."

The newcomer is Princess Alexandra, a long-limbed beauty with a royal flair for elegance. Already she's been around town with some of Margaret's old beaux.

Alexandra Helen Elizabeth Olga Christabel of Kent—Alex for short—is growing up. She is 3 feet 7 inches of well-rounded blonde with a taste for fancy clothes and sophisticated chatter.

She gets her looks from her father, Duke of Kent, fourth son of King George V. The duke died in a wartime air crash while serving in the Royal Air Force.

Her elegance comes from her mother, the former Princess Marina of Greece who, though in her 50s, still ranks high among the world's best-dressed women.

At school—the exclusive girls-only Heathfield—Alex proved adept at languages but a flop at cricket. She made the papers only when she was ill—mumps, measles and the like.

Things are different now. Last spring she toured the dress shows with her mother, not so much to buy clothes as to see how mannequins wore them. Soon she was out and around in a flame red creation, a remake from her mother's wardrobe.

The boys began to sit up and take notice. At coronation parties last summer, Alex took a preliminary canter round the social circuit.

Her escorts included exiled Prince Nicholas of Yugoslavia, Lord Jamie Carnegie and Lord Flunkett, all in their early 20s and all reported contenders for Margaret's hand.

A chaperone was always near at hand. Sometimes her mother acts as chaperone. Sometimes it's the French Vicomtesse de Bellaigue, who earlier this year took the princess on her first trip to see the sights of Paris. She shared that trip with 19-year-old Constance Rheem, daughter of California industrialist Richard Scofield Rheem.

Like Margaret, Alex is a rabid theater fan. American musicals and sophisticated comedy are her favorites. She is on first-name terms with many theatrical greats, among them Noel Coward, Sir Laurence Olivier, his wife Vivien Leigh, and Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

Since even a princess sometimes has to work, Alex is casting around for a job. Her big ambition was to don the trim blue uniform of the Wrens—Women's Royal Naval Service—but mother said no.

Alex now plans to enter training soon as a nurse, just as her mother did. If she does, it will boost recruits to nursing, which Britain sorely needs.

The Princess also is expected to help out the royal family at public appearances, an important role since Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will be touring Commonwealth countries for the next six months.

League of Women Voters Sets Federal Budget Discussion

By RUTH REECE

"Money, money, who's got the money?" is the topic of the League of Women Voters' general meeting at 8 p. m. Tuesday night in the Art Center. Capt. Willis Bradley, Robert Devitt and Ray Simpson will speak.

The discussion climaxes two months of league study in workshops and units on reforms for federal budget procedures. How do we arrive at our $79,000,000,000 budget? The President prepares the budget, but Congress controls the purse-strings. The machinery for the former has been streamlined, but what can we do to reform the outdated machinery for Congressional taxation and appropriation?

Capt. Bradley, Republican Congressman in 1946-48, and now California state assemblyman, will speak on "Who Decides? What Uncle Sam Spends?"

Robert Devitt, Long Beach lawyer, will describe "Pork-barreling—What Local Pressure the Citizen Puts on the National Budget."

Ray Simpson, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 1932 election, will speak on "Goods for the Money—What the Citizen Has a Right to Expect From Government."

The public is invited to join in the questions and discussion afterwards.

GOODWILL INDUSTRIES

Mrs. Stephen Hemmi, chairman of the doll committee for the Women's Auxiliary to Goodwill Industries of Long Beach and the Harbor area, announces that an excellent collection of antique dolls will be offered to the public Friday afternoon from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. at the Goodwill offices, Fifth and Golden Ave.

Mrs. Hemmi says that members of the local Doll Club and others are showing great interest in the event. Interested persons are invited to preview the dolls prior to the afternoon of sale.

The proceeds, according to Mrs. E. J. Bulgin, president, will be used by the auxiliary to clear their new employees' kitchen of indebtedness.

Couple Sets Nuptial Date

Friends of Miss Bobbie Carlton and Floyd Sellers have been apprised of their betrothal and forthcoming marriage Nov. 15 in Yuma, Ariz. The bride-elect, a native of Oklahoma, has made her home in Compton for the past five years at the George Shaw residence, 214 E. Reeve St.

The prospective bridegroom is stationed aboard the USS Kaskaskia at Long Beach. He recently returned from an eight-month tour of duty in Korean waters.

At Mills Campus

Miss Lynda Taves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz G. Taves of 3850 Cedar Ave., a senior at Mills College, took part in traditional pinning ceremonies on the Oakland campus. She received her pearl and gold class pin at the college's annual upper classmen candlelight banquet, when 70 members of the Mills class of 1934 were recipients.

Co-operative Nursery Sets Social Event

Second Plaza Co-operative Nursery will stage its first social event of the year, a pot-luck supper, Nov. 14 at the home of Mrs. Glenn Randolph, 6430 Cantel St. Committee in charge of affair includes Mmes. John Wallis, Charles Miller and Richard Schertz. Proceeds from the dinner will be used to purchase equipment for the nursery. Several bridge parties are also being planned by individual members to raise funds.

At the last meeting members voted to establish a status of temporary membership to encourage more members to participate in the Co-op. The new status would apply to those women not yet enrolled for the required training course, but who would like to enter their children in the nursery this fall. Temporary status members can join the group immediately on the condition that they will register for the course when it is again offered in February. Failure to enroll at that time would automatically cancel membership.

Chairmen appointed at the meeting are as follows: Mrs. Eugene Cerning, Council of Co-operative Nurseries delegate; Mrs. Elmer Lenz, social; Mrs. Elaine Cooper, arts and crafts; and Mrs. Betty Lou King, story book. Mrs. Dwight Graham and Mrs. Blaine Vogen were appointed to the auditing committee.

Mrs. Neleie Patchett, supervisor of children, reported briefly on the recent conference on co-operative nurseries held at Pepperdine College.

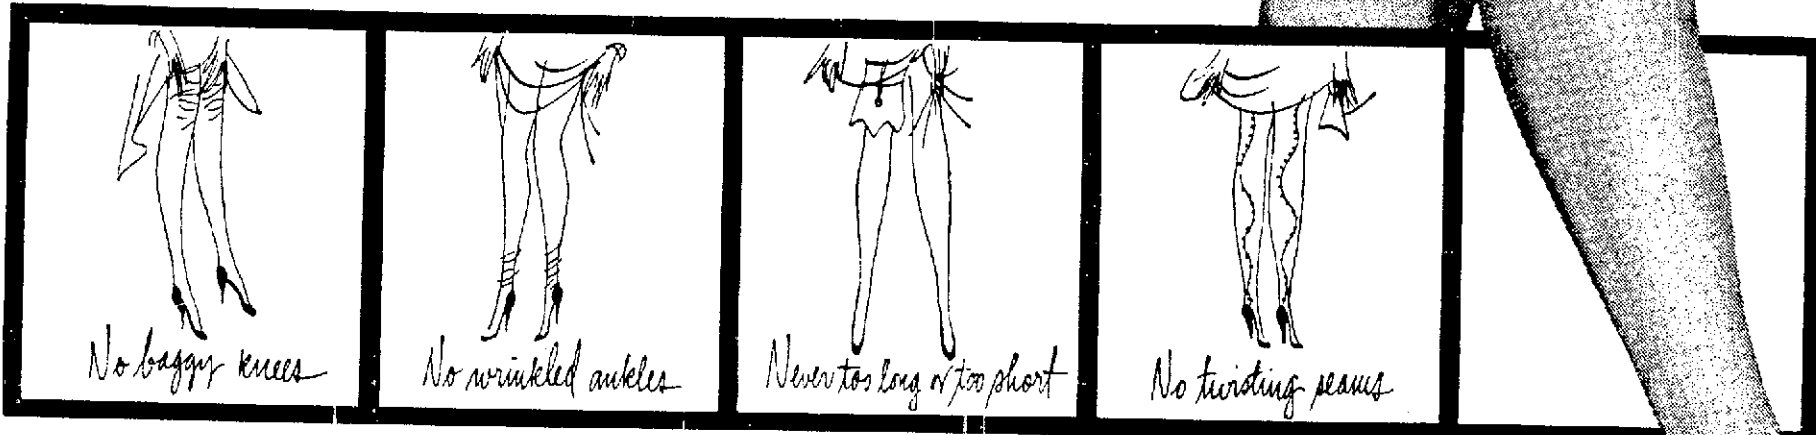

Next meeting of the group will be the evening of Nov. 24 at the home of Mrs. J. J. Schuman, 3112 Ostrom Ave.

'Supersonic' Secretary Leads National Club

By IOLA MASTERSON

"Jet-propelled Barbie" is what her friends call her. This gal with the supersonic nickname is Barbara Moss, secretary-manager of the Long Beach Realty Board. Her ability to do a dozen things at once, and all well, has become a legend among her associates and friends.

Barbara's name, frequently in print for a variety of accomplishments, probably will hit a new high this week, because today she will be elected national president of the Secretaries Council of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The honor will come during a luncheon meeting of presidents and secretaries, an official function of the annual national convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards currently in session in Los Angeles with headquarters at the Statler and Biltmore Hotels. Barbara will be installed next January in Washington, D. C., with other national officers of the association.

The significance and importance of her new office is better appreciated when you know there are over 4000 boards in the U. S. with 1500 professional executives.

How did Barbara attain this pinnacle of success? For one thing she has served as secretary-manager of the Long Beach Board of Realtors for 21½ years and that spells a whole lot of experience in the real estate field in general and in the operation of a Realty Board in particular.

To show just how valuable she has been to the local board, Barbara was awarded one of the largest trophies in these parts (four feet high) for her 20 years of progress for the board.

She has written a technical book on the subject of real estate entitled, "Multiple Listing Procedure and Practice," and has authored a portion of another book on careers for women.

Barbara was born in Los Angeles but has lived most of her life right here in Long Beach. She is a Poly High grad and still an ardent rooter for the green and gold. This blue-eyed, brown-haired whirlwind makes her home with her two daughters, Karen, 10, and Jann, 8, at 2766 Chestnut Ave.

More data on Barbara's perpetual motion: She attends an average of 30 conferences and district meetings a year as far as Maine and back again and she'd go further if the country did! She has spoken before and organized multiple listing services in 72 boards across the country. She has traveled over 200,000 miles by United Airlines alone (and no telling how far by other modes of transportation). When she's in town, scarcely a night passes when she isn't busy—usually with meetings of a business nature.

Tennis and photography are her hobbies and currently she attends night school classes on the click and shutter subject. As if that wasn't enough, Barbara maintains an active interest in Cumaeon, Real-ette Toastmistress and Soroptimist Clubs.

All in all, that makes it pretty evident that when something faster than jet propulsion comes along, Barbie will be getting a new nickname!

Elderblom Club

Dr. Elizabeth Nielson of the faculty of Long Beach State College will be the speaker at a meeting of Elderblom Club Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. at the YWCA. Jackie Trainor will sing, with Glada Storde as piano accompanist. A social hour with refreshments will follow.

Entertain at Benefit

A card party to benefit the patients of the Long Beach Veterans' Hospital was given Thursday evening by the Lynwood Woman's Club Juniors. Three homes were open where a variety of card games were enjoyed.

Mrs. Robert Jones, 1714 North Willow, operation GI chairman, opened her home to bridge fans while pinocle was played at the home of the Junior president, Mrs. William Hagwood, 10988 Colyer. Canasta players met at the home of Mrs. William O'Keefe, 11542 Annetta St. Each year the Juniors decorate their adopted ward at the VA Hospital and provide Christmas gifts for every man in the ward. The proceeds from the various parties was to finance this project.

Study Club

Because of the closing of Municipal Art Center on Armistice Day, the Study Club of Long Beach will meet at 9:45 a. m. Wednesday with Mrs. Cora Cassill, 19 Orizaba Ave. Mmes. John Atkinson and Frances A. Quintal will speak on "The American Indian."

Invitations Out to Tea

Novel invitations for a membership tea to be Thursday, 8:00 p. m., at Woodruff and Rose Aves. have been sent to members and guests of the Women's League of the Bellflower-Lakewood Jewish Community Center.

The League's president, Mrs. David Gold, said "it is of the utmost importance that the Jewish women in the community join the league at this time to work for and assure the strength and life of our newly constructed community center."

A stimulating program, arranged by Mrs. Samuel Leider, will include an address by Mrs. Maurice Schwartz, wife of Rabbi Schwartz, of Temple Beth Shalom, on "The Importance of Women in Organizations." Mrs. Alex Britton will play a few piano selections. A Chopin waltz ballet will be performed by Misses Judy Sabo, Gloria Bergman, Gloria Luallen, Meda Sennett, Paula Neilson, Sandra Nelson, Betty Moffit and Joan Cunningham.

At the conclusion of the program the executive board, acting as hostesses for the evening, and Mrs. Al Friedman, hostess chairman, will serve refreshments.

Temple Fetes First Year

First birthday anniversary of Merret Temple, Daughters of the Nile, was a gala event, with officers and members of Mokattam Temple, Los Angeles, as special guests. The luncheon tables in the dining room were beautifully decorated with bouquets of roses and chrysanthemums by Mrs. George Bartlett and her committee. Place cards and individual cakes frosted in pastel colors with a birthday candle in each one also gave the tables a festive air. Luncheon was served by the patrol team to 140 members.

Mrs. Fred S. J. Hancock, queen, presided during the business meeting, and Mrs. Della Cotton, queen of Mokattam Temple, and six past queens were introduced. Mrs. Cora Evans, a past supreme queen, residing in San Diego, was also introduced.

Art Department Discusses Painters

Art Department of Ebell met at the clubhouse with Mrs. Charles F. Lawing, chairman, presiding.

Mrs. Herbert Ferguson gave a paper on the life of Benjamin West, portrait painter of Colonial times, and Mrs. H. H. Stahl discussed Charles Wilson Peale, another portrait artist of early American days.

Mrs. Arthur Bonzer gave a resume of the life of John Singleton Copley, also a portrait painter.

Beautiful pictures illustrating the technique of the artists were shown with each paper given.

Opti-Mrs. Club Holiday Festival Plans Underway

Final plans were made for the second annual Opti-Mrs. holiday festival to take place Dec. 1 at Pacific Coast Club, when Opti-Mrs. held their November meeting recently in the rumpus room at the home of Mrs. L. W. Smith, 3818 California Ave. Assisting as co-hostesses were Mmes. Ed J. Ballantyne, Don Barden, Robert T. Dewalt, Edwin A. Frinell, and Norman W. Robinson.

Mrs. Clarence E. Lundell, coordinating chairman of the holiday festival, conducted the discussion of the event. Mrs. Leonard E. Budnick announced that there are only 70 available reservations remaining, and Mrs. Eric E. Bolin displayed the exquisite table decorations which have been prepared for the outstanding affair.

Following a reading the Optimist Creed by Mrs. C. E. Perry, a business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Garland W. Moore, president of the group, who also presented a report of the 14th district Opti-Mrs. convention, held recently in Pasadena. Reports were heard from Mmes. Hal A. Hunter, Duane Rodman, Robert G. Waldron, and Ralph D. Smith.

Proving that Opti-Mrs. can have fun together even though involved in the throes of preparation for a large social event, such as the forthcoming Holiday Festival, members were given an opportunity to write unsigned questions concerning personal problems which were answered by a panel composed of Mmes. Russel V. Fisher, Harry S. Gillen, Clarence E. Lundell, Garland W. Moore, and Harvey A. Wilson, conducted by Mrs. Lloyd Shidler. Questions ranged from requests for advice on hilarious aspects of proper training of husbands to serious queries concerning selection of household appliances.

Mrs. H. J. Peters reported to the council the accomplishments of the second 75 days of the Eisenhower administration from facts compiled by the National Republican Committee, Washington, D. C., and also reported on the Western States Conference of Republican Women held at Yellowstone in September.

Mrs. Gaylord Madden was appointed chairman of a committee to study facts pertaining to contemplated revisions of the Garden Grove Council's by-laws with Mrs. Harry C. Meyers and Mrs. Donald A. Gary to serve with her.

Next meeting of the council will be held Jan. 4, at the home of Mrs. Harry C. Meyers, 12001 S. Gilbert St., Garden Grove.

In Torrance

Patricia Jessome, Airman Recite Vows in Anchorage

By MARY VONDERAHE

Enplaning Tuesday for Anchorage, Alaska, was Miss Patricia Jean Jessome, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony L. Jessome of 1218 Cota Ave., Torrance.

In a simple ceremony scheduled for yesterday afternoon she planned to exchange wedding vows with Russel Owen Garland, USAF, stationed at Elendorf Air Force Base.

Best man was James Donovan, who is also stationed at the same base, and Mrs. Donovan was to be the only bride attendant.

The bride chose as her wedding attire a ballerina-length gown of nylon tulle over tulle and a blush veil of illusion caught with a lattice-work cap of matching velvet. On her prayer book she planned to carry a single white orchid.

Following a brief honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Garland will establish their home near his base.

The former Miss Jessome, a Torrance, was graduated from Torrance High with the 1949 June class.

Garland, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Homer Garland of Pittsford, Mich., was educated in eastern schools.

Torrance Chapter 44, Women of the Moose, whose senior regent is Alice Swanson, was hostess to more than 175 Torrance and out-of-town women Wednesday evening.

Honor guest at the open meeting was Ada Briggs of Los Angeles, a former deputy grand regent of the organization.

A highlight of the evening was presentation of a copy of "The Spirit of St. Louis" to Torrance City Library. Mrs. Dorothy H. Jamieson, librarian, was present to receive the gift.

Three other volumes for delivery to Mooseheart, Ill. Library, also were displayed by the chapter's librarian, Mrs. Margaret Baudin.

A large audience of Torrance's Women's Club members and guests attended the silver tea and program held Wednesday in the clubhouse, 1422 Engracia Ave.

Guest speaker was Doris Cheesman, of Los Angeles, whose topic was "Linen by Marghab," showed exquisite hand-made household linens and baby garments. A replica of one of the designs chosen by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, as part of their permanent collection, was of special interest to the women.

Refreshments were served from a candlelight tea table. Pouring were Mrs. Earl A. Miles and Mrs. Chris Jones.

At the business meeting preceding the program, clubwomen heard a report of the successful police benefit card party held Monday evening in members' homes. More than $100 was realized for this worthy cause.

Clubwomen will attend a cooking school Wednesday evening Nov. 11, at a local furniture store. Presentation of a valuable gift to one of the members will conclude the session.

Lodges in the Lomita area have been invited to help Trio Rebekah Lodge No. 240, celebrate its 32nd birthday, at their next meeting, to be held Wednesday. A bazaar is planned for the occasion, and nomination of officers for the coming year will be made.

Initiated into the Trio, at their last meeting, were Angelina Diserich, Delores Langerud and Ruth Moton. Chairman for the evening was Ona Ponce.

Musical Opens Membership Drive of Concert Group

By DONNA HALE

The large and gracious Downey home of Mr. and Mrs. Reno Sirrine on Gallatin School House Rd. was the setting Monday for a musical and social evening with a men's chorus from Whittier giving a program of vocal selections.

Purpose of the semi-formal event was the kickoff of Downey Community Concert Association's week-long membership drive for the current season. Paul R. Cone, president, welcomed the group of drive workers. Miss Alma Lauritzen, association field representative, told them which artists will be available for the season.

Following the program, guests adjourned to the dining room for refreshments. The table was laid with a silver coffee service and a centerpiece of chrysanthemums in fall colors on a lace cloth. Mrs. Bertha Kersey poured.

Hostesses were Mmes. Charles Woodworth, J. H. Hohen-garten and Pauline Rhoades, assisted by Misses Marcia Patillo, Edy Barghini and Betsy Hill.

Also attending were Sam Bobele, treasurer; Mrs. Florence Sukiasian, secretary, and Messrs. and Mmes. Walter W. Bond —he was the organization's charter president in 1947; Ralph Vaughn, Sirrine, Mmes. Ethel Powell, Olive Adams, Catherine Ings, R. F. Plane, Janet Powell, Harry Baker, J. H. Hohen-garten, Elton Schimmo, A. C. Eckard, Lionel K. Toney, Mar-jorie Phelan, T. J. Baker, Helen Faust, Ida Auerbach, Dorothy Levis, J. B. Gainers, Oliver Youell, Misses Florence Ings and N. Hallinger, Messrs. Guy Aldred, Richard Shakarian, Charles Woodworth of Downey, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Tappy and Mrs. Catherine Boehm of Rivera, Emerson Trent of Bell Gardens, Mrs. A. Goff of South Gate, Mrs. Esther Burk of Bell and Mrs. F. Frank of Huntington Park.

Mrs. Harry Board opened her lovely home on South Downey Ave. to an invitational Doll Fair preview and tea sponsored by San Antonio Guild of Children's Hospital to acquaint persons in the area with the fair set for Nov. 14 at Marlborough School. Fair proceeds are used to maintain the convalescent home of Children's Hospital. Guild membership embraces Downey, South Gate and Huntington Park and some 200 guests from these areas called during the afternoon. Special guests were two members of the hospital advisory board. Color theme for the tea table was carried out in yellow tulle and roses with autumn tones of mums and button chrysanthemums. Assisting Mrs. Board in her hostessing duties were Mmes. Don Smith, A. W. Rutt and Clifford Herdman, with eight others taking turns presiding at the tea table.

Betrothal Is Told Today

Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Bottari, 18062 Huntington Beach Blvd., Huntington Beach, are formally announcing the engagement of their daughter, Antoinette, to John R. Christensen, son of Mr. and Mrs.

Antoinette Bottari

Rollo Christensen of Silverado Canyon.

Early summer wedding plans were disclosed when the announcement was made at a family dinner in the Bottari home. An inscription, "Congratulations, Andy and Johnny," on a decorated cake revealed the betrothal.

Miss Bottari is a graduate of Huntington Beach High School and she attended Santa Ana College. Her fiancé, who is serving in the U. S. Navy, also attended Huntington Beach High School.

Donor Luncheon

The annual Donor Luncheon of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Compton Jewish Community Center will take place this week at the Lakewood Country Club. Mrs. Ned Schad, donor chairman, announces that the committee has arranged a fashion show with Mrs. Wilma Hastings as commentator.

The latter portion of the program will feature singing and dancing. There will be door awards and favors for everyone.

Bazaar Slated

Compton Navy Mothers Club will stage a bazaar Nov. 18 at the Community Center, 123 North Rose Ave.

'ANCHORS AWEIGH' was the theme of Rho Delta Psi Sorority's first rush party, which attracted more than 40 coeds at Harbor Junior College. The event took place aboard the yacht, The Stranger, in Wilmington Harbor. Among the guests were, left to right, Juandell Muncey, president; Mary Brown, social chairman; Eris Detert, San Pedro, rushee; Barbara Holstein, rush chairman; Rosalind Sillavo, Lomita, rushee, and Carol Sandison, Wilmington, rushee.—(Staff photo.)

Sorority Fetes Prospective Members at Yacht Party

Something new and different in the way of sorority rushing parties took place Wednesday evening, Oct. 28, when the Rho Delta Psi Sorority of Harbor Junior College entertained prospective members.

The affair took place aboard the yacht, The Stranger, in Wilmington Harbor, under the sponsorship of Miss Armine Janeveves. Titled, "Anchors Aweigh," the party carried out a nautical theme. Each rushee was given a tiny paper boat with an unfurled flag bearing the group's insignia. Bid notices were placed in the boats.

Among those honored were Misses Angela Ackerson, Carol Adams, Mary Ann Danielson, Frances Jorgensen, Mary Harrison, Joy Gilbert, Mary Allen, Ginger Morris, Jo Ann Trutanich, Jo Gugich, Carol Sandison, Carolyn McCoy, Betty Slover, Eris Detert, Betty Mooney, Janice Grayson, Jeanette Chatter, Lorraine Carter, Rosalind Sillavo, Mary Ann Kordich, Amelia McKinn, Pat Glavinie, Nancy Bowman, Jean Watkins and Mildred Canning.

ENGAGEMENT OF Miss Janice Wickman to Richard N. O'Neill is being announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wickman of 2310 Chestnut Ave. Both young persons are graduates of Polytechnic High School. She attended Woodbury College and her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. O'Neill of 402 E. First St., a graduate of City College, is now a student at San Jose State College. A June wedding is being planned.

Barbara Anne O'Hara

Barbara O'Hara Sets Date to Wed James R. Russell Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. George Osborne O'Hara, 4420 California Ave., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Anne, to James Reid Russell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Reid Russell Sr., 3801 Jotham Pl. The wedding will take place on Dec. 27.

The bride-to-be was graduated from New York State College for Teachers at Buffalo and has done graduate work at Columbia University. Pepperdine College and LBSC. She is now an instructor at LBSC and is a member of the local branch of AAUW.

Her fiancé, a native of Long Beach, received his education at Polytechnic High School, LBSC and USC, where he was a member of Chi Phi Fraternity. During World War II he served with the U. S. Army in Europe. With his wedding he will relinquish membership in the Bachelor's Club.

Miss Maxine Honer

Maxine Honer Bride-to-Be

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Honer of 1237 1/2 E. Sixth St. recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Maxine, to Pfc. James H. Reno Jr., USMC. Plans are being made for an early summer wedding.

Miss Honer is a graduate of Polytechnic High School where she received Phi Beta Kappa recognition. Long Beach City College where she received the Viking Award and AWS Five Jewel Pin, and was active in Ramayana, Kappa, Associated Women Students and Women's Athletic Association.

Her fiancé attended school in Pennsylvania and is now serving with the 36th Marine Corps Air Division stationed at Santa Ana.

Dessert Bridge

Reminiscent of college days will be the party for alumnae members of Kappa Kappa Gamma and Kappa Alpha Theta national sororities when they meet at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. William S. Cheney, 5370 E. Prado, for a dessert bridge. All Kappas and Thetas in the area are invited and may make reservations with Mrs. Standee Lawrence, 3919 Lemon Ave.

Burnett WCTU

Members of Burnett WCTU will gather Monday at the home of Mrs. Arthur Maynard, 1640 Gundry Ave. at 1 p. m. A report on the recent state convention will be given by delegates. Tea will be served, followed by a silent auction.

To Elect Officers

Wives of Navy Doctors Club will meet at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday in Allen Center to elect officers for 1954. Luncheon hostess will be Mrs. Ada Funk. Reservations must be made by tomorrow noon with Mrs. H. F. Belmore, 256 Roswell Ave.

Klassen-Purcell Rites in Texas

A home at Waikiki Beach in Honolulu will be established by Staff Sgt. Fritz E. Klassen, USAF, for his bride, the former Dolores Mae Purcell, following their honeymoon in California and the Hawaiian Islands. The couple exchanged wedding vows the evening of Oct. 30 in First Methodist Church chapel, Houston, Texas.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester A. Purcell of Houston, was given in marriage by her father, Rev. Paul Brown officiated.

The ballerina-length bridal gown was fashioned of white tulle and shadow lace, with a portrait neckline, brief sleeves and bouffant skirt over taffeta. Accenting its softness was a coronet of seed pearls with a fingertip veil of net. Miss Purcell carried a white orchid and stephanotis on a Bible.

Miss Elizabeth Fischer was maid of honor. The bridegroom's father, F. H. Klassen of 177 E. 69th St., Long Beach, was best man. Robert A. Sarich and Arthur Barkley seated the guests.

Hostessing at the wedding reception in City Federation Clubhouse were Mrs. Gene Johnson, Misses Shirley McKinley, Josephine Johnson, Dorothy Preuss and Martha McRae.

The bride, a former Long Beach resident, was graduated from Jordan High School and attended Houston Business College. Her affiliations included Phi Lambda Theta Sorority and Assembly 68 of Order of Rainbow Girls. Sgt. Klassen attended Jordan and was graduated from Palm Springs High School.

Music Group to Celebrate Anniversary

Seven Southern California chapters of Mu Phi Epsilon, national music sorority, will gather at Wilshire Ebell Club, Los Angeles, on Nov. 13 to celebrate the organization's 50th anniversary.

Here for the occasion will be Eleanor Hale Wilson, national first vice president. She will visit the Long Beach chapter Monday when the group has its inspection meeting with Mrs. G. A. Verson, 5989 El Paseo.

High lighting the district meeting will be Mrs. Wilson's report on the memorial lodge built by Mu Phi Epsilon at the National Music Camp, Interlochen, Mich. Revenue from the rental of the lodge, dedicated to the founders, will provide scholarships each summer for deserving high school student musicians.

Mrs. Wilson's trip is part of the regular biennial inspection tour of the 29 chapters on the Pacific coast.

Civil Defense Procedure Discussed by Lt. Mooney

Long Beach, one of the nation's top 10 targets in the event of atomic war, can have confidence that its civilian defense director, Police Lt. W. J. Mooney, will do the best job that is humanly possible in defense of the city. Lt. Mooney, speaking before the 18th Congressional District of Republican Women, Federated, described a communications center that would go into operation to direct rescue and medical teams, should an attack occur.

He also told of the impression made upon him when in World War II he saw French school children running out of their schools only to be killed in the streets. This experience helped spark his determination to train school teachers and officials in Long Beach to keep the children in the school buildings, since the schools are among the safest and soundest structures in the city.

The speaker related instances of opposition to Civilian Defense, by people appearing before the school board to argue that defense training was frightening the children and should be discontinued, and arguing against the use of identification tags such as those used by school children in Washington, D. C., New Orleans, La., and other centers.

"Public disinterest, however, presents the greatest obstacle, since it couples with insufficient funds voted by public officials for civil defense use," Lt. Mooney said, who has spoken to approximately 85,000 people in Long Beach, giving them the same message as that given the Republican women's group, namely, "Learn to defend yourself individually; don't depend on someone else to do it for you. Plan to use your car inside your garage as the most effective bomb shelter available to you in your own home area. Have three days' supply of food and water in closed containers on hand for each member of your family. Consumption of food or water exposed to atomic radiation would be fatal."

The subject of Civil Defense was chosen by the club for this program at the suggestion of officials in the administration in Washington who, along with President Eisenhower, see a need for intensified public interest in Civil Defense since the news that Russia possesses the hydrogen bomb.

The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. George P. Taubman Jr., with Mrs. Harrison Moore introducing the speaker. Brief commentaries were made by Woodrow Baird, chairman of the 18th Congressional District Republican Central Committee, Ken McCall, chairman of the precinct organization for the 18th District, and by Capt. Robert F. Rife.

Civic Group Plans Dinner

Heading the agenda for the monthly meeting of the newly incorporated Pacific Bowl Association is a discussion of plans for the gala Founder's Dinner to take place early in December at the Hermosa Biltmore Hotel.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 this evening in the Hermosa Biltmore, headquarters for the group.

The banquet will get the Christmas season off to a glittering start, and at the same time honor the nearly 2000 initial members who will have joined by Dec. 1. Special membership cards will be presented the charter members, recognizing them as the founders as long as they retain active membership in the Pacific Bowl Association.

Vanities and Varieties for

Molly Mayfield

Sisters in Love With Same Man

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a young business woman of 24. Two years ago I was engaged to a soldier who was killed six months later in Korea.

It had happened to many other women, I realize, but this was scant comfort to me, and his death was almost my undoing. For a year afterwards I felt as though I were living outside myself. My body lived on but my mind was numb.

I am not one to show my emotions easily, and the self-contained and calm appearance I presented to the world caused my family and friends to admire the way I was able to bear up under such a shock. They didn't suspect it took every ounce of self-mastery I could muster.

After my fiancé was killed, I never thought I'd ever again fall in love so deeply, but I was wrong. One cannot, at 24, go on for the rest of her life in love with a ghost.

Well, six months ago I met Larry. I met him on a blind date which one of my friends had arranged. I think I fell in love with him the moment I saw him. As the evening progressed I was completely infatuated.

He was charming, kind, considerate, good-looking—in short, everything I could want in a man. He seemed to like me, and when he called for me the next week, I introduced him to my family, including my sister who is two years younger than I am.

Thereby hangs the tale. In a few minutes he was captivated by her. He asked me question after question about her—even if I thought she would go out with him.

I often wonder whether I should have lied and said no, but instead I advised him to ask her. He did, and to make a long story short they started dating regularly. My sister fell entirely in love with him—and he with her.

She had no idea what he meant to me. I tried to talk myself out of loving him, but love is a strange thing. Every time I saw him my heart would drop to my feet and my knees would go weak.

My sister talked constantly of Larry. It was a natural thing. We'd always been close. She never dreamed how much unhappiness she was causing me. I tried to avoid him when he came to the house because I was sensible enough to know I stood no chance with him. After all, he had made his choice between us.

Now Larry and my sister have announced their engagement and they are to be married in a month. My sister is starry-eyed, and full of plans. Were I not so wretched myself I could rejoice with her, but indeed it is all I can do to wish her happiness.

The reason I am writing you is because my sister wants me to be maid of honor at the wedding and everyone naturally expects I will be. But I have tortured myself long enough. I despise martyrs, and if I go to her wedding that is exactly what I would be.

I can't be maid of honor and not collapse in the process. I'm only human. A person can take only so much. I have racked my brain for a valid excuse for not attending. I can't leave town because of my work.

Please tell me what you think I should do. Should I force myself to go to the wedding—and if not, how can I stay home?—MARSHA.

DEAR MARSHA: Actually I think in the long run you'd despise yourself if you didn't go to the wedding. True, you may despise martyrs, but don't you despise cowards more? And wouldn't you be a coward if you hid out at a time like this when your sister needs you and is counting on you?

Of course it's tough. The whole situation is tough. But life—as you have found—is like that. The best any of us can do is face these situations, and through facing them we gain amazing strength. Strength, of course, is what you're going to need as the years pass, because your hurt will only gradually dwindle. However, I'm sure it will dwindle—and I think it is in believing this that you will have the courage to face what you must.—M. M.

Giggling Not Charm Asset

By ALICIA HART

"You are as young as you act" is an axiom that some middle-aged women heed too well. The extreme often manifests itself in the form of girlish giggles.

Low, throaty laughter and soft speech indicate gentility. No one who has left girlhood can be really charming without them.

Giggling particularly detracts from the charm of the older woman. What's more, it tends, by contrast, to call attention to her age.

Yet any woman can cultivate a feminine laugh that will not introduce the age question. It requires only the will to do so and practice.

Listen to your laugh and try to get it to a lower pitch. You will effect an immediate change. However, it will take practice to perfect your new laugh. And it will take time for it to become completely natural to you.

While you are improving your laugh, you might also check up on your voice.

A clear, well-modulated voice is a reflection of poise and mental alertness. A nagging, scolding, rasping voice sounds old.

Keep your voice young by speaking from the diaphragm and by using your mouth and jaws fully. Try to achieve a resonant, assured quality in your speech.

Play Doesn't Help Game

South got no pleasure at all out of today's hand. He thought he could beat four hearts if his partner had allowed the double to stand, but he was wrong, and he found the wrong way to play his actual contract of four spades. Some days it's better to stay in bed.

West opened the ace of hearts, forcing the dummy to ruff. South led dummy's king of diamonds to East's ace and won the club return with the ace of clubs. He next led a diamond to dummy's queen and ruffed a third diamond with the eight of spades.

West over-ruffed with the ten of spades, cashed the queen of clubs, and then shrewdly led a heart to make dummy ruff once more. If West had led a third club, South would ruff, take the two top trumps, and then win the rest of the tricks with dummy's last trump and the established diamonds.

This play prevented South from establishing the dummy. South got to his hand by ruffing a club, ruffed a heart in dummy, and tried to return by ruffing a diamond with the jack of spades. West over-ruffed with the queen, however, defeating the contract.

Where did South go wrong? How should he have played the hand? See if you can pick the best line of play before you read on.

South made his mistake when he ruffed the third round of diamonds with the eight of spades. He should have discarded his losing club.

The defenders then have two tricks, but will win only one more. East wins the jack of diamonds, and West discards a club, hoping to get an over-ruff in that suit.

East now returns a trump and South wins with the king. South ruffs a second heart in dummy, ruffs one club in his hand, ruffs a third heart with dummy's last trump, and then leads a good diamond to discard his last heart. West has to ruff, and South makes the rest.

It doesn't help East to return a club instead of a trump, for South can ruff in his hand, ruff a heart in dummy, and get back to his hand with a trump. No defense can prevent South from bringing this position about.

America Interprets the Italian Look

CHARM and distinction of the Italian Look have been retained in this less extreme version of the popular coiffure, designed by Ingerid, New York hair stylist. The style keeps the short, shaggy effect, but has more curl. Studied nonchalance, with soft, yet tousled, curls to replace the spiked sharpness effected by Rome, gives a smoother, more polished contour.

For Good Health, Negative Thinkers Need New Outlook

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Some people keep worrying about their bodies. Others, like Clyde fret about their minds. Both types are negative thinkers and need to take a new viewpoint. So start thinking about others, instead of yourselves, as you pay three honest compliments every day. You can save thousands of dollars in needless doctor bills this way.

Case J-336: Clyde G., aged 34, is a neurotic art student.

"Dr. Crane, I was discharged from the Army as a psychoneurotic," he began mournfully. "Since then, I have spent over $1000 going to doctors. But they tell me they've done all they can for me."

"But still I sit around and try to analyze myself. I guess I think too much. But I keep hoping I'll find some doctor who will cure me. Then I can get a job and live like normal people. So can you cure me?"

No, I can't cure him any more than his other doctors could. For we doctors don't cure you, anyway. You must cure yourself. And the sooner Americans learn that simple fact, the less mental ailments we'll have.

We doctors can help you by directing your thinking along the right channels. But you must then make the plunge. Wouldn't it be silly for Clyde to want his doctors to refuse him to swim, but always refuse to get into the water?

Nobody can teach you to swim. Neither could I do Clyde's swimming for him, nor can anybody else, doctor or layman. For "swimming" is always an individual task which the swimmer himself must perform.

The same thing is true in mental medicine. But millions of Americans still seem to think the doctor can do their mental "swimming," as it were. So stop coddling yourself like that. Instead, get into motion. For normal motions will soon lead to normal emotions.

"But I'm afraid to go to work," Clyde protested, trembling. "I just can't do it."

Why can't he do it? He's able-bodied. But he simply has stagefright. That's no fatal malady. Everybody has stagefright whenever he tackles something out of the ordinary. So whip up your courage. Normal people go to work in the morning. So if you feel abnormal again by doing what normal people do. That means, go to work, regardless of your quivering emotions.

For if you go through normal motions, you'll soon begin to have normal emotions and normal thoughts. You folks who feel you are abnormal simply need to act like normal people for a few weeks and then you'll begin to feel like normal folks.

There is no royal road to swimming or mental health. You have to earn both of these by doing the hard work yourself. Nervous breakdowns usually develop because of a severe type of conflict between two deep emotions. These may be desire vs. conscience.

So get the facts. If you consult your doctor, write out your complete case to save him time. Then face the issue. Do what you know is the proper thing, even if it seems like you will die in the process. You will not die.

Mental patients need to extrovert their attention upon other people and quit moaning about themselves. So join the "Compliment Club," which requires you to pay three honest compliments per day for 30 days.

For that experiment trains you to think positively and look for virtues instead of faults and vices. Meanwhile, it takes your attention off yourself. So you will soon become brave and popular and gay.

"DON'T FENCE ME IN," says Chef of the Week Dick Loyne. He prefers the wide open spaces to accommodate a boat—any kind of a boat. His interests in the briny deep are not only recreation-wise, but of the harbor and shoreline, as well.—(Staff Photo by H. S. Melvin.)

Chef of the Week Regatta Champion Joins Ranks of Culinary Experts

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
(Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor)

He got off to a good start in Long Beach, his Dad having arrived in 1884 via horseback. He came at the invitation of John Bixby, father of the late Fred Bixby, to build an opera house. Chef of the Week Dick Loyne is a product of the machine age, however, machines with aquatic propensities particularly.

Vocationally, he owns and manages the Marine Industrial Supply Co.—vocationally, he conducts a super-duper machine shop in his garage. In fact, his two-car domicile is so full of lathes, "grinders," etc., that there's no room left for the cars.

The "Loyne Motor Service" was a major Long Beach business from 1922 'till 1942, located at Third and Chestnut, the original family homestead, but Dick is probably best known as a "boatswain." From '23 to '33 he entered practically every big regatta staged in the United States, Canada and Cuba. He "cruised" in as winner of 16 world's records—three times as national, twice as world's champion and won the Golden Gate International Exposition trophy by piloting the yacht Contender from San Francisco to Honolulu. Dick was the first person, too, to ever broadcast an ocean race. On the latter race he was in contact, via the Mutual Broadcasting System, with 128 radio stations on a coast-to-coast hookup. Aside from Dick's prowess "at the wheel," much of the aforementioned "speed" might be attributed to the five gallons of castor oil he always used in the crankcase. 'Twas his own idea, we're told. This summer he succumbed to a steamer cruise along the coast of South America on the Atlantic side, but he still prefers piloting his own yacht, the 60-foot Fan-thom.

Les Humphrey to Address Women Accountants Meet

By ANNE GILCHRIST

"Guest Night" next Wednesday, and members of American Society of Women Accountants will need no urging to bring guests on that particular night meeting at the Lafayette. Reason for the interest in this meeting will be the appearance of Les Humphreys, international president of the Men's Club of the YMCA and a Long Beach resident. The speaker recently toured for 6 months through 12 countries and not only will tell of his many experiences and observations but will show some excellent films of India. Virginia Youngquist will preside.

Medical Assistants will hold regular dinner meeting tomorrow night at Jones Dining Room and will hear not one, but two, fine speakers. Main speaker of the evening will be Harvey McCafferty, business manager of Boyd's Clinic, who will discuss "Office Management." McCafferty is president of the National Medical Administrative Association and a member of the National Association of Clinic Managers.

Second speaker will be Mrs. Hugh Gentry, vice president of the Long Beach Cerebral Palsy Association whose narrative topic will be, "The Problem of Cerebral Palsy in Long Beach." Medical Assistants have a greater than usual interest in this because, as their annual project, they have voted to support the Cerebral Palsy Lee School here this year.

Hostesses for tomorrow's meeting will be Thelma Swenson, Leona Corrigan, Beth Snyder, Rita Churney, and Juanita Elliott.

Margaret Ives Business and Professional Women's Club members gathered at the YWCA last Monday for regular monthly business meeting. President Vivian Showalter presided.

Of greatest interest was the report on the Sierra Mar District winter conference to be held here at the Lafayette next weekend. Myrl Cypher, general chairman of the conclave, made the report and urged that all committee chairmen attend the workshops.

Child Care

Stuttering Boy Needs Special Aid

By BEULAH FRANCE, R. N.

Q. "My 5-year-old started to stutter about two years ago. He's much better, but at times still stutters badly. My 3-year-old son now stutters, too, occasionally, though he never did before. What shall I do?" —MRS. L. Z.

A. Consult a speech specialist as soon as possible. Charles Van Riper, recognized authority in the speech field, declares in his widely-read book, "Teaching Your Child to Talk," that there are "thousands of varieties of stuttering." It is essential to diagnose a child's stuttering before deciding how best to cope with it.

The type occurring occasionally is apparently what is bothering your boys. It's essential that they have help right away, since stuttering, neglected, can reach a permanent and incurable stage.

Dr. Van Riper warns in his book: "This must not happen to your child!" He also adds, "It need not." If all parents could acquire and apply the knowledge this book's pages present, many children might be saved from speech handicaps.

For stuttering is not the only form in which speech deviations develop. Clear, correct, concise and fluent speech may make progress possible which can never be attained if there is speech trouble of any kind.

Dr. Van Riper opens his discussion with a fascinating description of how a child learns to talk, starting with the birth cry. He helpfully leads readers step by step in the teaching process, pointing out dangers to be avoided and best ways to help language develop. With the guidance of a speech specialist and the aid of "Teaching Your Child to Talk," you can save your sons from sorrow if you act at once.

In his inexpensive pamphlet, "Helping Children Talk Better" (published by Science Research Associates), Dr. Van Riper says there are 4,000,000 speech-crippled children today. That is tragic.

Ask Beulah France to help you with your child care problems. Write her in care of Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for her reply.

Skin Beautified by Sensational Method

If you are one of the many who have skin troubles, this column can be the beginning of a new and happy future for you. For one of the most amazing skin treatments you have ever had, you will want to take advantage of this scientific plan for clearing bad complexions and building up weakened tissues. Many teen-agers, men and women with erupted skins have been thrilled with the wonderful results.

First, the skin is cleansed such as it has never been cleaned before. Clogged pores are purged of stagnant oils which are one of the main causes for acne. This is done by using a gentle suction act-which clog pores. You'll be surprised at the grime that is embedded in your skin.

ELECTRICAL TREATMENT Next, the operator masks the face and throat in cloths saturated with a special liquid which, when attached to an electric current, is carried down to the third germicidal layer of skin. Here is where the rebuilding of tissue cells takes place. Not only have these treatments cleared up many blemished skins, but they also build up sagging muscles less than an hour.

You will see a startling improvement with just one treatment. For a limited time, an introductory treatment is only $2.00. See for yourself. For name of salon, phone 61-1419.

One hundred thousand fans swarmed Corona for its second auto races in 1914. Winner was Eddie Pullen. Speed, 87 miles per hour.

Corona--Early Day Indianapolis of West

By Helen Smith

IF YOU SHOULD be out for a Sunday drive which takes you through tree-shaded Corona, you may not be aware that, as you drive along Hwy. 18 and intersect twice with Grand Blvd., you have passed over what was formerly a world-famous automobile race track.

This asphalt roadway encircling the city once knew the squealing of brakes, the terrible din of telescoping steel and the acrid smell of exhaust from overheated motors as such racing greats as Barney Oldfield, Eddie Rickenbacker, Ralph DePalma, Earl Cooper and Bob Burman swarmed over the course at nearly 100 miles per hour.

These historic events happened 40 years ago.

Today Grand Blvd., which has a circumference of slightly more than three miles, compared with Indianapolis Speedway's 2½, is a peaceful, picturesque avenue lined with trailing pepper trees—the same trees upon which were inflicted slashing wounds from hurtling cars.

Why was Corona chosen as the scene of those western classics back in the days when the nation-wide interest in auto racing had reached an all-time peak?

City founders H. Clay Kellogg and Robert B. Taylor back in 1866 decided that a perfect circle, divided into four quarters, would provide the main arteries of the city they named Corona. It was then, and remains today, the only "circle city" in the United States and as such proved a natural choice as the site of the popular sport.

FROM 1866 until 1912 the boulevard was unpaved and the ladies and gentlemen in their horse-drawn carriages serenely promenaded the ever-turning avenue, equestrians used it as a bridle path and the loop became an integral part of the then quiet life of the little Orange Belt city.

In 1912 a layer of asphalt was poured onto the 60-foot-wide roadway. The events which rapidly followed dispelled the quiet for all time. Corona has never been quite the same since.

A meeting called by members of the Corona Auto Club and the newly formed Western Automobile Racing Association scheduled the first race for Sept. 9, 1913. But even a week prior to the big day, Corona and the near-by towns of Riverside and San Bernardino experienced a foretaste of the change in tempo that was to come to this citrus growing district. The horse and buggy days definitely were over.

Drivers and mechanics and representatives of the press poured into town. People came from all over the country via every known conveyance to view this first western classic. From

5 a. m. until dusk residents heard the whine of racing motors. Hotels were filled to overflowing and those unable to find accommodations slept in their cars, so great was the interest in the event.

As trial runs progressed the seasoned racers began to have a feeling of uneasiness concerning the course. It was tricky. Although the turns were unbanked and the road level except for an eight-inch crown, the circle lay on a gentle slope of ground. This, along with the constant turning of the steering wheel, put a pressure on tires they could not withstand for long. Blowouts were numerous—too numerous for even these early-day daredevils. They sensed it to be the deadly circle it was to become.

BY NOON of race day every seat in the 5000-capacity grandstand was filled and thousands more lined the course—providing an additional hazard not only to themselves but to the racers. Special trains had been dispatched from San Francisco, San Diego and other western points carrying thousands of eager fans; 75,000 spectators eventually jammed the town.

In the line-up for the main event were 15 cars accelerating at the flash of the starter's flag. Only three were able to roll over the finish line.

Death claimed its first victim in this race as Barney Oldfield, at the wheel of a Mercer, blew a tire on the 59th lap. The resulting accident killed his mechanic, Sned Hoffer.

Early sport records say Earl Cooper captured top honors and $5000 prize money in this tragic opener. Driving a Stutz, he won the 300-mile free-for-all by going 109 laps in 4 hours, 2 minutes, 38 seconds, at an average speed of 74 miles an hour.

Nov. 26, 1914, marked the date of the second racing meeting. One hundred thousand persons filled the city to capacity—more than at some times have attended the Indianapolis show. Eighty-seven miles per hour was the winning speed with Eddie Pullen taking prize money.

This time seven of the 19 starters were able to cross the finish line.

DUE TO COMPETITION from San Francisco World's Fair, no races were held in 1915.

In 1916, the event was set for April 8. Death, as usual a punctilious attendant, claimed three persons this time, with five near casualties. "Wild Bob" Burman, whose eastern exploits made him the acknowledged

"King of Speed," early took the lead. Driving the most sensational race of his career despite 11 blowouts and many minor mechanical difficulties, he managed to keep within a few laps of Eddie O'Donnell, who later won.

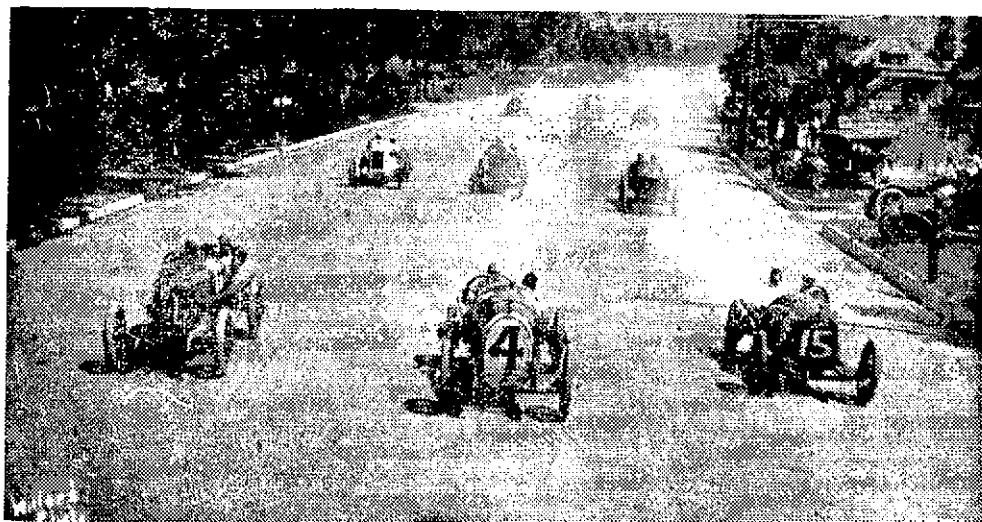

But fate had already written the climax to these classics and on Burman's 95th lap, pressing his Peugeot to a searing 98 miles an hour, he blew a left rear tire. The resulting wreckage sent his car headlong into one filled with fans. Burman and W. H. Speer, a track guard, were killed almost instantly. Eric Schader, Burman's mechanic, died shortly thereafter. The five persons in the other car were all seriously injured.

THE DAY ENDED in chaos. Screaming ambulance sirens and near-hysteria brought police on an issued riot call.

The quiet-loving citizens of Corona had had enough. Aroused and determined to end the noise, confusion and interminable accidents, they succeeded in writing fins not only to the races but to all major western meets as well.

Time, the great healer, has been at work in Corona just as elsewhere. This year the city held a celebration in honor of these early-day happenings. The Horseless Carriage Club and their vintage cars were on hand to simulate the racing heats, which proved extremely popular. It is to be repeated annually every Memorial Day.

So, if you should be driving out Corona way and approaching in an easterly direction, turn your wheel to the right when you reach Grand Blvd. As you tour the circle you will be retracing the route of the racers of bygone times.

Death rode with the racers as they roared around circle. Aroused Coronans finally succeeded in writing fins to all such major events in the west.

IT TAKES EVERY KIND

Don't We All Ask Foolish Questions!

By Newt Todd

WHY DOES ICE CREAM taste better than spinach?

Why is it the sun shines only in the daytime when we don't need it?

Where does the wind go when it's resting?

Why, why, why, why— ???

These and hundreds of other zany questions and requests are channeled through City Hall and Board of Education switchboards annually, much to the consternation of employees.

Police Chief William H. (Bill) Dovey will tell you that the Police Department comes in for more than its share of irate taxpayer demands and plain psyches.

Take the case of an actual phone conversation that took place recently.

Citizen: "Do you have a Police Department on Ocean Blvd?"

Desk: "We have a radio car in the vicinity."

Citizen: "Tell them to come over and chase a bug off my rug."

Desk: "Why don't you step on it?"

Citizen: "I'm afraid, and I'm a taxpayer. I want the police to do it."

Desk: "If you're afraid to step on it, hit it with a broom."

Citizen: "I have no broom."

Desk: "What do you sweep with?"

Citizen: "It's none of your business who I sleep with."

Desk: "I said sweep with."

Citizen: "I never sweep. Never mind sending the police. I'll just stop paying my taxes."

Click. . .

ANOTHER DRAMATIC phase of city life is the Fire Department. Chief Frank Sandeman reports that an individual called at a very late hour recently and in a surly tone asked why firemen slid down the greased pole.

The chief answered the question to the best of his ability and the party asked, "Why don't the firemen sleep downstairs?"

Firemen are constantly being asked to baste roasts "at intervals," break in the house and pull the plug on a curling iron, and getting calls from neighbors saying that John Doe's attic, yard and home is a fire hazard. Unfortunately, the person calling is afraid to leave a name or number for fear that Doe will boycott him.

An irate woman once stormed into Chief Sandeman's office and plunked a dead monkey down on his desk. She demanded the chief administer artificial respiration.

"My landlady died. Where do I pay my rent?"

"Where is the fourth floor?"

"There's an owl outside our bedroom window. Come and get him because he not only watches my wife undress, but he whistles occasionally."

"Why can't you call on us the days we're at home?"

"I can't donate any money to your department. I need cash myself. Can you swing a loan for me?"

These headaches belong to Sam Roberts, head of the city assessor's office, tax collecting, accounting and purchasing. He's asked to collect the garbage, too.

Doug Newcomb's Board of Education is certainly no exception. Some examples of questions his office gets:

"My boy's allergic to water. Can he skip gym class?"

"Can you get rid of my bugs?"

"I have a sick chicken. Do you have a professor available that can diagnose his ailment?"

"I hate mocking birds. Is there any place in the city where they don't roost?" City Librarian Edwin Castagna had to answer this teaser.

CITY ENGINEERS come up against some dillies. One person called in and said "I want to have my limbs trimmed."

"Will you cut a twig off my palm tree?" asked another.

But the clincher was the dude that requested the department to "send someone out to pick up my ashes."

Headman Jess Gilkerson had to scratch his head on this one. Didn't know whether the guy wanted an engineer or a mortician.

"I lost my cat. I want you to find him. When you do, be sure to whistle, because he thinks he's a dog."

"All the birds around my house are very noisy. I'm naming God as a specific defendant because He's the only one that's responsible."

Jimmy Starr, city prosecutor, was tabbed to answer that one.

The Building Department, headed by Edward O'Connor, is not to be excluded. Someone lifted the receiver and said, "I've invented an earthquake shock absorber. Are you interested?" Another wanted permission to moor a tremendous advertising balloon within the confines of the city. Still another was quite indignant when the department made him tear down a purple fence with yellow polka dots.

CITY HALL telephone operators receive frequent calls for the "Indignant Relief Department."

"I want this immoral conduct stopped at once. Young girls in my neighborhood are sitting on their front porches after 10 p. m." The question is, how did Joe Kennick, head of the Juvenile Bureau answer this one?

The Chamber of Commerce is a focal point for insane questions and requests. Some samples that D. W. Campbell, general manager, has ruled:

"Where do I get tickets?"

"Where do I get entertained?"

"What town is San Diego 3 in?"

"Please send me the location

For Whistling Out Loud!

Sunday, November 8, 1953

Wherever Kathy Hughes goes, she gets attention from males. Even a drake will follow her off.

A lot of people have won stardom in movies for a lot of reasons. But, up 'til now, there's no record of any femme player reaching the exalted pinnacle because males in the movie audience automatically whistled when she came on the screen! Such is the case with Kathleen Hughes! Player of decorative bit roles (wow!) and "supporting" parts, Kathleen, in her forthcoming movie, "The Glass Web," gets star billing, says Universal-International Studios. The reason is: Kathy has looked beautiful enough to "bother" males in many films, but in her last one her bit role evoked whistles from coast to coast. And such an accolade, of course, deserves a rich reward.

As the din of the whistles increased, Kathy was so happy that she practically stood on her head.

When Kathy did a bit role in "It Came From Outer Space," whistles were heard across the U. S.

What will Kathleen do in her first starring role? She'll get strangled to death—in exciting 3-D. But she won't mind. She's quite happy, as you see.

of all hotels, public buildings, and homes demolished in the last six months, and a description of the neighborhood they stood in."

"Please send me the elevation of all mountains between here and Texas."

"When is Thanksgiving?" All during the year, City Clerk Margaret Heartwell receives questions on this subject. Strangely enough, it never crops up on the days approaching the actual holiday, or immediately thereafter.

THE CITY COUNCIL has to act on Police Department business, of course. Like the character who called and demanded that all date trees on Redondo Ave. be cut down. Said the rats infesting the foliage were dropping down on the pedestrians. Was afraid he'd be sued.

A Washington man wrote to the police, and it was referred to the council. He was asking help in finding his "lost" wife and car. He instructed the Police Department to wire him collect "if the car is located" so he could get it back.

How about the elderly lady who insisted that the police place blankets over the trees under her bedroom window so the rustle of the leaves wouldn't disturb her afternoon siesta. Or, the person who dropped to his knees on the floor of a local pub recently and declared that he was a pinball machine. Complained occasionally that he was being tilted.

Or, the young housewife who demanded that the city employ only left-handed garbage collectors since she was so "partial to southpaws." Or, the oldster who jumped into the lagoon and refused to get out. Said he was a harbor buoy.

Or Never mind. You get the idea now. We live in an interesting age and there's never a dull moment.

Cruise in the South Pacific

TWENTY-FIVE fascinating ports are listed on the fabulous itinerary of the famed world cruise liner Caronia, which is slated for a thrilling 99-day Japan-South Pacific cruise, leaving

New York Jan. 23, 1954.

The popular 34,000-ton Caronia, acclaimed by many as the world's outstanding cruise ship, has voyaged to many parts of the world and is well known to cruise enthusiasts. As she sails on this exciting Pacific-circling venture, she will visit on her fascinating 33,988-mile itinerary some unusual places that are rarely visited on cruises, and one of the high lights of the journey will be a week in Japan on the first luxury cruise operated there for 15 years by a major transatlantic steamship company.

First she will cruise the Caribbean, then transit the Panama Canal, calling at Cristobal and Balboa. Passengers will find the eight-hour passage through the Canal highly interesting, for this "ditch" connecting the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, with its locks and mechanical mules, is one of the great engineering wonders of the world. At Balboa, Pacific terminal of the Canal, there will be opportunities to explore the ruins of Old Panama, sacked by the buccancer Morgan in 1671, and by way of contrast, dine and dance at the luxurious new El Panama.

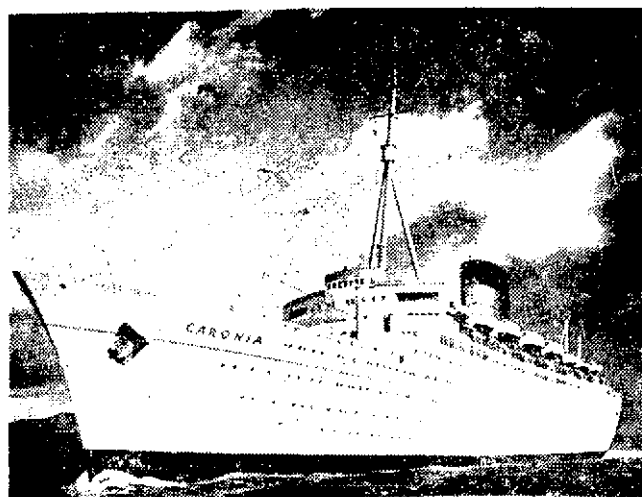

A call is scheduled next at Callao, Peru, port for the capital, Lima, and once the leading city of Spanish America. From Peru, the Caronia will make a series of visits to delightful seagirt South Seas islands.

First comes Easter Island, famous for its stone idols (moais). Landing conditions will not permit passengers to go ashore and inspect these examples of early Polynesian art, but islanders will visit the ship in their small boats.

AT PITCAIRN ISLAND, next stop in the Caronia's itinerary, landing conditions again will make it impossible to go ashore, but a traditional island welcome will be staged. Ships call there infrequently, but when they do, the islanders, descendants of the mutineers of HMS Bounty, who first settled there in 1790, vow out in their Elizabethan long-boat, singing hymns, and then come on board with souvenirs, island stamps and fruits for sale.

Other islands to be visited include Suva (Fiji), Pago Pago (Samoa) and Vavau (Friendly Islands), where visits ashore will give passengers an idea of the rich tropical beauty of these islands and a chance to watch fascinating tribal dances and perhaps understand the lure of pulsing native drums.

From Vavau, ruled by 6-foot-4 native Queen Salote, the Caronia will head for Auckland, N. Z., gateway to Zane Gray's "Northland." From here it's an easy jaunt to the famous Thermal Region of Rotorua, where geysers and bubbling mud were long ago put to domestic use by the Maoris. The ship will also call at Wellington, the capital, for a look around this prosperous city with the many elegant homes built upon the hill overlooking the harbor. Of international fame is the Glowworm Cave at near-by Waitomo, which has called forth the comment: "If it is possible for beauty to hurt, this does." A call will be made at Lyttelton in the South Island of New Zealand, then the Caronia heads south and cruises the fjords of Thompson and George Sounds amid scenery that rivals the coastline of Norway and crosses the Tasman Sea to Australia.

VISITORS WILL BE charmed by dignified Melbourne, Australia, with its flowering gums and little coffee shops along beautiful St. Kilda Rd., the glorious landscaping in the Botanical Gardens and the stately war memorial. Capt. Cook's cottage in the Fitzroy Gardens can be seen, too. Sydney will prove a great contrast to the quiet of Melbourne. It is a bustling, big city with many American ways. Rebel Mint

By Ellen Saunders

BEFORE YOU THROW AWAY the last of those Mexican coins you picked up on your vacation trip below the border, take a second look. You just might have one of the only coins in the world which have inscribed on them a death threat to an individual.

Sol Alexander, of 349 E. 53rd St., whose 16-year-old hobby of coin collecting has led to much research in the field, says that "the death threat coin," which was struck only in the one-peso value, carries the inscription, "Muera Huerta" (death to Huerta). It was minted by followers of the famed revolutionary leader, Francisco Villa, in 1913-1914 when Huerta was President of Mexico.

Mexican coinage dates back to 1536 when Charles the First of Spain ordered the first mint in the Western Hemisphere to be built in Mexico City—257 years before the United States Mint was opened in Philadelphia.

Although Alexander's coin collection is representative of each era in Mexican history since 1536, his greatest interest is in coinage of the Mexican Revolutionary period, 1913 to 1917. These were the years when many rebel leaders followed the example of Francisco Villa in ordering their followers to coin their own money.

Much of Alexander's knowledge of this exciting period has been acquired through visits to Parral, Mexico, the site of Villa's headquarters on many occasions. There he has interviewed the elderly Senor Rocha, newspaper editor, and lifelong friend of Villa. It was Senor Rocha who taught Villa to read after the latter had become a general.

According to Alexander, some of the 180 different coins minted during this period were unknown until a few years ago when, at a Mexico City auction, unused copper, brass and aluminum 5 and 10-centavos turned up.

A FEW OF THE COINS, such as the oblong-shaped 1-centavo piece, have already become collectors' items. Then there is the very rare 60-peso coin which bears the effigy of Benito Juarez. Early in 1915 the government of the State of Oaxaca (birthplace of Benito Juarez) had a disagreement with the central government. When Carranza, then President of Mexico, sent a contingent to quell the rebels, Gov. Canesco and his troops fled to the hills. Later they routed the Federal Army, and under the leadership of Gov. Jose Ines Davila declared themselves the Free and Independent State of Oaxaca, and proceeded to make their own money. For a year they successfully eluded the enemy. Then, as they were busily engaged in minting the 60-peso coin, the alarm sounded the approach of the Federalist army. The rebels scattered, leaving behind 21 coins which are now very highly prized.

Encouragement for Alexander to continue his absorbing hobby was received this year when he was accepted for membership in La Sociedad Numismatica de Mexico (The Numismatic Society of Mexico).

tians will reveal breath-taking scenic beauty in the bushlands around Katoomba and the nature of Australia's coastal lands.

A brief call will be made at historic Guadalcanal, famous in World War II history and once again peaceful and serene in tropic beauty. Next comes a day at Port Moresby, outlet for the rich gold and rubber of the New Guinea interior. Fierce-looking natives will perform Devil and Cassowary dances, a reminder that headhunters still inhabit the wilds. From Port Moresby, the Caronia will head for Indonesia and beautiful Bali. The ship will anchor at Padang Bay with time to explore and then dine at the famous Rih Hotel.

SINGAPORE, fascinating Oriental city well named the Crossroads of the East, intrigues the visitor with its colorful markets and babble of tongues. Its busy collection of ships from every port. Cocktails at the famous Raffles Hotel is a "must" here. Manila, another vital port in the East, shows its Spanish background and many points of wartime fame.

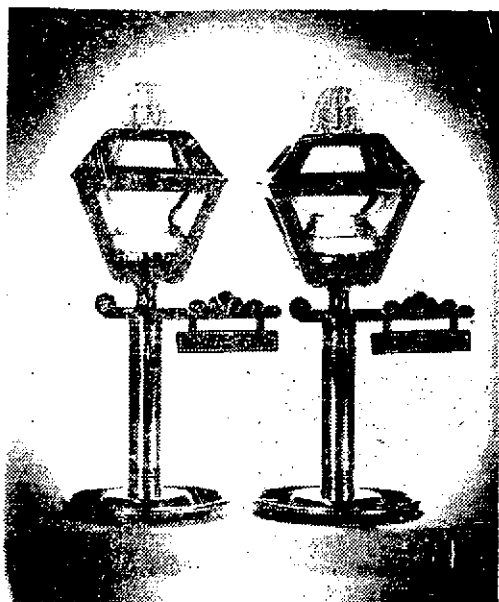

With the arrival of the Caronia in Kobe, a thrilling week of exploring Japan lies ahead. The whole countryside, a charming blend of the Old World and modern democratic outlook, will be at its best at this time of the year, when early spring brings the cherry trees into bloom. Then there will be many places to explore at Kyoto, Yokohama, Nara and other points.

On leaving Japan, the Caronia will visit the Hawaiian Islands, land of vacation living.

Calls at Long Beach and Acapulco, famous Mexican resort, follow. From the "mama" atmosphere of Old Mexico, the Caronia will again transit the Canal after completing her circuit of the Pacific, and head back to a New York spring.

He Has Played 10,000 Recitals

By Vera Williams

GENE DRISKILL has played 10,000 recitals.

Dean of the Long Beach Chapter of the American Guild of Organists and organist at Mottell's Mortuary, he plays for 1500 funerals a year, averaging 20 minutes of music for each service besides playing for soloists. Sometimes he plays for 10 services in one day.

The 15 minutes which precede the formal service become to him a recital and he prepares for it as though it was a set program played before a great paid audience. An article about Driskill, written by Ralph Freese, singer, appeared recently in "The Etude."

Driskill came to Mottell's with a Bachelor of Music (organ major) from Wichita University and a Bachelor of Arts degree from Friends University, both in Wichita, Kan. After a short career of teaching public school music, he became a chaplain's assistant in World War II.

The finest tribute he receives is when some person, in deep sorrow, says to him, "Your playing has brought hope and comfort to me. . . . Thank you."

"The mortuary musician holds a unique place in the musical field," says Driskill. "The position brings both a responsibility and a challenge. The responsibility is that of creating the mood for the service. The challenge is to provide accurate accompaniments for a great variety of soloists. The organist creates moods. He changes lives when he plays with this understanding.

Selecting and playing organ music that will give inspiration and comfort to others is the assignment of Gene Driskill (above), who has played 10,000 recitals.

"RECITALS must be built along definite lines, piece by piece, always looking to that dramatic moment when the organist will stop and the minister or officiant will take over.

"I can think of little music that is utterly unfit or should not be used as a memorial service if it is a request of the family. Every piece of music requested has some definite, vivid meaning to those who will hear it and it will recall to them pleasant and loved memories.

"A mortuary organist must play always to give hope, comfort and courage to the family and to the friends who come to the service. The music must create the atmosphere of certainty of the future, of the eternal love of God."

Delicious Yam Rolls

By Mildred K. Flanary

(Press-Telegram House Economics Editor)

WE TRANSPOSED Virginia Weldon Kelly from her home at Washington, D. C., to the penthouse atop the Independent-Press-Telegram Building for the picture that accompanies this article, complete with her inimitable graciousness, charm and southern hospitality.

Mrs. Kelly is from the "Saa-outh," you know, and when she finds a stolen moment in her busy life covering the Washington news front for the Independent-Press-Telegram, she'll invariably call a few friends for an informal evening at home, which she loves. Quite naturally, her piece de resistance very often has a distinctly Southern attitude such as yam rolls, shrimp bisque, old-fashioned batterbread, or perhaps a tipsy dessert. Her recipe for yam rolls is featured elsewhere on the page. Some others are given below:

Shrimp Bisque

1 cup cooked or canned shrimp
1 quart rich milk
1 tablespoon onion (finely grated)
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
Remove black veins from

Virginia Weldon Kelly's Yam Rolls:

½ yeast cake
¼ cup lukewarm water
¼ cup nonfat dry milk
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup water
2 tablespoons melted shortening
¾ cup sieved cooked yams
2½ cups (about) flour

Soften yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Sift nonfat dry milk, sugar and salt into a large mixing bowl. Gradually add ½ cup water. Stir in yeast, melted fat and potatoes. Add enough flour to make a dough which can be easily handled. Turn onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and velvety. Place in a greased bowl; brush top with butter. Cover and allow to rise until dough has doubled in bulk (about 2 hours). Knead slightly on lightly floured board. Shape into rolls. Place rolls on a greased baking sheet or in greased muffin tins. Cover and allow to rise until dough has doubled in bulk (about 2 hours). Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 18 minutes or until brown. Makes 1½ dozen rolls.

The south is famed for its cookery and its hospitality, two factors that go hand-in-hand, and Virginia Weldon Kelly (above) is an exponent of them both.

shrimp and chop shrimp as finely as possible. Mix butter and flour and stir slowly into heated milk. Use double boiler to guard against scorching. Add onion, salt, pepper and shrimp. Heat carefully and serve with a bit of chopped parsley on top. Serves four or five.

 "Where You Always Buy With Confidence"

WHAT QUALITY MEANS TO YOU
 Our emphasis is always on quality. We know, from our long experience, that you cannot obtain satisfactory quality at less than $9.95 a square yard, even on a sale basis.
 Better quality is a better investment — especially since the price is only slightly higher. In fact, it is actually cheaper in the long run because the carpet wears longer and looks better all that time. No one can undersell us on the qualities we offer!
 Bixby Knolls Carpet Company is proving that quality and good taste need not be expensive. Come in, see why this is the time to compare and buy!

OUR POLICY:
 1—Fair dealings and honest values.
 2—Well-known national brands, such as Lees, Alex. Smith, Masland, etc.
 3—Only perfect qualities—no seconds or imperfects.
 4—Double guarantees on every product we sell.
 5—Carefully supervised installation.
 6—Competitive prices always. We will not knowingly be undersold.
 7—Sincere advice on proper carpet selection and proper lay-out of the work, backed by a lifetime of experience in this field.

Animals that have been beloved pets in families from many walks of life find a final resting place in cemeteries like Pet Haven, shown above. Flowers are evidence of remembrance.

Postlude for Pets

WHERE DO GOOD PETS go when they die?

A good many persons deeply attached to their pets on earth hope that it may be possible to see them again on the Other Side.

But when deep in final sleep, the immediate problem is how to care properly for the pet's earthly remains. Particularly is this true for the apartment dweller or the home owner if he lives in an area where restrictions forbid burial of animals on the property.

For residents of Los Angeles County (whose pet population now even surpasses that of Paris, France — long in first place) there is the ultimate solution. A phone call at any hour of the day or night will bring a representative of M. Griffith's Pet Haven Cemetery, 18300 S. Figueroa St., Gardena.

Service, on a par with the personal mortician's, is complete with embalming and a choice of caskets (even a cement vault) or cremation with ashes mailed to the home in a metal container. The embalmed bodies of well loved pets even have been sent to Europe.

Twilight burials are among the features offered for convenience. And it is possible to reserve adjoining cemetery lots for future use.

Many of the markers have a picture of the pet embedded in the surface. This is done by a special porcelain process, preserving a snapshot or portrait. A photo service also provides a picture of the pet at rest in the pillowed redwood burial basket surrounded by flowers.

THE LITTLE GRAVES are tended carefully and many freshly filled flower baskets attest to the continued devotion of man to his animal friends. Decorated trees are placed on many graves at Christmastime, and Easter brings baskets of flowers. On Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Armistice Day flags flutter in the breeze above the more than 2000 graves.

In addition to dogs, some of which have done wartime service for their country, Pet Haven Cemetery is the final resting place for cats, horses, even white rats, turtles and cockateels. Among the horses is a Palomino from Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz' famous posse.

For all who have loved, and lost a while, a furred or feathered pal, the staff offers sympathetic help. To quote from a descriptive folder:

"High up in the Courts of Heaven today
A little dog Angel waits.
With other dog Angels he will not play,
But sits alone at the gates.
'For I know my Master will come,' says he,
'And when he comes, he'll call for me.'"

By Dorothy Root

Inscribed grave markers, flowers and flags are silent proof of the undying affection their owners hold for two animals from one household who lie side by side in last resting place.

Demand Genuine Plaster and Lath

LOOK FOR THIS SEAL

"This Seal is your assurance that the genuine plaster and lath walls and ceilings in this structure have been inspected and certified for quality of product and workmanship by the Southern California Plastering Institute."

In these few words lies the basis of a wise home investment. What makes a Southern California Plastering Institute Certified Plaster and Lath wall superior? Many qualities. Unrivalled beauty, year after year through the decades . . . rock-like firmness . . . clean, vermin-proof . . . History's earliest building material, improved on through centuries — now bonded with lath for unmatched durability . . . holder of the full One-Hour American Standard Fire Rating — the most precious 60 minutes you may ever know . . . sound reducing . . . more economical.

Let your ears tell you the difference. KNOCK ON THE WALL. A firm, solid sound is your proof that the wall is Genuine Plaster and Lath — as strong as it sounds. A hollow, flimsy sound means that the wall is constructed of a substitute for plaster — an inferior imitation made to look like a plastered wall.

'Stage' Pictures to Tell Stories

In this picture of three young people on a picnic, the bat is center of interest and helps tell story.

PRACTICALLY ALL OF US have at some time or other been connected with an amateur theatrical production. Thus we know that the play book lists the required properties right along with the cast of characters and the synopsis of the action. These properties are indeed essential to help tell the story.

That's why props should definitely be given consideration when we pose people for snapshots. We're all aware that story-telling snapshots are the ones we like best and the introduction of a simple prop can easily add to the impact of the picture.

Props are good for subjects of all ages. Babies and adults alike respond to them. I once heard a professional photographer of babies say that the prop you give them as a center of attention is a "natural anchor" because it tends to keep the small fry where you want them. With a baby it will help keep the subject's interest at a high pitch long enough for you to snap a picture featuring a lively expression.

With adults you use props, not to "anchor" them in one spot, but to relieve camera shyness and add to the naturalness of the pose and help tell the story.

Choose your props carefully, to be in keeping with the natural situation, and you'll find that they can dramatize your snapshot, add life, interest and naturalness to your subject. Make them work for you.

NEWLY ELECTED officers of the Cinema Club are Bob Ferris, president; Lewis Underwood, first vice president; Al Larrabee, second vice president; Lynette Stephens, secretary; Cliff Harris, treasurer; Ray Stober, Bob Piccirilli and Frank Kallenberg. The club will have its annual film contest Dec. 2.

LONG BEACH CAMERA GUILD now holds second place in color competition of the Southern California Council of Camera Clubs. Ilse Stevens of the local Guild won first place in a recent competition and Henry McCutchan won third. In the black and white competition of the Council, Long Beach Camera Guild is third. Lowell Weeks of the Long Beach Guild received honorable mention. In the color competition of the Photographic Society of America, Don Hayward, president of Long Beach Camera Guild, won honorable mention.

COMMUNITY CAMERA CLUB will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Fellowship Hall, 14732 Jackson Ave., Midway City. . . South Bay Camera Club will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in Room 105, Redondo Union High School, Redondo Beach.

PET PARADE

He's a Crossed-Up Pooch

THE BASSET HOUND is an aristocratic breed of ancient lineage. He flourished chiefly in the royal family grounds of France and Belgium and was used in trailing deer, rabbits, hares, and so on. He is a cross of the old French bloodhound and the St. Hubert hound.

Here in the United States, this quick-learning dog is valued for hunting foxes, rabbits,

By Eleanor A. Price

pheasants and raccoons. He is steady and accurate and can go into dense cover on his very short legs. No breed except the pure bloodhound has greater scenting ability.

If handled and trained by one kind master, the Basset becomes a one-man dog — loyal, enjoyable, affectionate.

This dog weighs between 25 and 40 pounds. His body is low and long and his bones heavy. His head is long, and the ears are long, soft and pendant.

A simple daily grooming with a brush keeps the Basset's coat clean and shiny.

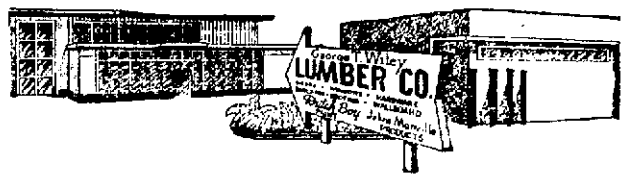

IT IS INTERESTING to note that dog licenses were first recorded during the reign of Henry III of England, 1207-1272, when all persons owning mastiffs were required to take out licenses. Today tags are included with the licenses, and all dogs should wear them when off the home grounds on a leash. If there is danger of small children letting the dog out of his yard, he should wear the tag at all times.

Recently, identifying, or having the dog tattooed with a number on the underside, is becoming a popular measure to safeguard the dog and to assist the owner should his dog become lost. In the Long Beach area, this identifying is a practice highly approved by the Pet Protective League.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

BORROWED from south-of-the-border neighbors is the architectural theme of the Ivan V. Isaacs home, 5140 E. Third St.

Mrs. Isaacs, a native of Mexico, has a deep and familiar fondness for the mode of architecture characteristic of her native land. The typical Mexican hacienda is structurally sound with the use of such "heavy" materials as plaster, adobe and stone. And the Isaac home, a two-story building of terra cotta-colored stucco, closely emulates the appearance of a modern Mexican dwelling.

The entry is an interesting area with tiled floor, submerged floor-level planter and walls of combined combed wood and brick. Immediately opposite the front door is the entrance to the spacious "covered patio" that centers the house.

For purposes of comparison, this type of room is the Mexican version of the "family room" gaining such popularity in America. Centering the floor plan as it does, all the rooms on the lower level open onto it and most of the family's activities take place here.

The floor is of highly polished terra cotta-colored plastic tile. An inlaid shuffleboard court extends the length of the room. The slick surface of the flooring is, of course, ideal for this game. And, in combination with the expansive proportions of the room, this spot is ideal for square dance parties.

DAILY-CUSHIONED rattan furniture arranged in comfortable groupings repeats the vivid colors of the open beams of the ceilings. These rafters, which support the extraordinarily high roof of clear plastic, are painted alternate colors of lime green, deep green and shocking pink.

Two planters, sunk below the level of the floor, add lush greenery, compatible with the colorful Spanish atmosphere, to the room. In one corner is a large red brick barbecue. Decorating its bricked expanse are two Mexican masks carved of wood. These masks, worn by the "old men of the dance" in tribal ceremonies, are interesting accessories. On one wall is hung a large hand-woven Mexican rug. Two life-sized natives doing the musical background for ballet routines practiced daily by the Isaacs' young daughter. Additional music may be piped into the room by means of an inter-communication system that connects all the rooms in the house.

The living room that is situated to the left of the entry is in sharp contrast to the patio room. Softer, more subtle shades of green and gold are used here, with the result that the room is more for repose than for activity.

The carpet is a sage green sculptured pattern, the cornices and draperies a soft butter yellow and the furniture is upholstered in restful metallic tweeds.

A large phonograph is located in this room for entertainment purposes as well as to provide a

The Isaacs' kitchen opens on the patio and is expansive enough to accommodate a group of guests at snack time.

The Isaacs' unusual dwelling, with stucco in terra cotta color, capitalizes on the best features of Mexican architecture. It is "different" and very livable.

the entry leads into the dining room, which is also directly accessible from the patio room. The same sage green carpet used for the living room has been repeated here. The lined ash dining set has channel-back upholstered chairs covered in green and gold flecked tweed.

THE KITCHEN, like the adjoining dining room, opens onto the patio. It is a cheery room, larger than average, and enables the Isaacs to entertain a number of diners informally right in their gay red-and-yellow kitchen-dinette.

On the opposite side of the central family room are three downstairs bedrooms.

The daughter's room is carpeted in deeply napped rose wool that is a number of shades deeper in tone than the rose satin quilted bed spreads. Her adjoining bath is carried out in a delicate apple green with rose-tinted fixtures.

The master bedroom is very large. Three wardrobe doors are mirrored to form an ingenious three-way reflection. Their value, of course, is essentially for dressing purposes, but they also serve as interesting reflectors of the opposite wall. The bed is king sized.

The master bath is connected to the bedroom by means of a dressing-room. The bath is apple green with rose fixtures.

THE THIRD BEDROOM, ever ready for overnight guests, is carried out in yellow and dove gray.

Upstairs is the family's sun deck, walled shoulder-high for privacy and protection from the wind. This is the site for a second barbecue, which, unlike the one in the enclosed downstairs patio, is out of doors. Chaise longues, tables and umbrellas make this a very welcome spot on a summer day or evening.

Inside, and directly opposite the hallway leading to the sun deck, is the door to the play room that effortlessly doubles as a guest room.

This room has a sofa-bed, several comfortable club chairs and coffee tables. In addition, it has a complete built-in kitchenette with its own thermador range, apartment-sized refrigerator and sink. It is separated from the room with a gay red counter top that makes the work of entertaining a crowd a lot of fun.

More Precious Than Jewels

By Caroline Coleman

ALTHOUGH gem collectors are currently combing the kimberlite (same type of diamond-bearing clay as found in South Africa) of our Navajoland for precious stones, the inhabitants of that reservation earlier discovered some friends more precious than jewels. They are Mr. and Mrs. Grant Thomas of 218 Norton St., who, inspired by a newspaper article published in 1947, are devoting their lives to relieving the misery of these "forgotten people of the United States."

It was the end of another day's work at the Long Beach City Water Department for Thomas. Dinner over, he had settled in his easy chair to catch up on the news. His wife, busy with her mending near-by, was startled as he jumped up, newspaper in hand, exclaiming excitedly:

"This is it!" while waving a news item before her eyes.

"It" to Thomas, whose own Creek Indian heritage made him feel close to the problem, was a way to realize his ambition. He would work to relieve the sorry plight of the Indian people, among whom the Navajos described in the newspaper were probably in the greatest need. Mrs. Thomas was eager to join in her husband's plan.

A TRIP to Window Rock, Ariz., for a first-hand look around the reservation decided the Thomases then and there that mission work was their destiny. Here is a summary of what they learned:

It seems that up until 1934 the 72,000 original American inhabitants of some 26,000 square miles of desert land of Arizona, New Mexico and Utah which comprises the Navajo Indian Reservation were self-sufficient. Some families had large herds of sheep which furnished food, a medium of exchange, and wool for rugs, the art form for which they are famed. But along came the Federal Commission on Indian Affairs who, deciding the land was overgrazed, ordered an immediate and drastic reduction of their flocks. Consequently 90 per cent of these nomadic people are without a means of supplying even their simple requirements. And their standard of living is a long step back from the most modest of the conquering whites! Their dome-shaped homes, called hogans, are about 15 feet in diameter and have no wall of glass. In fact, light enters through a square hole, skylight style, at the top of the hogan. This hole also doubles for a chimney, allowing escape for the smoke from the "kitchen range," usually made from a bisected gas drum.

No concrete slab construction here. The floors are merely hard-packed dirt. Furnishings, arranged without the help of a professional interior decorator, are in keeping. Blocks of wood, when obtainable, are used as table and chairs. Sheepskins are the beds. Nobody bothers to count calories as the menu automatically forestalls any chance of excess weight. The diet of fried bread and weak coffee, served to infants who are past the nursing stage as well as to adults, is not only monotonous, but is responsible for the consistent malnutrition and disease so evident among the Navajo people. This, and the scarcity of medical aid, adds up to an abnormally high death rate.

LESS THAN 5000 of the 21,000 school-age Indian children ever see the inside of a schoolhouse. This in spite of the fact that Article 6 of the 1868 Navajo Treaty promised governmental provision of one school for each 30 Navajo children. Yet 3600 young men from these families served our country in World War II, and hundreds more in Korea.

No wonder Mrs. Thomas, after seeing the picture at Window Rock which brought home the magnitude of need, asked:

"But what can just two people do?"

Thomas had the answer. A plan which has resulted in much resident work at the Arizona Reservation for his wife (fortunately trained in the art of nursing), while he joins her there on days off from his regular Long Beach Water Department job.

Working first through a small, already established mission, they conducted their first non-denominational church service in 1948 with 13 in attendance.

On Oct. 4, 1953, the scene shifted to a new building, already bursting at the seams as 130 Navajos gathered to worship.

NOT SATISFIED to stop with this accomplishment, the Thomases are still in there pitching. They are now making plans for a mission school, a church, and eventually some hospital facilities, now that a well, long their chief concern, has been dug to provide much needed water. Working on their own towards this goal these two tireless people are without any sort of church or civic backing. Of course they have had supporting contributions and gifts from many friends. For instance, each year in advance of the holiday season many friends arrive at their Long Beach home carrying armloads of warm clothing, food, candy, or dis-

By Elaine Hauck

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, lovely, blue-eyed Mindy Carson hasn't had a record-selling record yet. Although she's made some hon-eyes she's yet to cut her first smash hit. But it doesn't seem to bother this little songster.

She says, in fact, that it hasn't hurt her career in the least. She still packs 'em in her personal appearances in theaters and night clubs.

"Nowadays," she says, "hit records aren't essential to success in show business. If I got a hit record now, it would make things easier, sure. It would be gravy. But I can get along without it."

"For the last five years," Mindy says, "it's been tougher for a singer to get good theater and night-club dates without a hit record. But that seems to be changing now."

The reason for this, we reckon, could be that too many successful recording artists are OK in a sound studio but duds on the stage. Maybe an audience will show up once or twice to see a singer on the strength of his recordings, but if he doesn't have a good stage presentation, he's dead.

So Mindy, and other smart singers like the Ames Brothers and Fran Warren, concentrate on perfecting their acts and let others worry about his records.

ATHLETIC NOTE Pro golfers Babe Didrikson Zaharias and Betty Dodd are turning singers. They'll record some country tunes for Mercury. They should, naturally, start off with "Fee for Two" and "Mashies in de Cold, Cold Ground."

TEN TOP TUNES Still on top of the heap of favorites this week is Frank Chacksfield's "Ebbtide"; (2) "Rags to Riches," Tony Bennett; (3) "You, You, You," Ames Brothers; (4) "Vaya Con Dios," Les Paul and Mary Ford; (5) "St. George and the Dragonet," Stan Freberg; (6) "Oh," Pee Wee Hunt; (7) "Crying in the Chapel," The Orioles; (8) "Cumpari," Julius La Rosa; (9) "Story of Three Loves," William Kapeil, and (10) "Many Times," Eddie Fisher.

ELAINE ELECTS: "Offshore" (Axel Stordahl, Capitol), "Golden Violins" (Frank Chacksfield, London); "Embrasse" (Percy Faith, Columbia); "Santa Baby" (Eartha Kitt, Victor); "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans" and "Cotton Town" (Jo Stafford and Frankie Laine, Columbia) and "My Love, My Life, My Happiness" (Ames Brothers, Victor).

MINDY CARSON
... So Far She's Hitless ...

"READING IS FUN" is the title of a recording made to help celebrate National Book Week. Parents whose children do not agree with the slogan will be glad to hear this new record at the Long Beach Public Library. The recording also includes a spirited interpretation of "The King's Breakfast" by Frederick Melcher, the book publisher, which may well become a collector's item.

Other records of special educational value include "American English" (speech for the foreign born), exciting stories of American history on two new Landmark records, and the charming lullaby lp of "Follow the Sunset," with songs sung by Charity Bailey.

Favorites at the library last week were Shakespeare and foreign language records.

Jazz Mill

By John C. Tebben

JAZZ IN COLLEGE ... Prof. Wilbur Barranco of the University of California at Berkeley, who last year taught a class in the history of jazz, is offering the course again this season. The school has also inaugurated a Jazz Workshop. It is similar to the one that Charlie Mingus and John Parros started in New York City to present new compositions of young talent. Rumor has it that a university in the Southern California area will adopt a similar program. Man! What a class that will be! eh?

HERE AND THERE ... Ava Gardner to record for M-G-M with George Shearing's group to back her. ... Oscar Peterson to the Tiffany on or about Dec. 12th. (This group swings like made! Don't miss it!) ... Bill Harris' rendition of "Nearness of You" at the JATP concert last Wednesday night was a thing of thematic beauty. This guy has so much to offer in the way of tonal quality and lyrical ideas that it's a shame he wastes his time on up-tempo numbers. Hear: "Imagination," "Your Blase," and above all the unreleased as yet, "Jim." (I've been waiting for him to record the last one. It's wonderful.)

BEIDERBECKE MEMORIAL ... Heard the immortal Bix Beiderbecke on an old Paul Whiteman side the other night and thought I would see what the record companies were doing to put this jazz great on wax. Soon ...

Brunswick set the middle of last month as the release date for an all-star session with Jimmy McPartland. The album includes compositions by Bix and tunes he helped make famous. Featured are such stars as Lou McGarity, Ernie Caceres, George Whetling and tunes including: "Comin' Virginia," "Ostrich Walk" and "Davenport Blues."

DON'T MISS ... Coming to the Fine Arts theater next week end up in the city, is that weird psychological film, "Dementia." Jazz sequences throughout the flick are by Shorty Rogers who shares scoring honors with top rank arranger-composer George Antheil. Story is about a singer on a mentally-ill kick. Odd part about it is there's no dialogue. Johnny Graas' French horn is featured throughout with some nice solo work by him. (If interested, call me and I'll give you more info. One day run on the movie is all they're having and then off to New York for premiere.)

More Precious Than Jewels

carded toys to be transported by truck to Window Rock, so that Christmas may come there, too.

"Gathered for a service around the campfire," Mrs. Thomas says, "these dark-skinned brothers of ours lose their shyness and express their appreciation for the gifts."

At home for a rest on orders from her doctor who seems to think trucking cement blocks from Gallup while constructing the mission has put her health in jeopardy, Mrs. Thomas is now planning for the coming yuletide.

"We're sure," she adds, "that a way will be provided to have our usual celebration, although this year the friend who usually transports the gifts in his truck has been transferred to another area, so will be unavailable."

The high spot of a visit to the Thomas home is a shy smile won from their two-year-old adopted daughter. Their love for little dark-eyed Tsianina (meaning Wildflower) suggests the nearness to their hearts of their self-chosen lifework. She is of Navajo parentage!

Deep in the Human Mind

A PASSAGE IN THE NIGHT, by Sholem Asch (Putnam, $3.75).

In this fine novel, which the same as a number of his books was translated from the Yiddish by Maurice Samuel, Sholem Asch tells the powerful story of a man's struggle with his conscience and his efforts to right a wrong of many years ago.

Isaac Grossman, aging owner of a chain of movie theaters and hotels, is haunted with guilt over the theft of $25 when he, as a young man, desperately needed $25 to get started on his career. Working as an underpaid clerk in an East Side clothing store, he had kept a wallet which fell from the pocket of Yan Kovalsky, a drunken Pole who had sought to buy a new suit to wear to his daughter's wedding.

Years passed, Isaac had married happily, reared a family and became a tycoon — although a lonely one — and then as old age nears he is tortured by the fear that Kovalsky could not attend the wedding because he had no suit to wear. And dinned in Isaac's ears as a child had been the Hasidic tales of souls returning to earth to work out such guilts as beasts of burden.

Isaac tries to find Kovalsky, is sent to a mental hospital for his efforts, but at last his problem is solved and everybody forgives everybody. It's good reading for those who like to sink their teeth into strong fiction and look deeply into the human mind. — V. W.

BOSWELL ON THE GRAND TOUR: Germany and Switzerland, 1764. Edited by Frederick A. Pottle. Illustrated. (McGraw-Hill, $5).

This third volume of the Yale Edition of Boswell's autobiographical works is, indeed, a glorious jaunt through 18th-Century Germany and Switzerland . . . at a time when the Scottish biographer was only 25. And Pottle's editing is masterful as he clarifies the text to come and adds illuminating footnotes. — F. T. K.

SILVER ROCK, by Luke Short (Ballentine-Houghton Mifflin, $3.50 paper, $2 hardbound).

Prospects of a share in a rich silver mine brings Tully Gibbs to Azucite, but once there he wanted Sarah Moffit, too. Rough, rich Ben Hodges stands in his way for both. In going after these things, Tully discovers some things about himself. This is one of Luke Short's best westerns, which means it's at the top of the heap.

THE MUSTARD SEED, by Vicki Baum (Dial, $3.95).

Here is a moving tale of a family that is tormented, until at last the final inevitable act of horror takes place. Toni and Lissa are twins, and there is a veil over Toni's memory that is almost lifted from time to time. His periodic bouts with liquor cause his brother to summon an old army friend, Giano Benedetto, from Italy to work a miracle. Giano's faith is productive of many healings, but when at last he gets into Toni's memory the result almost destroys him. It is a rare novel, and one that the reader will follow with intense interest as the wild and tormented Lissa goes from lover to lover, and her twin gets lost in his own special hell. This tale is not sordid; it has a fine feeling of faith and a sense of justice. — G. L.

SHOLEM ASCH

LIVE BETTER AFTER FIFTY, by Ray Giles (McGraw-Hill, $3.50).

These splendid books open new vistas to those approaching their middle years. Dr. Daniels, noted gynecologist and psychiatrist frankly and illuminatingly discusses the building of a well-balanced life after menopause — physical, intellectual, emotional — with emphasis on how to live a happy sex life. Mr. Giles, reminding that life expectancy has been greatly increased in the last half-century, points to ways of achieving greater mental, emotional and financial independence and accomplishment for the retirement years.

20 DAYS TO BETTER SPELLING, by Norman Lewis (Harper's, $2.95).

Arranged for one hour's study each day for 20 days, here is a book for anyone wishing to improve in his spelling ability. Because, as Lewis admits, English spelling is difficult and troublesome, memory aids are needed to learn permanently the proper spelling of many words. By his system, you can learn the spelling of words ending in -ance and -ence, -able and -ible, -cede and -ceed and -sede. The memory system is not new. It is called "mnemonics" and simply means aids to memory based on the theory of association. Lewis' tricks are ingeniously devised yet simple. — P. F.

THE GIRL WITH THE GLASS HEART, by Daniel Stern (Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50).

This is the story of Elly Kaufman, a blond dish with captivatingly large eyes and beautiful legs. Men fall for her on sight and Elly — well, she gives each a little rope. More than casually intoxicated by this power, she would like to start a new life, away from her straight-faced parents who exchange fond love for her hate. There's an architect and a pianist and a rabbi in her life and they become quite real in this first novel of ex and conflict by the well known composer and musician. — F. T. K.

OUR WILL ROGERS, by Homer Croy (Duell, Sloan & Pearce-Little, Brown, $3.75).

Will Rogers never smoked or drank, he never played cards or gambled, and he never got into "situations" with girls. But to the chagrin of his father, who amassed considerable wealth, all Will wanted to do, and did, was to ride and do rope tricks, eventually joining Wild West and vaudeville shows. Final success with Ziegfeld and writing for newspapers led to international fame. Croy, once a Long Island neighbor of Will's, and in whose books Will starred in the movies, tells the fabulous Rogers story with great gusto, leaving a nostalgia for Rogers and his times.

HOW TO BE A CONSISTENT WINNER IN THE MOST POPULAR CARD GAMES, by John R. Crawford (Doubleday, $2.95).

SPLENDID POSEUR: JOAQUIN MILLER — AMERICAN POET, by M. M. Marberry (Crowell, $3.75).

Joaquin Miller's proudest poetic boast was "My cradle was a covered wagon, pointed west," but this colorful and beloved figure of American literature — did not come to the Golden State until he was quite a hunk of boy. Miller always lied handily when it suited his fancy, but his lies were often his attributes, which were so numerous that he was tremendously popular wherever he went. And he could write, too! Marberry, long a student of Miller and such contemporaries as Mark Twain, Bret Harte and Ambrose Bierce, discusses the "Poet of the Sierras" in this story of his life, never overlooking his extraordinary adventures. It is a book Californians will enjoy and appreciate.

CALIFORNIA AS A PLACE TO LIVE, by John A. Crow (Scribner's, $3.95).

A very general description of the state as a whole, its cities (Long Beach, California's fifth ranking city, rates three paragraphs), and data on climate, jobs, education, business opportunities, resorts, cost of living and payments to aged and needy, and concluding with a chapter, "California. Florida or Shangri-La?" For prospective residents and tourists, Crow picks California.

FAHRENHEIT 451, by Ray Bradbury (Ballentine, $3.50 paper, $2.50 hardbound).

In this one, a top-flight writer of science fiction tells the story of future firemen who burn books — and with a reason. It's all very fantastic, but it could happen. This novella, plus two short stories, each an original, comprise the book.

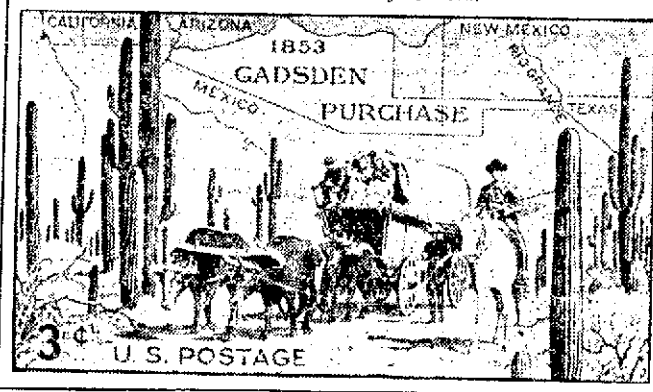

Stamps Honor East and West

Long Beach stamp collectors soon can add two more commemoratives to their collections — the 300th anniversary of New York City and the 100th anniversary of the Gadsden Purchase.

The New York City three-center will be placed on sale through the New York Post Office Nov. 20 in conjunction with the National Postage Stamp Show sponsored by the American Stamp Dealers Association. Collectors may obtain first-day covers by sending envelopes to the Postmaster at New York, N. Y., together with money order remittances.

The three-center honoring the centenary of the Gadsden Purchase will be placed on sale at Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 30, and first-day cancellations may be obtained by sending addressed envelopes to the Postmaster at Tucson with money order remittance covering cost of the stamps to be affixed prior to Dec. 30. The outside envelope for both the new commemoratives should be endorsed "First Day Covers."

ed water and dry each piece carefully. Season with salt and pepper and sprinkle them with as much flour as they will hold.

Heat the lard very hot in deep iron skillet. Fry chicken very, very slowly, turning pieces carefully. Cover from time to time, then uncover and turn chicken. This should require about half an hour or a little more. Place browned chicken on hot platter. Then pour off fat from skillet. In the same skillet melt butter, add salt, pepper and cream. When hot pour over chicken and serve.

Tipsy Dessert

Take as many almond macaroons as one will require. Soak in sherry (if possible for several hours until macaroons are like soft, thick sauce). Spread mixture on best cake plate or platter, depending on how many there are to be served. Cover with thick layer of whipped cream (seasoned with powdered sugar to taste). Decorate, if desired, with bits of candied fruit and slices of blanched almonds. Serve with large spoon, asking guests to dig deeply into platter. Virginia uses small old-fashioned Meissen plates for individual servings.

THE BIG CHRYSANTHEMUM show is on!

Throughout the Southland, varieties of radiantly colored mums will be blooming during the next few weeks, demanding and getting attention.

Most chrysanthemums will need generous amounts of nitrogenous fertilizer in the next few weeks. Gross feeders, they both exhaust the soil and have deficient stalks if not fed sufficiently. Last-minute disbudding to strengthen main stalks is also helpful in producing strong stock. It is always a good idea to bud lightly, even when a mass effect is desired, say California nurserymen.

Chrysanthemums should also be staked right away, for sudden autumn winds can easily twist and break stalks that are weighted with buds. Regular string or cloth strips fastened to green nursery stakes is one of the most satisfactory methods.

Gardeners who find small bare pockets in their chrysanthemum beds, where slips have failed or been broken, can take advantage of the large assortment of nurtured plants available in a variety of brilliant colors at nearly all nurseries.

If you are looking for new varieties with which to impress friends, try these: Button—a diminutive pompon chrysanthemum with tiny 1½-inch blooms; Spoon—something like the traditional spider, but with lacy tubular petals that broaden at the ends, faintly resembling the turned form of a spoon. And don't overlook the dainty Quill or Anemone mums, hardy perennials that bloom every fall, if planted in well drained soil.

Patience Does It With Orchids

By Walter Finch

DO YOU GROW ROSES? Begonias? Fuchsias? Chrysanthemums? Dahlias? Daffodils?

"They're all easy. You're not really in the upper bracket of flower-growing until you take on orchids!"

At least that is the position of Fred Brower, 761 Junipero Ave., plumber at Seaside Hospital, who at his residence has a homemade greenhouse with about 400 orchid plants, and at present about 15 blooms of breathtaking beauty. Up to this moment he has not had a lock on the greenhouse door, but perhaps effective at once he should install one.

"I've always liked orchids," he says. "I raised other flowers, but it always was orchids I wanted. Then a few years ago I began growing orchids."

In the enterprise he is aided by Mrs. Brower, who has the traditional "green thumb" and who loves orchids almost as much as he does.

Brower already had a lath house. He covered the roof with glass and the sides with plastic screen. Summers he drapes netting under the ceiling as additional protection from too-bright sunlight. The netting, of course, is removed during winter months.

He bought an old coil water heater — about 35 years old, he thinks — from a salvage place, dug a pit under the greenhouse and installed the heater in the pit. Then he ran hot water pipes under the benches on which the orchids stand. Incidentally, "benches" is the correct word, he says; only a novice calls them "counters," "tables" or the like.

The temperature in the orchid greenhouse must not go below 60 or above 90 degrees, he says, and the humidity must be kept high, about 50 degrees.

"Three things are important in raising orchids," he says:

Orchids require humidity, so Mrs. Fred Brower sprays her plants to achieve such an atmosphere.

"Light, humidity and temperature."

The hot water system is rigged so that it automatically goes on if the temperature drops to 59 degrees. To maintain the humidity, Mrs. Brower sprays the plants (not the flowers because water would spot them) with a fine spray at least once a day. In hot, drying weather she sprays the plants three times a day, and then she also sprays the floor to add to the humidity.

Brower specializes in Cattleyas, the most familiar kind of orchids, but he also has Cymbidiums, spray orchids and Cypripediums, slipper orchids. Only the Cattleyas now are in bloom, although the Cypripediums are budding, ready for blooming December through March.

He has orchid plants ranging from little fellows an inch and a half or so high, two years old, to plants about two feet high and which he estimates to be 20 years old. Orchid plants last practically indefinitely, he says.

He gets his plants by dividing the large plants and by buying (Continued on Page 25.)

The Browsers have 400 orchid plants in their Long Beach lath house, find patience important in growing them. Here, Brower pins two beauties on Mrs. Brower.

Color-Conscious Freesias

MODERN hybridists have made the freesia color-conscious. There was a time, not so long ago, when the only available freesia was a white one. But thanks to California hybridists, freesias are now available in a wide range of gorgeous shades. You have your choice of white, yellow, bright red, clear blue, rose, lavender, pink and purple.

White freesias are well suited for cut flower arrangements as the flowers are somewhat larger than the colored sorts. However, all varieties may be used advantageously both indoors and in the outside garden. It is best to plant at intervals of every few weeks to obtain a succession of bloom.

Freesias started now should flower in about three months. The exact time of maturity depends on local growing conditions, such as soil and heat. Keep in mind that Southern California and the southern states are the only areas where freesias thrive outdoors during the winter months.

Southern California is perhaps the most important growing center in the country for freesia bulbs or corms, as they are botanically described. Freesias are natives of Africa — a long way from this state — but growing conditions of these two regions are comparable. That explains why freesias thrive here, growing almost like weeds.

DURING THE WINTER months freesias demand a sunny location. They require excellent drainage. The roots must not be exposed to standing water. A cool and moderately moist environment is what they like. After the flowering period — when the corms for next season's planting are being formed — plenty of sun and heat are required.

Freesias should be planted fairly close together. They may be massed for bedding or spotted here and there throughout your garden. The stems are quite wiry and seldom grow taller than about two feet. Space the corms from two to three inches apart and cover them with not more than two inches of soil. Light soils require slightly deeper planting than heavy ones.

A soil mixture containing sandy loam and coarse sand plus some bone meal or other comparable type of food should suffice. Freesias are fairly heavy feeders and require regular applications of plant food during the season. The flowers will be of high quality if the plants are fed when the buds start to show.

FREESIAS are propagated by corms which are quite small. They are just a fraction of the size of bulbs such as tulips and hyacinths. However, they are sold by size and the larger corms are naturally a bit higher in price. But for prize-winning blooms the difference in price will prove very small. Plant with the pointed end of the corms closest to the surface.

Keep the soil well cultivated where freesias are being grown. Stir the soil only close to the surface so the feeding roots will not be disturbed. Start cultivating at an early date to keep weeds down. It is easier to get rid of weeds when they are young than after they have become established. A mulch placed over the root area tends to cool the surface and conserve moisture.

Freesias are available in a wide range of colors, including white, yellow, red, blue, purple and others.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Nurseries now have available a wide range of established transplants. These include stocks, snaps, pansies, violas, calendulas, godetia and Iceland poppies. These plants will flower during the winter, a time when garden color is at a premium. Keep the ground thoroughly wet after planting so the tiny roots do not suffer for want of water.

Hedges such as boxwood, privet, cypress and myrtle may be trimmed at this time. Since their growth slows down during the winter months a good trimming now should keep the plants in good appearance until next spring.

Hawaiian ferns have become exceedingly popular during recent years. They are quite hardy and tolerate wind as well as low temperatures. They may be planted in either sun or shade.

seedlings. He has bought seedlings from Florida, Holland and Hawaii. He likes to tell about the time he sent an air mail letter on Friday to Hawaii, and the next Tuesday his order of 16 seedlings was delivered at his door. The air mail charge from Hawaii was $1.95.

Brower grows his orchids in osmndine, a fern which he says comes from Florida and along the New Jersey coast. It is porous. His system is to water orchids well once a week and then let them dry out before the next watering. This watering is an entirely different process than the humidity-spraying.

He has produced orchids ranging in color from lavender to red, and also has raised white, yellow and bronze orchids.

"Orchid-growing is no job for an impatient person," he warns. "It usually takes an orchid seven years to bloom, and it takes three to four months for a bud to open."

Fuchsia Society

Long Beach Branch of the National Fuchsia Society of America will have its annual business meeting and election of officers at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at 728 Elm Ave.

President Carl A. Bjorkman will present the annual report of the club's activities and committee chairmen will give reports of work accomplished. Plans for the annual Christmas party and potluck dinner will be discussed and committees appointed to plan for the installation of new officers. Mrs. Monroe Hubbell, program chairman, will present a short program of interest to gardeners. Mrs. Carl Edmond, chairman, and her committee will be in charge of the coffee hour.

Long Beach art exhibits this week:

Pacific Coast Club Gallery, 850 E. Ocean Blvd.: Long Beach Art Association fall exhibition.

Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.: California Water Color 33rd national exhibition.

Spectrum Club Gallery, 225 E. Third St.: Paintings by members.

Main Public Library, Ocean Blvd. and Pacific Ave.: Long Beach Academy of Art annual show.

Long Beach Branch Los Angeles County Medical Association, 814 Pine Ave.: Paintings by George Crowell.

SPECTRUM CLUB, organization of men artists (painters) will celebrate the 24th anniversary of the founding of the club with a banquet at 6:30 p. m., Wednesday, Armistice Day, in the Lafayette Hotel supper room. This annual banquet is the only function at which ladies are included and the members will be joined by their wives and friends in the evening's festivities.

Chester Smith, banquet chairman, has arranged a program to include "crits" of recent paintings by members and the showing of color picture slides of summer vacations of the members. R. V. Johnson and his Wranglers will furnish music.

President D. P. Durham will welcome guests. William J. (Bill) Wilson, charter member and co-founder, will talk on the club's founding and early history.

Edgar H. Lore and Harold Bragg are in charge of the reception committee.

PAINTINGS, water colors and drawings by students of the Long Beach Academy of Art will be on view through Nov. 30 in the art department lobby of the main library.

The show, installed by John Lynch, library staff artist, is an annual event at the library. It may be viewed from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. daily and between 1:30 and 5 p. m. Sundays.

Exhibitors include Karl Seethaler, Jack Pullen, Marion Davis, LaVerne Hansen, Frank Woelfel, Carolyn Clay, Ruth De-cow, Margarite Seethaler, Eileen Bolinger, John Lynch, Minerva Curry and Donna Harvey. Three pieces of sculpture by Clare Roberts are displayed.

Arrangements for the show were made by Mrs. Mary Pearson, librarian in charge of exhibits, and Karl Seethaler, director of the Academy of Art.

SAN PEDRO ART ASSOCIATION announces the opening today of a one-man show of 35 water colors by Alice Tenneson Hawkins. The exhibition will begin formally at 2 p. m. in the Association gallery, 820 S. Beacon St., San Pedro, with a tea honoring Mrs. Hawkins, a charter member of the 23-year-old San Pedro Art Association and its immediate past president.

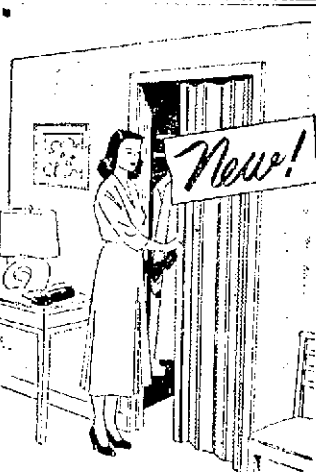

Mrs. Hawkins has exhibited in the harbor area for many years. She is a graduate of the University of Washington and has studied with Arthur Beaumont and Caesar Hernandez. Her work has been shown at the Long Beach Municipal Art Center, Pacific Coast Club, Palos Verdes Library Gallery, Los Angeles Coliseum, Cabrillo Museum and San Pedro YWCA. Mrs. Hawkins has won awards in the annual San Pedro Fishermen's Fiesta art exhibition and in past Art Association shows. "Mrs. Hawkins' water colors are executed without affectation and with a spirit of sincerity that is easily transmitted to the observer," said Art Association President Jay Meuser.

On exhibition concurrently with Mrs. Hawkins' water color paintings is a display of rare stones and jewelry by her husband, Alvin Hawkins, an ardent member of both the San Pedro Lapidary and Mineral Society and the San Pedro Art Association.

The show will be open to the public daily from 1 to 4 p. m., except Tuesdays, through Nov. 22.

BENTON SCOTT will demonstrate painting a landscape in oil at the luncheon program of the Southland Art Association at 1 p. m. today at the Taylor Ranch House, 737 N. Montebello Blvd., Montebello. Mrs. Frances Mae Durr of San Pedro, Elsie Smith of Montebello, Elsie Smith of Whittier and Hazel Park of Los Angeles will be hostesses. All friends of art are invited.

WHEN A local restaurant's French cuisine attracts gourmets from as far away as New York and Chicago, you can bet your last franc that it must be outstanding.

But "outstanding" is really too mild an adjective to apply to the food at Francois' Manhattan, 1909 E. Fourth St. "Remarkable" and "exceptional" are far more appropriate, especially when one is describing the Manhattan's specialty — Fleming Duckling with Bigarde orange sauce.

This dish was originated by Frank Richmond, the Manhattan's owner. Guaranteed to make any palate glow with pleasure, it consists of a whole, beautiful Long Island duckling, roasted to perfection and served with yams and wild rice.

FRANK RICHMOND
Master of French Cuisine

Resting in splendor in a copper chafing dish, the duckling (which serves two persons) is rolled with its side dishes to the guests' table on a serving wagon. Then Richmond, with the skill of a magician, pours on the following liqueurs: Grand Marnier, Cointreau, Curaçao and brandy.

He touches fire to the dish and the duckling bursts into a blue flame which burns for approximately a minute. Then Richmond skillfully serves the delicately browned fowl and watches the expressions of delight in the guests' eyes as they savor the first mouthful.

Other dishes served at the Manhattan are just as pleasing. Soups arrive in tureens, permitting second and third helpings. The tossed salad bowls are things of beauty. And the anti-pasto trays with stuffed celery, file of sardines, garbanzo beans, Greek olives and Italian peppers are out of this world.

The restaurant, which also serves luncheons, is open daily from 10 a. m. to 2 a. m. It is closed Mondays.

DAVID P. PRESTON

(SEE COVER)

MRS. AMERICA

Mrs. Erna Snyder receives her crown from last year's Mrs. America while her husband and two sons look on.

MISS AMERICA

Evelyn Margaret Ay (left) won award for best in a bathing suit; her companion excelled in the talent division.

MISS UNITED STATES

Myrna Hansen began beauty-contest career with title "Miss Photoflash of 1953" bestowed on her in Chicago.

It Pays To Be Beautiful

When their titles expire, these girls will still have their winnings to help them

IT PAYS to be beautiful!

After the rhinestone crowns have been packed away, and winter dog shows replace beauty contests in the headlines, U.S. beauty queens will still have plenty to beam about.

Their brief triumphs this year netted them many thousands of dollars.

MISS EVELYN AY, the 20-year-old schoolgirl from Ephrata, Pa., who was named Miss America at Atlantic City, will gather in about $40,000 as the nation's No. 1 beauty.

MRS. ERNA SNYDER, 26, of Kutztown, Pa., a brunette housewife and mother of two sons, will bring home about $20,000. Mrs. America could make more on personal appearance tours but she hates to leave her husband, Kenneth Snyder, at home alone with the dishes!

MISS MYRNA HANSEN, 19, of Chicago, who was acclaimed Miss United States in the Long Beach, Calif., Miss Universe contest last July, has less cash to jingle. But she still will reap a powerful amount of professional training, plus a movie contract, (worth about $150 a week) plus jewelry and other gifts.

There's no question that the Miss America crown is of genuine gold-plate. Miss Ay won an outright gift of a $5,000 educational scholarship. Along with that she won a custom-built Nash and an elegant wardrobe. Miss America sponsors see to it that their pretty little girl lacks nothing in her traveling about the country.

• THE STORY BEHIND PARADE'S COVER

Only once have the three most beautiful women in America—Miss America 1954, Mrs. America, and Miss United States—ever appeared together. That place is on the unique cover of this issue of PARADE.

Photographer David Preston arranged their "group appearance." Each of them came separately—to his studio. By special photographic techniques he arranged to take color pictures of each, but on the same negative. The three-in-one portrait he got now appears on PARADE's cover.

(Does geography have any direct relation to beauty? Look for the quiz on page 10.)

From personal appearances, radio and TV performances, she will reap at least $20,000.

Miss Ay, who modestly asserts she is interested only in the honor that has come her way, could make more money except that she is permitted to endorse only the products of her three chief sponsors.

Mrs. America carried off $10,000 in cash and prizes and kept peace in the family when she announced to her husband that he was to be a guest of honor, too, on her prize trip to Guatemala, all expenses paid.

Lovely Myrna Hansen collected a Hillman Minx convertible and a diamond wrist watch along with her Miss U. S. title, and a movie contract with Universal-International which means a lot. Myrna also may accept gifts for personal appearances (she already has watch #2 and #3) and counts the publicity as worth thousands.

Does a beauty queen ever go broke?

It wouldn't seem so. After the prize money is spent, the car worn out and the watches stopped she can get a job on TV or in a fashion shop as "the ex-Miss or Mrs. what-have-you."

"You never had it so clean!"

Never before Tide was it possible to get your family wash so clean!

NEVER BEFORE SUCH CLEANING POWER!

When science brought you Tide, it gave you the greatest cleaning power the washday world had ever known... a cleaning power that got clothes CLEANER than any other washing product you had ever used. Till Tide came along, you never had it so clean!

SO MILD! SO SAFE!

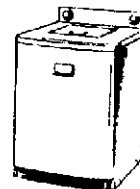

And now Tide combines its terrific cleaning power with wonderful mildness. Tide is so kind to hands... more so than any other detergent known. And Tide is so safe for all your bright wash colors. Colors love Tide's gentle suds!

DAZZLING WHITE CLOTHES! NO BLEACHING! NO BLUING!

Except for stubborn stains, no need to bleach! No need to blue! All by itself, Tide gets shirts, towels, sheets so dazzling WHITE, you'll be amazed! Try Tide next washday—see for yourself!

AMERICA'S FAVORITE FOR AUTOMATIC WASHERS!

No wonder so many leading washing-machine manufacturers recommend Tide for automatic washers—for washers of all kinds! No wonder more women do use Tide—in automatic washers and every other kind—than any other washing product sold! Tide gets clothes dazzling white and clean in all washers!

No washday soap—no other detergent known—
NOTHING ELSE WILL WASH AS CLEAN
AS Tide
—yet is so mild!

Now! One Coffee is PACKED FRESHER

IT'S PRESSURE PACKED! One sip tells you that's the best thing that ever happened to coffee! With pressure, you get more of that marvelous Chase & Sanborn flavor—get it fresher! Why?

WITH PRESSURE, IT'S PACKED FRESHER—KEPT FRESHER. Only pressure packing can pack coffee almost smack out of the roaster, while flavor is richest. Then every trace of flavor-stealing air is drawn out . . . replaced by air-free pressure. Pressure surrounds each coffee grain—holds the flavor in as no other packing method can. That's why Chase & Sanborn is fresher than coffee packed any other way, in vacuum cans or bags. So buy the one coffee you can be sure is fresh—Chase & Sanborn "Dome Top" Coffee—the only leading coffee that's pressure packed!

YOU CAN PROVE ITS FRESHNESS! Press the rounded top of a Chase & Sanborn can. It's firm, proving there's flavor-saving pressure inside. Only if the top clicks is pressure gone . . . then take another pressure packed can. You can't test any other kind!

"PRESSURE PACKED"

You Can FEEL It Hurt...!

NEW YORK.

● Take a good long look at this picture. The whole ring seems to be jarred by the fighter's knockout blow. A minor earthquake seems to shake the referee, the photographer, the ropes . . . even the glaring lights hanging overhead.

You saw other pictures of the Marciano-LaStarza fight a few weeks ago. But this was the BIG MOMENT of that evening as caught by a photographer for PARADE.

Unlike other photographers, PARADE'S photographer was not trying to get a close-up of the knockout. "I was trying," he said, "to get all the excitement & fury of the BIG MOMENT itself."

And he succeeded. As LaStarza's defense visibly collapses, Marciano's arms and whole body—even the hair on his head—are blurred with the fury of the KO punch.

SO FAR AS Pat the parrot is concerned, all this talk about "Polly wants a cracker" is strictly for birds. Other birds.

What Pat wants is spaghetti.

Pat is a kelly-green character who belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Donnelly. He's been bossing the Donnelly household since he was brought here from Honduras about 30 years ago by Donald's brother, Jim, who was in the Navy at the time.

There's always a big to-do on "spaghetti night" at the Donnellys'. When spaghetti is cooking on the stove, and the fragrance of simmering sauce fills the kitchen, Pat works himself into a tizzy.

He teeters back and forth on his perch, flapping his wings and screeching happily. (He only makes this kind of fuss when spaghetti's on the menu. He's been doing it for years.)

He'll Hum a Tune

PAT is served spaghetti one or two strands at a time. First he licks off the sauce. Then he starts nipping the spaghetti, one bite at a time.

Pat's spaghetti diet has made him as operatic as an Italian tenor. He regularly serenades the family by humming "Down by the Old Mill Stream." In tune, too.

More than a million American boys and girls

"Hoodlums pulled the man from his car . . . they'd seen a show about a gang in action."

WHAT ON EARTH is happening? That's a question U.S. mothers & fathers, and millions of respectable teen-agers, have been asking as reports come in:

Detroit teen-agers arrested in riots . . . curfew asked in Boston as youth violence mounts . . . boy-mobs attack party on New York beach . . . California boy beaten as beach party is surrounded . . . youths beat Texas motorists with chains.

Suddenly, this year, what has long been called "juvenile delinquency" seemed to explode into a wave of youthful crime & violence.

What & who are to blame? Wars? Parents? Teachers? Or is a generation bred on crime dramas and comic books simply practicing now what's long been drummed into it?

Whatever the causes, Sen. Hendrickson tells you here some of the amazing public support that has come from mothers & fathers everywhere for the "JD" investigation on which his subcommittee will begin hearings a few days from now—THE EDITORS.

WASHINGTON.

IN A NEW YORK POLICE station the other day an officer heard a ticking sound.

He whirled around fast. Behind him, a 9-year-old boy brought in for burglary was already at work on the police department's safe! (He opened it, too; somehow he'd learned how to listen to the tumblers in the lock.)

In Boston the other day a 17-year-old boy was stabbed and killed in a teen-age row. In Los Angeles, a 14-year-old boy watching a teen-age gang fight was killed by a bullet in the neck.

In Denver, police watched two boys steal a radio, found their pockets stuffed with jewelry and money. The boys were five years old.

And recently a report reached me that children in one junior high school in California beg their parents not to report thefts from their lockers . . . "or the gang will get us."

All of this is part—a very small part—of the puzzle that is juvenile delinquency in America today.

In another community, a teen-age reign of terror claimed five victims in one week end. A 16-year-old girl was violated by a gang, her 15-year-old girl companion was mauled; a 16-year-old boy and his pal were beaten by two cars of hoodlums; a 12-year-old boy was attacked by a gang.

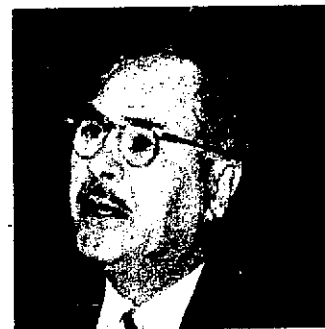

What is happening? In the nation's capital itself juvenile delinquency has risen 60 percent in a single year. In the nation, it has gone up 30 percent since 1948.

Do you know what this means?

Chairman, U.S. Senate Subcommittee to Investigate Juvenile Delinquency

SEN. HENDRICKSON wants to know how kids and parents can be helped: what are the facts?

on a Crime Spree?

are in trouble with the police today. Congress wants to know why . . .

a million children—between the ages of 10 and 17 alone—will get in trouble with the police this year.

► By 1960, that figure may well reach 1,500,000 each year.

These kids in trouble (one in every 18) are helping increase our fifteen-billion-dollar yearly crime bill.

They're making millions of parents sick with anxiety and shame.

What can we do—to help these children, and their parents, and other citizens who suffer from their mistakes?

Parents' Letters Pour In

IN JUST A FEW DAYS NOW, our committee will begin public hearings. This brings the Senate of the United States to grips with one of the biggest problems of our times.

But as we go into public hearings, we have been surprised and heartened by a tremendous outpouring of public support. Letters have poured in from mothers and fathers, teachers, judges.

Already we have nearly 4,000 letters from all parts of the country. These have given us homespun advice, leads and plain cracker-barrel logic.

While this mail has been coming in, we have sent thousands of letters to welfare officials, educators, judges, police and national organizations to round up the best expert opinion.

Yet I am convinced that the reaction of the general public—the father, the housewife, and the teacher—will be as significant as the opinion of the experts.

Here are some of the letters these folks in "Main Street" have written:

► A WOMAN IN COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.: "A young man and his girl were driving when a car passed them and turned across the street. A bunch of hoodlums jumped out, pulled the man from his car, beat him until he became a hospital case. When apprehended they said they knew neither the boy nor the girl, but had seen a show of a gang in action—and liked it. . . . Who are the real criminals . . . those who commit the crimes or those who bombard the youthful mind with hypnotic stories of crime, sex, evil of every kind?"

► A MAN IN NEW YORK: "In my neighborhood, a dozen 'boys' (18-21) stoned a house, smashed every window, then pelted the owner with stones when he rushed out. . . . They didn't have anything against the man—they didn't even know him. They pleaded: 'We just didn't have anything else to do.'"

► A WOMAN IN CALIFORNIA: ". . . My son was the victim of a cruel and vicious beating by a youthful gang. The most puzzling aspect . . . was the attitude of the police. . . . Every excuse was made for the gang."

► A TEACHER IN TEXAS: "In a recent case involving theft of an automobile by a 13-year-old boy . . . he said he acquired the 'know how' . . . from a comic book. . . . What do you think about a thorough investigation of comic books?"

► A POLICE COMMISSIONER in Maryland: "It is my feeling that great harm results from dramatization of crime stories on radio, TV and in the movies. That is evidenced by crime statistics . . ."

► A MOTHER IN BOSTON: "No. 1 cause is obscene literature on newsstands, the so-called 'funnies,' along with questionable TV shows and films stressing violence. . . . We are concerned about it here."

► A BUSINESSMAN IN CINCINNATI: "Radio and TV . . . have a big audience among children. It would seem that conscientious sponsors . . . would place the good of children before profits. . . . Contributors to juvenile delinquency must be stopped."

► A MAN IN TEXAS: "Will you please not fail to look into every phase of the activities of the liquor and movie industries?"

► A WOMAN IN NEW JERSEY: "Parents who are trying to bring up their children to be upright Americans are baffled and disgusted . . ."

► A MOTHER IN TRENTON, N.J.: "Senator, if you are going to try to make decent citizens of our children you will have to start from the top and work down."

► A MAN IN SAN FRANCISCO: "A block from a Boys Club are a number of bars. You will not find one bar where there are not two or three young children—with their mothers."

► A WOMAN IN FLORIDA: "You may find some of your answers if you look for delinquent parents. Let's start at the bottom by passing a federal divorce law—with teeth in it."

► FROM A 'DESPERATE' MOTHER in Virginia: "I am the desperate mother of a 16-year-old boy. . . . Get at this job as soon as you can." This mother is afraid, she wrote, that her son is going to commit a crime. She bought him a car "to keep him from stealing someone else's." Now he stays out all night with older boys, hangs out in restaurants. She wishes states would not license young drivers. "I hate to admit defeat in raising my son," she wrote, "but I am not alone."

► A MOTHER IN PASADENA: "I can sum up the problem like this: The average parent does nothing for the mind of his child—he gives him nothing of himself . . ."

► A WOMAN IN NEW JERSEY: "We need respect for the Golden Rule, for law. . . . What children need most today is the old-fashioned hair-brush."

► A WOMAN IN WASHINGTON, D.C.: "Today, juveniles are left too much to their own devices. I consider our recreation centers, as they are now run, hotbeds of crime. . . . No school-age children should be roaming around in gangs in the parks after 10 o'clock at night."

► A MOTHER IN OHIO: "Young people do not have enough to do. I have observed all my life that those who had to work when they were young are most successful and the best citizens when they are grown."

► A PROBATION OFFICER in New Jersey: "Your report probably will show juvenile delinquency is the result of interacting forces of progressive education combined with unsettled economic conditions. Add to this the general feeling of the people that the only crime is being caught, and you have a rough idea of what we are facing."

How 'Task Forces' Will Work

A WISE OBSERVER told me recently that what this program needs, first of all, is the voice of the people. Only the people themselves can put their own house in order and exert the proper kind of pressure to get things done.

Well, if initial public response to our plans is an indication, we are off to a good start.

In the days ahead we are going to hear testimony from two main sources. These are fact-finding groups which we call "task forces."

The NATIONAL TASK FORCES will consist of experts in various fields (such as juvenile detention homes and training schools) and in such problems as the impact of television, radio and comic-book crime stories on the young mind.

The LOCAL TASK FORCES will be made up of community leaders who have a vital stake in problems of juvenile delinquency in their own towns.

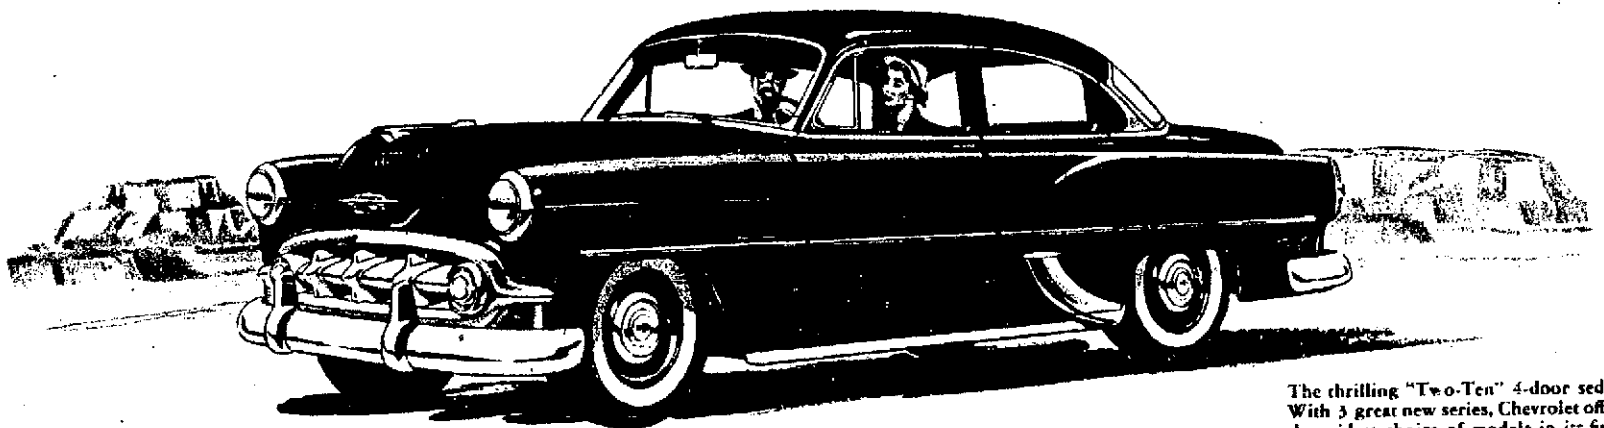

We will also hear reports from our own teams of trained investigators. They will make firsthand observations of local problems and will work hand in glove with the local task forces.

In this way we hope to lay the situation bare for public attention and action and to bring the best minds in America to bear on this intricate subject.

As we begin our public hearings with testimony from national leaders, and then swing into the first city-phase of conditions as they are in Washington, we will need—above everything else—the dedication and inspiration of a devoted American people. ■

NEWHALL, Calif.

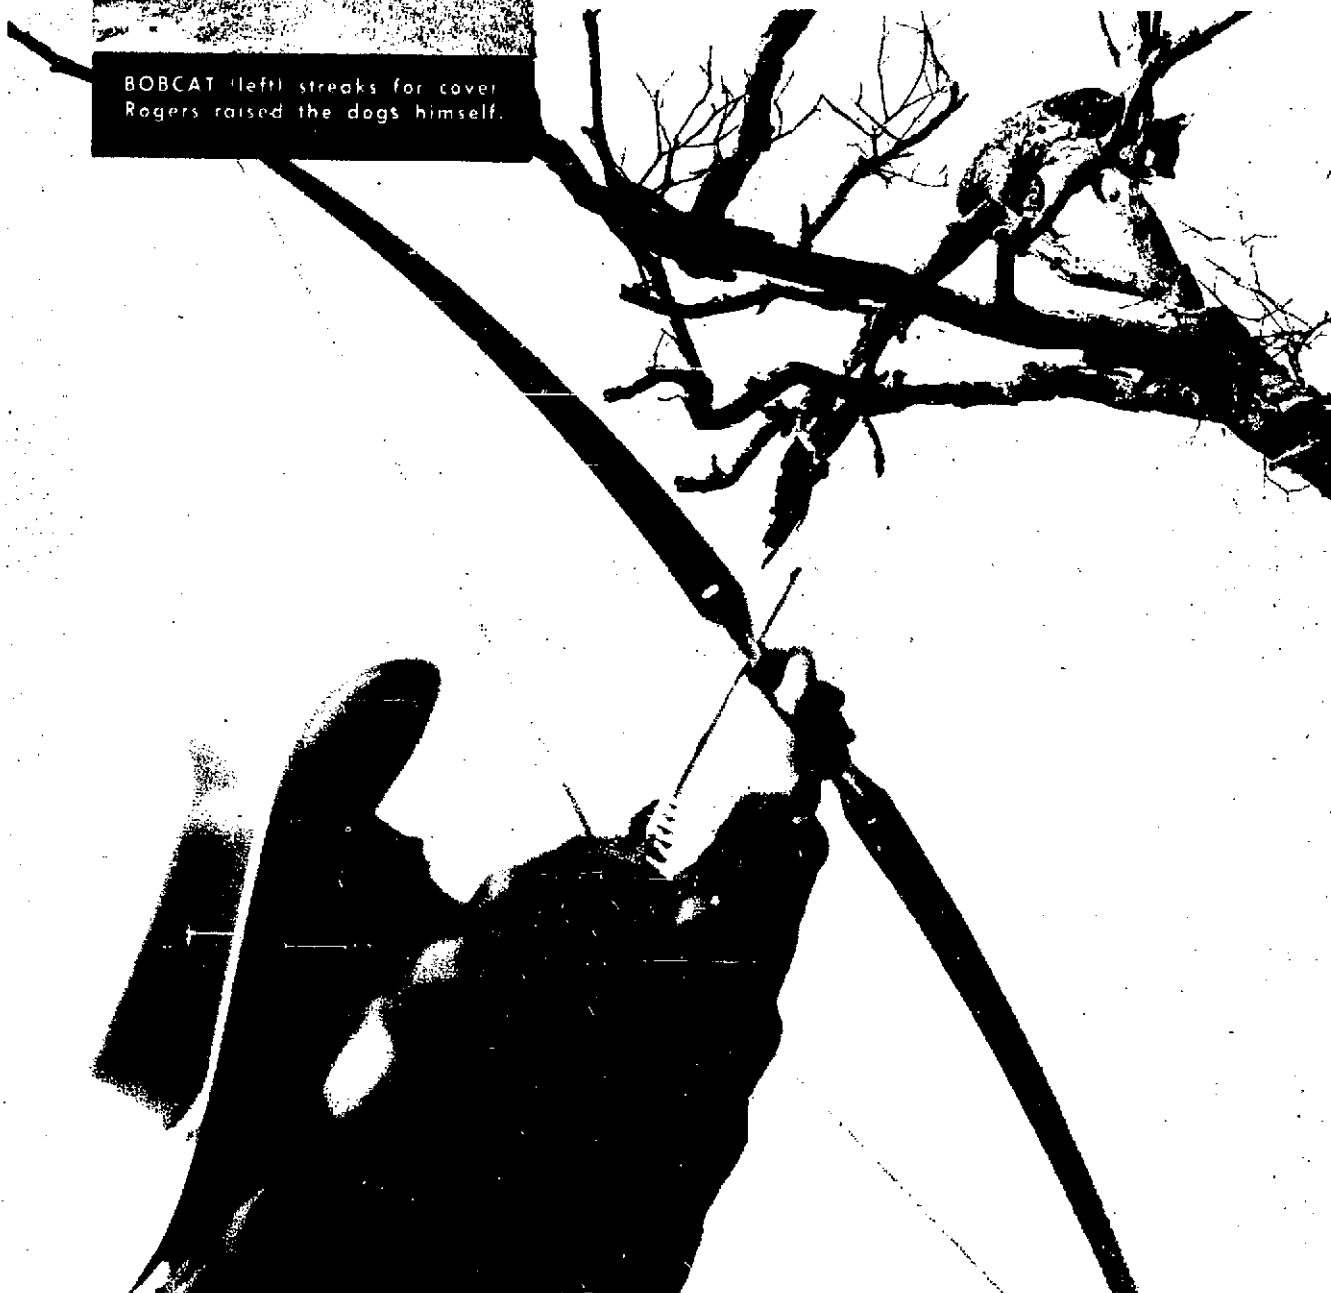

LIKE MANY another movie star, Roy Rogers has been known to make upwards of $1,000 for a single day's work.

But recently he got up at 5 a.m. to spend an exhausting day in the hill country near here—all for $15.

The clue: Rogers, a hard worker who rarely has a day off, organized a bobcat hunt with three pals. They got their 'cat (see pictures)—and a state bounty of exactly $15.

ROGERS has used bow for years, prefers it to a rifle. Reason: it's "more sporting."

The kill: bobcat snarls from tree as Roy aims steel-tipped arrow. He toppled animal with first shot.

SCIENCE

It isn't as COLD as you think—or is it?

It can be 15° at your ears and 10-below at your ankles, scientists find in new study of weather

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J.

SAY you're out of doors on a clear, calm winter night. A 15° cold nips your ears. But you're bundled up, and you don't feel uncomfortable — except around your ankles.

You'd probably feel a lot colder if you knew what the weather is really like down there.

The fact is: temperature at the ground is likely to be almost as cold as that in the polar regions.

The reverse could be true in summer. On a clear, hot day, when the temperature is at a seasonable 85°, you may be wading around in a sizzling 170° layer of heat.

6 Inches of 'Weather'

THIS REMARKABLE brand of weather around your ankles is being explored by scientists today.

They call it microclimate.

Microclimate is a six-inch "layer of weather" on top of the ground. There is as much difference between that and the weather around your ears as there is between the climate of New Jersey and Florida.

What weather scientists are learning about microclimate today may directly affect your life tomorrow. It may mean:

- More food for our dinner tables.
- Better weather protection for your home.

Important research into this ankle-deep weather is being done by two specialists in climatology at Rutgers University here: Prof. Erwin R. Bie and Assistant Prof. A. Vaughn Havens. They find:

- There are great differences in temperature between the five-foot level (where all "regular weather" observations are taken) and the ground level.

- Microclimate—for the purpose of raising crops, at least—can be controlled.

- The wind might be 30 miles an hour at your head, only 2 mph at your feet; the humidity 60% at six feet, 95% at the ground.

- In this "plant climate," as it is sometimes called, plants in the critical seedling stage grow in severe temperatures. Last July, for example, the ground temperature in a New Jersey area was above 100° for 14 days without a break. Yet during that period, head-level temperature never touched 100°.

Strange things can happen in this ankle-deep weather belt. For instance:

One morning, a tomato grower near here went out to look at his plants. It was late in the season and the final crop was ready for picking. The air was crisp, but considerably above freezing.

When the farmer took a close look at his plants he gasped in dismay. Row on row of tomatoes were blackened and withered, as though blighted by frost.

The grower called up the Rutgers Farm Crops Department and described what had happened. There had been no frost, he said—at least not according to his thermometer, which had showed temperatures close to 40 and above.

"Couldn't be frost," the grower said.

"Oh, yes, it could," said the farm crops expert. "We'll come out to your place today and tell you why."

Frost Killed Them

WHEN THE EXPERT visited the farm later he brought with him one of the microclimate research specialists. He explained to the grower why frosty temperatures—that didn't show up on the grower's thermometer—had killed his tomatoes.

Air at plant level cools first, he said. In this case, certain conditions sent the temperature below freezing, even though the temperature at head level was safely above it.

Here are ways, say the Rutgers specialists, in which microclimate may be controlled to take some of the risks out of raising crops:

1. When soils get too hot, for instance, a grower can dust it with white chalk. That causes the surface to reflect the sun's heat, throwing it back into the air.

2. Or, suppose a late spring snow lies too long on your garden plot. Dusting it with a dark substance—wood ashes, ground charcoal, etc.—would cause the surface to absorb the sun's rays and melt the snow.

Will Save Crops

ANOTHER important fact about microclimate is this: it can't exist in places where wind keeps the air stirred up.

On some California fruit farms, huge fans driven by airplane engines are used to stir the air. This destroys the microclimate and averts danger of frost.

Microclimate specialists believe their studies may some day make weather less of a bugaboo for the farmer.

They may be able to tell a cattle raiser, for example, whether it is safer to raise clover or alfalfa for pasturage.

They may be able to advise the farmer who raises vegetables to be processed as "frozen foods." These must be harvested in their prime. To time the harvest right, a grower must know something about microclimate and its control.

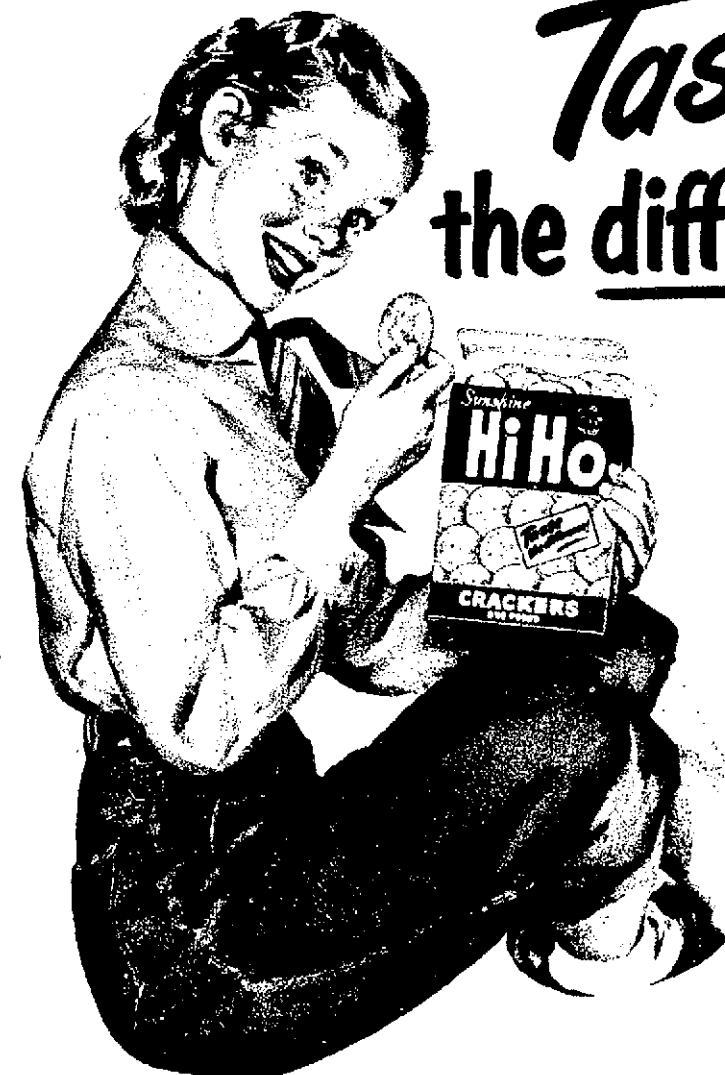

Do you want to build your home on a windy hilltop or in a sheltered valley? The microclimate expert will be able to tell you what the climate will be at foundation level. That will help you weatherproof your home from the bottom up.

HUMIDITY: using special thermometer, Havens checks humidity at plant level. There it read 83%. At five-foot level directly above, it read only 58%.

TRADE IN YOUR HOUSE

• With the Federal Housing Authority right now testing trade-in plans in 6 areas (Columbus, Hartford, Shreveport, Oklahoma City, New Orleans, Washington), you may soon be able to turn in your home for a new one just as you do with your car.

STOP WINDOW FROSTING

• Bothered by windows that are always frosting up? You can stop the frost by applying a little alcohol or salt water to the exteriors . . . Split a terry cloth towel in half, sew on tie-backs and you'll have made yourself a practical apron. You can wipe your hands on it while cooking. And it's easy to wash, needs no ironing.

NOTES ON WEARABLES

• Women will find furs, imitation and real, on everything this winter. Fur accents appear as pockets, belts, neckline fill-ins on dresses and suits, as earrings and bracelets. Furs that only look real and some that are real give a new look to handbags, too....

GOOD BETS IN BOOKS

• "Mirth of a Nation" (Vantage Press, $4.95), a storehouse of best routines of greatest comics, including Will Rogers, Eddie Foy, George M. Cohan . . . Here's a publishing event: "The Pocket Library of Great Art" (Pocket Books) a series of handsome little books, each at 50¢, each with over 50 pages of art reproductions of great painters' works, 30 of them in full color. 12 titles now out include Degas, Renoir, Rembrandt. Coming: Michelangelo, Picasso, many others.

HINTS FOR YOUR HOUSE

• Do your lamp cords keep fraying near the sockets? End the nuisance by dabbing on two thinned coats of fresh white shellac . . . To make your car shine brilliantly just add a little auto polish to the wash water.

ADD IT ON: Here's a revolving barbecue you can add to your electric broiler-rotisserie to make new dishes. Instead of one spit for roasts or fowl, it gives you 6 skewers to make shish kebabs, hors d'oeuvres, scallops, etc. It doubles as serving stand. $5.95. (RIVAL MFG. CO., Dept. PP, 22nd & McGee, Kansas City, Mo.)

HELPS YOU PAINT NEATLY: With this little 39¢ gadget, you can paint window sash, frames, moldings, other tricky spots without mess. No masking tape, shields or scraping needed. Just dip plush pad in paint, draw over surface you want to coat. Guard blade keeps the paint from smearing or spattering over. (McBELL, Dept. PP, 3309 Douglas, Racine, Wis.)

Announcing the New 1954 DE SOTO AUTOMATIC

with new fully automatic POWERFLITE Transmission

Here, at last, is the car capable of carrying out sudden orders swiftly, silently and safely at all speeds

THIS IS A BIG EVENT in the automobile world. A new car is being introduced that may well be the most newsworthy car of all 1954.

It's the new De Soto Automatic — and it's on display at De Soto dealers right now. It's not only brilliantly new in appearance. It is new in its whole concept of driving ease, comfort and safety.

First, a new type of fully automatic transmission is on the new De Soto, called POWERFLITE. Advantages: No clutch. Instant response to throttle without lag or lurch between gears. Silent, smooth.

This De Soto Automatic is powerful, too, and offers you your choice of the mighty FireDome V-8, now stepped up to a breath-taking 170 h.p.—or the famed, thrifty Powermaster Six.

Rutty, stony roads don't fight the wheel. Full-Time Power Steering makes experts out of average drivers. To turn sharp corners or to park is a one-finger job. Power Brakes stop the car at a gentle touch of the pedal. And if you wish it, the luxury of real De Soto Airtemp air conditioning.

Emphatically beautiful, luxurious, the new De Soto Automatic has completely restyled interiors. Rich new fabrics are decorator-matched to car colors. Brilliant new instrument panel.

These are only a few of the high lights. There's much, much more to see. And your De Soto dealer is all ready to show it to you.

DE SOTO
puts you ahead automatically!

1 7-ounce can solid-pack tuna, drained	1 egg, well beaten

Fine, dry bread crumbs

Combine corn meal and cold water. Add corn meal mixture and salt to rapidly boiling water. Cook over medium heat until corn meal is done, about 30 minutes. Turn into small loaf pan or a 2-cup square dish. Cool; chill until corn meal is firm. Flake tuna; add celery, cheese, pickle relish and mayonnaise, mix well. When corn meal is solid, cut into 12 equal slices. Spread tuna mixture on 6 slices, cover with remaining slices to form sandwiches. Dip sandwiches first in egg then in crumbs. In a skillet, melt fat to depth of ½ inch. Fry sandwiches in hot fat until browned on both sides. Serve with tomato sauce, if desired. Makes 6 sandwiches.

1. TURN hot corn meal mush into a small loaf pan or a 2-cup square dish; chill until firm; slice. 2. Make sandwiches with tuna mixture; dip in beaten egg, then in crumbs. Fry in hot fat.

KITCHEN HINT: Save bread crusts; dry in oven when baking; crush fine; store in covered jar; use in recipes calling for "fine, dry crumbs."

A Hollywood writer who stood by her side at Las Vegas when she married Dick Haymes tells:

The truth about Rita's

The glamorous Miss Hayworth has sacrificed her name, her

PUBLICITY SHOTS of the Hayworth-Haymes marriage at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas brought the crooner $125,000 in job offers. Rita was nervous and shy of newsmen. Haymes, who was up to his ears in debt, needed publicity. "He is the first man I've really loved," says Rita. She's said that before.

GREENWICH, Conn.

AL HER adult life, Margarita Carmen Haworth Cansino Judson Welles Khan Haymes, better known to the public as Rita Hayworth, has yearned for love.

To satisfy that persistent longing, she has married four times in 15 years and on occasion has willingly sacrificed her name, her career and her fortune.

Only a few weeks ago, for example, a day before Rita was scheduled to marry handsome, near-bankrupt crooner Dick Haymes, I flew to the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., where the actress was staying with her two daughters, Rebecca, 8, and Yasmin, 3½. I told her that Columbia Studios expected her to report for work three days after her wedding, or be suspended and taken off her $5,000-a-week salary.

"I've been suspended before," she said.

Two days later, announcing that her Hollywood home was up for sale (it cost her $80,000) and that henceforth she would live in Connecticut, Rita flew East with her two girls and fourth husband.

So much for $5,000 a week.

Another time, Rita was seeing Europe with Ted Stauffer, a Swiss band-leader who was later to marry Hedy LaMarr.

One day in Paris after a quarrel, Stauffer sought to make up with the sultry beauty by entering her room in cavalier fashion through a window overlooking the Rue Berri. A crowd gathered below and cheered the lover.

Next afternoon, I ran into Rita in the lobby of the Hotel Lancaster. "Everyone," I remarked, "is talking about you and Stauffer." Hayworth tossed her beautiful red-haired head to one side. "No matter what I do," she said, "people will talk."

So much for public opinion.

"This Squalid Affair"

A FEW MONTHS later when she fell in love with Aly Khan and began one of the most highly-publicized romances in modern times, she was advised by friends and studio to stop traveling with her Mohammedan playboy until he secured a divorce from his estranged wife. London newspapers condemned the romance as "this squalid affair" and other periodicals immersed it in similar literary acid.

But Rita insisted upon seeing it through to marriage.

"I'm in love," she said flatly, a little hurt and disillusioned that the world could hold love so cheaply.

While married to Aly, whose father—the Aga Khan—is his only visible means of support, Rita abandoned her career and spent most of her hard-earned fortune. To her it was worth it, for she felt she was loved.

The truth about Rita Hayworth is that she is essentially a romanticist and a singularly simple girl—she refers to herself as a "Spanish peasant"—whose sensational motion picture career has been more the handiwork of others than her own.

As a teenager, she was introduced to show business by her father, Eduardo Cansino. He worked her as a dancing partner in his act at the Foreign Club in Tijuana. They were booked as brother and sister.

Strict Father

A STRICT Spaniard of the old school, Cansino saw to it that his then chubby young daughter was completely denied masculine companionship. At an age when other girls were attending high school proms with adolescent Casanovas, this one, other than for her dancing, was forced to live the life of a recluse.

"I guess I was too strict with her," Cansino says now. "People told me that I should allow her to go out with men or one day she would rebel."

Before her first marriage to Edward Judson, a promoter as old as her father, Rita Hayworth never had a boy friend. She also made no decisions concerning her career. It was her father who accepted her first screen offer, her father who insisted that Columbia raise her $75-a-week stock contract to $200 a week, and her father who would take her by the hand each morning and lead her to the studio.

Following her divorce from Judson—"He regarded me as an investment," she explained—Rita rebelled against the strict supervision.

Thus began her search for love.

In 1943, she was in the full flower of her beauty. Five feet six, 116 pounds, she had the kind of figure men looked at twice. With a 37-inch bust and 35-inch hips, she had as many curves as a scenic railway. She dated dozens of men around town.

But it was Orson Welles, then at the height of his eccentric and disputable genius, who took one look at Rita and fell for her the way coal shuttles into a cellar. Once they were married, however, he committed the same error as her father and first husband. He tried to change her into something she search for love

wasn't. Aly Khan later made the same faux pas.

As one director recently pointed out, "You cannot take a girl who left school at the age of 13 and suddenly transform her into a brilliant, erudite, sophisticated, jaded Continental. There is little more to Rita Hayworth than meets the eye. Basically, she is a shy, insecure, lovely young woman who wants to love and be loved."

There is much truth to this opinion. At the marriage license bureau in Las Vegas when she and Dick Haymes were recently filling out their license applications, Rita's pen hand shook noticeably. When she came to the line where she had to write in the cause of her previous divorce, she wrote "extrem cruelty," omitting the letter "e" in "extreme."

Standing by her, I whispered, "Rita, you've left out an 'e' on the first word."

She smiled her thanks and made the correction. Then turning to Haymes, said, "I'm so nervous I've forgotten how to spell."

Reporters who expected the actress to be calm, poised and sophisticated—after all, this was her fourth marriage license—were pleasantly surprised at her shyness and general humility.

After the wedding, I asked Rita why, in view of her previous marital experiences, she thought her present marriage to Dick Haymes would last.

Her brown eyes became meditative as twilight and in a voice as soft as the rustle of sheets, she said silkily, "He is the first man I have ever really loved."

Later, when I repeated the line to a former secretary of Rita's, the girl shook her head in disbelief.

"Dear Rita!" she exclaimed. "She says that every, every time."

But Rita has her reasons for thinking she's right this time. To her love means spiritual as well as physical togetherness.

She was sure Dick Haymes was in love with her when a few weeks before their marriage he told her lawyer, Bartley Crum: "I love this girl so much that I never want her to have the slightest trouble because of me. Can't we draw up some agreement which says that what money she has will never go to me and what debts I've incurred will never be held against her?"

O.K.'d Publicity

RITA WAS against the agreement, but she was finally persuaded to sign it. On her part she agreed to the public wedding Dick wanted even though she is shy and afraid of newspaper reporters. As a result of the publicity, Haymes has received job offers totaling $125,000.

Whatever becomes of her latest marriage, it seems certain Rita's career is in for a new phase.

When her contract with Columbia expires a year and a half from now, she plans to make only independent pictures at the rate of one a year.

The main thing Rita wants is freedom to be with Dick. Says she, "If Dick should ever be deported, (he's been in hot water with the government lately) I will follow him wherever he goes—Argentina, Mexico City, anywhere. I love him, and I will stand by him 100 per cent."

ARE LAXATIVES MAKING YOUR "CONDITION" WORSE?

This natural way to regularity is helping more Americans than any medicinal laxative on the market!

FOREWORD: Too often, attempts to treat constipation cause serious mis-treatment of the digestive system. Long-continued overdosing, with products intended only for overnight laxative relief, can lead to serious lifelong suffering. Since constipation is probably the most widespread of all human maladies, you owe it to yourself to read the following statement.

(signed) KELLOGG COMPANY
Battle Creek, Michigan

Since the turn of the century, this nation's health progress has been nothing short of remarkable.

Twenty years or more have been added to the average American life-expectancy at birth.

Death rates from specific diseases such as pneumonia and tuberculosis, have been cut—some almost to the vanishing point.

The general level of nutrition has risen year after year.

What is hard to understand is how—despite all this enormous health progress—a seemingly simple ailment like Constipation could be so widespread that according to competent medical authorities, at least 70% of our total population, from time to time, suffer from constipation in one form or another.

Is the prevalence of constipation—occasional, common or chronic—due to lack of medical research, progress and knowledge on the subject? Far from it.

On the contrary, nature and the medical profession—separately and together—have provided man with a vast array of remedies, treatment and even prevention.

But by and large, constipation is not a "ready-made" condition that strikes without warning; it is a progressive ailment.

—AND THE PROGRESS OF CONSTIPATION, FROM OCCASIONAL TO COMMON TO CHRONIC, IS HASTENED TO A WIDELY UNREALIZED EXTENT BY THE WAY THE DIGESTIVE SYSTEM IS ABUSED WITH PURGATIVES TOO HARSH IN IMMEDIATE EFFECT TO HAVE A SOUND CORRECTIVE RESULT.

When continual abuse is accompanied by not enough exercise, tension of modern living, and today's steady diet of processed food lacking in natural bulk... then it is little wonder that some degree of constipation, sooner or later, is almost inevitable.

Few people indeed are ever aware what damage can take place inside them, when without medical guidance—without even reading the directions on the label—they choose a laxative at random and take "big doses" willy-nilly.

This continual overdosing, instead of the careful therapeutic dose designed only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage, can exert upon the delicate digestive system a strain nature never intended. The fact that thousands unknowingly abuse themselves for years in this manner, without apparent harm, merely demonstrates that the human digestive system can stand unbelievable abuse.

Sooner or later the vicious "laxative habit" takes hold.

And before they realize it, their condition has progressed so far that even daily laxative or purgative dosing can no longer bring satisfactory, comfortable relief.

These men and women tried to substitute harsh purgative "forcing action," for the natural regularity which sensible daily habits and sufficient bulk in the diet could probably have maintained... if only they had "let nature take its course."

Let us see what happens inside the digestive system, when it is churned up by unnatural purgative over-dosing.

1. Most purgative compounds, designed for fast overnight relief, must depend on: (a) mechanical action which loads the lower intestine (colon) with a flood of water; or (b) "irritant" action which, with certain chemical ingredients, prods bowel walls into muscular contraction.
2. Obviously, these compounds draw off water from the system and rush it through the intestines; thus also drawing off fluids and juices needed for normal digestion, and vitamins and minerals from the food you have eaten.
3. The chemical action of these compounds, when they reach the colon, often further irritates an already over-sensitive intestinal tract. It tightens and becomes tense.
4. RESULT: An upset stomach, a small intestine containing little nourishment to feed the body, and a colon which often needs another purgative dose—and another—and another—to prod it into renewed muscular action.

IN SHORT: YOU INFLICT UPON YOUR DIGESTIVE SYSTEM UNNATURAL PUNISHMENT WHICH LEAVES A TRAIL OF DIGESTIVE HAVOC, INSTEAD OF THE CORRECTIVE RESULTS HOPED FOR.

With these facts before you, is it possible to doubt that continual overdosing can so weaken your digestive function that finally, "the remedy is worse than the disease"?

If you feel you have to take a laxative occasionally, be sure you take it wisely—in an accurate, recommended dose.

BUT THERE IS A WAY TO AVOID DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES ALTOGETHER, AND PLACE YOUR MAIN DEPENDENCE ON NATURE.

It is a medically established fact that nature has provided, in the natural foods men were intended to eat, all the elements necessary for lifelong avoidance of common constipation.

In many of these natural foods—such as certain vegetables, fruits and grains—nature grew, AND GROWS TODAY, abundant natural fibrous bulk which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

And in no other natural food is this natural bulk so ideally found as in the vitamin-rich, mineral-rich outer layers of the whole wheat kernel, known generally as bran.

Whole-wheat bran is nature's "food instead of a medicine"... a veritable storehouse of such essential nutritional elements as iron, calcium, phosphorus, vitamin A, Thiamine, riboflavin and niacin.

—whole bran when properly processed and shredded yields smooth bulk the digestive system can handle unimpaired.

—AND MOST IMPORTANT TO CONSTIPATION SUFFERERS: THE COMPLETE, WHOLE BRAN, WITH NOTHING TAKEN AWAY TO LESSEN ITS EFFECTIVENESS, IS KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN—THE NATURAL LAXATIVE CEREAL.

Let us tell you how Kellogg's All-Bran works inside your body. And we leave it to you to compare its action with the unnatural "forcing action" which takes place when you overdose your digestive system in the way previously described.

1. Kellogg's All-Bran has no significant laxative action in the stomach or small intestine, thus it does not significantly change the normal digestive sequence. Only in the colon, where laxative action is needed, does laxative action take place.
2. Kellogg's All-Bran is eaten with milk, thus it draws from the system no needed water and digestive juices. It has no harsh action, thus it does not rush vitamins or minerals past the small intestine too quickly for absorption.
3. Kellogg's All-Bran is rich in vitamins and minerals, thus it actually assures the presence of these elements in the small intestine for proper absorption.
4. Kellogg's All-Bran is shredded to fine, soft consistency, thus it supplies bulk which neither irritates nor inflames the normal colon. It helps—as nature itself intended—to supply the proper consistency for unforced, normal elimination.

THERE IS NO CHURNING, NO STOMACH UPSET, NO AFTER-EFFECT, EXCEPT THE FEELING OF SATISFACTION AND FULFILLMENT WHICH COMES WITH NORMAL, NATURAL ELIMINATION.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN IS SAFE FOR THE NORMAL DIGESTIVE TRACT.

YOU DO NOT COURT THE DISASTER OF PROGRESSIVE CONSTIPATION WHEN YOU EAT ONE OUNCE OF KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN DAILY, AND DRINK PLENTY OF WATER.

Kellogg's All-Bran is not a habit-forming "drug-type" laxative but a delicious NATURAL laxative cereal.

It is sold as a cereal. Bought at cereal prices. Served as a cereal. Eaten as a cereal. Enjoyed like a cereal, with a crunchy, toasty, nut-like flavor like a cereal. Digested like a cereal. Many prefer it, on taste and eating qualities alone, to any other cereal on the market.

Kellogg's All-Bran is ALL BRAN. No "part-bran" cereal—in the amounts you usually eat for breakfast—can give you the benefits of All-Bran.

No exaggerated claims are made for the laxative qualities of All-Bran. The name Kellogg's on the package, a symbol of healthful foods throughout the world, speaks for itself.

But the thousands of unsolicited testimonial letters which pour in—and the fact that it is today the largest-selling laxative cereal in the world, with over four hundred million servings per year consumed by the American public—indicate that it lives up to the fine things said about it.

Kellogg's All-Bran is no "overnight cure" for constipation. There is no such cure. All-Bran must be eaten regularly to obtain the natural and lasting relief you are looking for.

Kellogg's makes it easy for you to prove that to yourself. Just eat All-Bran every morning for 10 days. Then, if you're not completely satisfied, send the empty carton to Kellogg's, Battle Creek, Michigan—and get double your money back.

READ HOW OTHER SUFFERERS FROM CONSTIPATION (due to lack of bulk in the diet) HAVE BENEFITED:

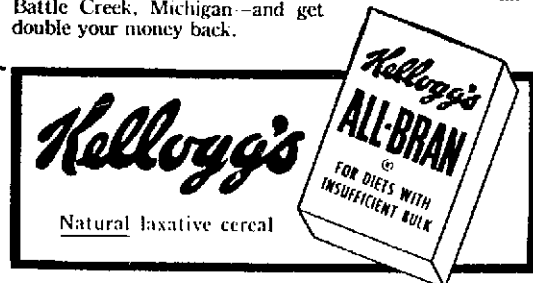

"When I started getting older, irregularity became a problem. I tried everything, but now I wouldn't trade a barrel of pills for my daily bowl of Kellogg's All-Bran."

—Mrs. N. Weirather
1600 34th St., Rock Island, Ill.

"For 14 years I tried everything on the market, but nothing seemed to do any good. About 5 years ago I started using All-Bran and now I have no trouble with irregularity."

—Mr. Victor J. Debarbare
21112 Woodland Way, Los Angeles, Calif.

CYLINDER WEAR CUT 49%

with Miracle Power

You can't argue with facts. Wetmore Hodges & Associates, independent laboratory, road tested two engines—one with Miracle Power, one without.

One of many benefits of Miracle Power proved by this test is its capacity to lubricate upper cylinders. Oil alone won't lubricate here because temperatures may reach up to 1400° and oil burns at 550°. But Miracle Power, a blend of petroleum super lubricants including colloidal synthetic graphite in suspension, withstands far greater heat. That's why the Miracle Power test engine had only half as much bore wear as the engine without Miracle Power.

Other results: After 33,703 miles, the Miracle Power engine was using 33% less oil, had 13% greater compression, 56% more spark plug life, 49% less cylinder wear, 13% less ring wear.

Use Miracle Power in your gas and oil—accept no substitutes.

CAMOUFLAGE IN NATURE

RIGHT NOW is an excellent time for you to find out about the National Audubon Society's revolutionary "Museum-at-Home" program. If you mail the coupon below you may have ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE the current set entitled CAMOUFLAGE IN NATURE, including thirty fascinating natural color prints plus an informative album in which to mount them. (Value $1.00)

This generous FREE gift is being offered to you as a demonstration—so that you and your family can discover how much pleasure and knowledge can be derived from this new and unique plan.

A Much-Needed Program

There is no subject more satisfying and worthwhile for young and old than this study of Nature. And the best way to undertake this fascinating quest would be in the personal company of friendly and inspired naturalists, such as those on the Staff of the National Audubon Society.

These scientists would show you the migrations of sea birds over thousands of miles of open water...let you discover how cleverly Nature "protects her own" with camouflage...explain to you the strange and almost unbelievable ways in which some animals reproduce, and rear their young. Best of all, these naturalists would open your eyes to the wonders you can discover in your own back yard or park!

An Amazing "Museum-at-Home"

The "Museum-at-Home" plan was developed to bring to your home the closest possible equivalent to this kind of thrilling personal guidance. Each month a fascinating new topic is selected, and you and your family explore it together with the National Audubon Society's experts. For each topic, a collection of about thirty natural color prints—usually brilliant true color photographs—is issued, together with an album in which the prints (already gummed for this purpose) may be mounted. An interesting fact-filled text forms an important part of each set. It explains your "Museum-at-Home" exhibits, and gives you a wealth of other information. And the total cost is very low: only $1 for each set, plus a few pennies for shipping.

Your albums and color prints will rapidly grow into an "armchair museum" of Natural History! And this "museum" will be visited again and again through the years by the whole family and by friends.

Begin with this FREE Set; withdraw whenever you wish

You assume no obligation when you send the Enrollment Coupon at the left, and receive your FREE CAMOUFLAGE IN NATURE set. You may resign your enrollment at any time you wish. But we feel sure that once your family has become acquainted with the "Museum-at-Home" plan, you will want to continue these delightful monthly "visits" for a while. That's entirely up to you, of course. However, we urge you to send the coupon NOW to be sure to get your first set FREE—and without obligation. Quantities are limited. Please mail the coupon without delay.

TO BE REVENGED ON AN ENEMY IS TO OBTAIN A SECOND LIFE. PUBLICITY
YEAH? WELL, TRY TO HOLD ON TO THAT SECOND LIFE IN TONY'S "BUSINESS"!

LOOK, TONY... I KNOW YOU'RE TRYING TO BE NICE TO ME... BUT YOU DON'T OWE ME A THING AND I WON'T TAKE ANY JOB WITH YOUR GANG...

YEAH! I KNOW HOW YOU FEEL, SAM... YOU GOT A RIGHT TO FIGGER I'M JUST A TOUGH HOOD...

MAYBE I AM... BUT ALWAYS THERE IS A REASON... LIKE IT OR NOT, SAM, YOU HEAR MY STORY!... IT STARTS WHEN I WAS TH' SIZE O' MY KID, TONY II... JUNIOR...

I WAS ON MY OWN AT HIS AGE! THEY'D HANGED MY OLD MAN... MY MOTHER?... AR-R-R... FORGET HER! BUT I TRIED TO BE A GOOD KID... I SWEAR I DID... I WORKED! HONEST JOBS... I WANTED AN EDUCATION...

SO I GET SLAPPED AROUND... CHEATED... TAKE A COUPLE BUM RAPS... O.K. I STILL AIN'T TOO BAD... BUT I BEGIN TO GET TO KNOW TH' SCORE... PLAY BALL WITH TH' RIGHT GUYS... TH' POLITICIANS... A FEW CROOKED COPS...

I GET TO BE WHAT YOU'D CALL A "MINOR HOODLUM"... I ALSO GET MARRIED... TO ANGELINA! SHE... SHE WAS BEAUTIFUL, SAM... AN ANGEL... FOR HER I TOOK A JOB IN A LAUNDRY... AND QUIT TH' RACKET...

YEAH... FOR NEARLY A YEAR... THEY COME AROUND... EASY AT FIRST... THEN NOT SO EASY... I'M NOT SCARED... BUT WHEN THEY HIT, IT WASN'T ME THEY HIT... IT WAS ANGELINA... SHE DIED TWO DAYS LATER FROM THAT BOMB...

MY NAME... TONSINO! TURN IT AROUND, SAM! ONE SHOT! FROM THE CEMETERY, WHERE I SAY GOOD-BY TO ANGELINA, I GO TO WORK... WITH THIS! I KNOW WHO IS TH' BIG BOSS IN THIS TERRITORY... SURE!

BUT I START WITH HIS LITTLEST HOOD... I WORK UP... ONE AT A TIME! CLOSER AND CLOSER! TILL I AM SO CLOSE HE TAKES OFF... FAST...

WHEN I CATCH HIM, IT IS IN CAIRO... AND I DO NOT MEAN CAIRO, ILLINOIS... THEN I COME HOME...

THE SYNDICATE HAS BEEN WATCHING... I GET A CHOICE... I AM BOSS HERE... OR I BURN SURE, FOR SOME OF THEM SHOOTINGS... O.K. NOW I SHUT UP, SAM, AND LET YOU TALK...

HONESTLY, TONY, I CAN'T SEEM TO BLAME YOU TOO MUCH, FOR WHAT YOU DID, UP TO THERE...

BUT NOW I'M REALLY JUST A BUSINESS MAN! NOW IT'S ALL LEGIT!... OR IT'S ANYWAY LEGAL!

THANKS, TONY! BUT I'M STAYING LEGIT, TOO... SUNNY AND ANNIE AND ME... IN OUR DINER!

FINE! NOW GO DOWN AND WATCH T.V., OR READ THE PAPER WHILE I FINISH DRESSING!

I'VE READ THE PAPER AND THERE'S NOTHING ON T.V., BUT DON'T WORRY I'LL FIND SOME WAY TO AMUSE MYSELF!

AH HA! I HAVE IT! NOW'S TH' TIME TO TRY THAT LITTLE EXPERIMENT!

PETER! WHAT IN THE WORLD ARE YOU DOING?

UNDRESSING!

BUT WHY?

THEN I'M GOING TO DRESS AGAIN!

I ALWAYS WANTED TO SEE HOW MANY TIMES I COULD DRESS AND UNDRRESS WHILE YOU WERE GETTING DRESSED!

PETER, YOU FIEND! TAKE YOUR CLOTHES AND GET OUT OF HERE!

IF YOU CAN BRUSH AFTER MEALS, THAT'S BEST—IF NOT

Here's a toothpaste for people who can't brush after every meal

GLEEM with GL-70 destroys decay- and odor-causing bacteria with JUST ONE BRUSHING

Only Procter & Gamble's new GLEEM has GL-70... new cleaner and bacteria fighter! GLEEM FIGHTS DECAY BY GETTING AT THE CAUSE!

One brushing destroys MOST bacteria! Even if you can't brush after every meal, Gleem with GL-70 combats decay, mouth stays fresh all day! If you, like most busy people, just can't brush after every meal, use Procter & Gamble's new Gleem with GL-70, exclusive new cleaner and bacteria fighter. A Gleem brushing before breakfast destroys most mouth bacteria and instantly stops mouth odor. In 7 out of 10 cases, the mouth stays fresh all day. No stain, no medicinal taste!

ENZYMES? Gleem wipes out enzymes with a single brushing! Gleem destroys bacteria which produce enzymes. Only new Gleem fights bacteria and their enzymes with GL-70!

After-meal brushing Important to children! Dental studies show that most cavities occur during school ages. So it's especially important for children to brush after every meal. Youngsters like to brush regularly with Gleem because of its frisky flavor!

SCOTCH CELLOPHANE AND BRAND GIFT WRAP TAPES

JUST TRIM THE GREEN TREE ON THIS ENTRY BLANK

with ornaments and packages cut from this page

*THAT'S ALL!
It's fun...it's easy!*

Can you tape up a tree that beats these?

Decorate entry blank with these packages!

1. CUT OUT packages 2. ARRANGE around Christmas tree at right 3. TAPE them in place

Use these fresh new gift wrap ideas to decorate your own Christmas packages this year with tape and new "Sasheen" Brand Ribbon.

SUITCASE—Assorted "Scotch" Gift Sticks on dark paper look like travel stickers. Colored tape makes handle. Happy touch: "Sasheen" pompons.

"HOUSE" GIFT—Cut a simple house outline from colored tape, using angel hair for smoke. "Scotch" Gift Wrap Tapes are easy to use—stick at a touch.

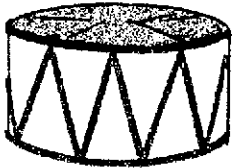

CIRCUS CLOWN—Wrap cardboard cylinder and top with tennis ball taped in place. Use colored tape for features; wind tape around paper cup for a hat.

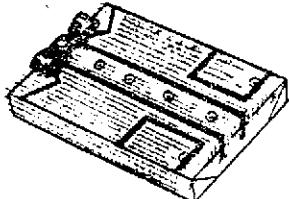

QUICK GLAMOR—Dangle tiny ornaments from ends of a puff "Sasheen" bow. Make package neat with short strips of "Scotch" Brand Tape.

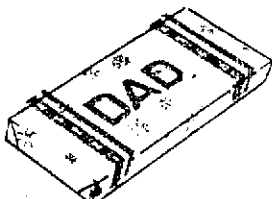

BOWS-A-PLenty—Decorate a little girl's package with colorful hair bows. Tape down with cellophane tape. "Scotch" Brand sticks 6 times tighter.

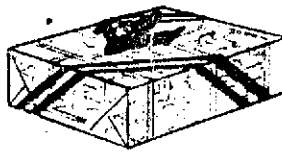

CHRISTMAS DRUM—Outline round package with red Gift Wrap Tape to resemble drum. Odd-shaped packages like this are easy to wrap with tape.

WRAP A SHIRT—Fashion collar, cuffs of Gift Wrap Tape. dot with real buttons taped in place. Fasten bow-tie down with "Scotch" Cellophane Tape.

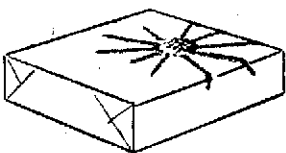

PERSONAL TOUCH—Contrast bright paper with patterned tape—spell out "Dad" with Gift Wrap Tape. Or cut initials from tape; just stick on.

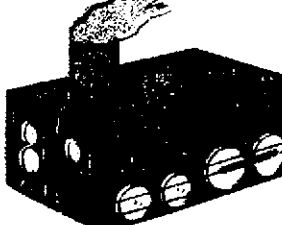

FUNNY-PAPER WRAP—The comic section makes a colorful, economical children's wrap. Use bright tape for decoration and to fasten small toy on top.

TOWER OF GIFTS—Wrap gifts in patterned papers—group securely with "Scotch" Gift Wrap Tape. Top with "Sasheen" Ribbon poinsettia bow.

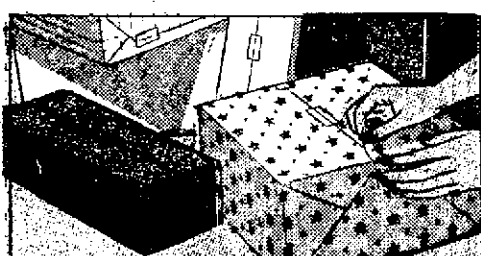

SPARKLE PACKAGE—Add a design of "Scotch" Gift Wrap Tape to bright paper—it sticks without moistening. Tape on a dime store "jewel" for extra drama.

CHOO-CHOO—Wrap a shoe box, using colored tape for engine parts. Add buttons for wheels and headlights. Tape paper roll on top, fill with cotton "smoke".

WRAP ALL YOUR GIFTS THE EASY "1-2" WAY

1. SEAL with "Scotch" Cellophane Tape

2. DECORATE with "Scotch" Gift Wrap Tapes

The term "Scotch" and the plaid design are registered trademarks for the more than 300 pressure-sensitive adhesive tapes made in U.S.A. by Minnesota Mining & Mfg. OFFICIAL RULES

1. SELECT ornaments and packages from the group shown in this ad; cut them out. Arrange on, around or under entry blank tree and tape down with "Scotch" Cellophane Tape.
2. SUBMIT as many entries as you wish, but only one prize will be awarded to a family. Use official entry blank or a tracing on a plain piece of paper. Each entry must be accompanied by the tab from a roll of cellophane tape.
3. MAIL your entry to: TRIM-A-TREE Contest, P.O. Box D 26, St. Paul, Minnesota. Be sure to include your name and address on your entry blank. Use sufficient postage because entries with insufficient postage will not be accepted.

4. PRIZES will be awarded for the best entries received in the opinion of the judges. Neatness, originality and uniqueness will be considered by the independent judging organization of Associated Activities, Inc., in selecting the best entries. Judges' decisions will be final and duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties.
5. CONTEST is open to all except employees of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, their advertising agencies and their families. Contest closes Jan. 2, 1954 and entries must be postmarked on or before midnight of the closing date and received no later than Jan. 12, 1954. All entries become the property of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. and none will be returned.
6. WINNERS will be notified by mail. A complete list of winners will be sent to anyone sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

STEVE ROPER

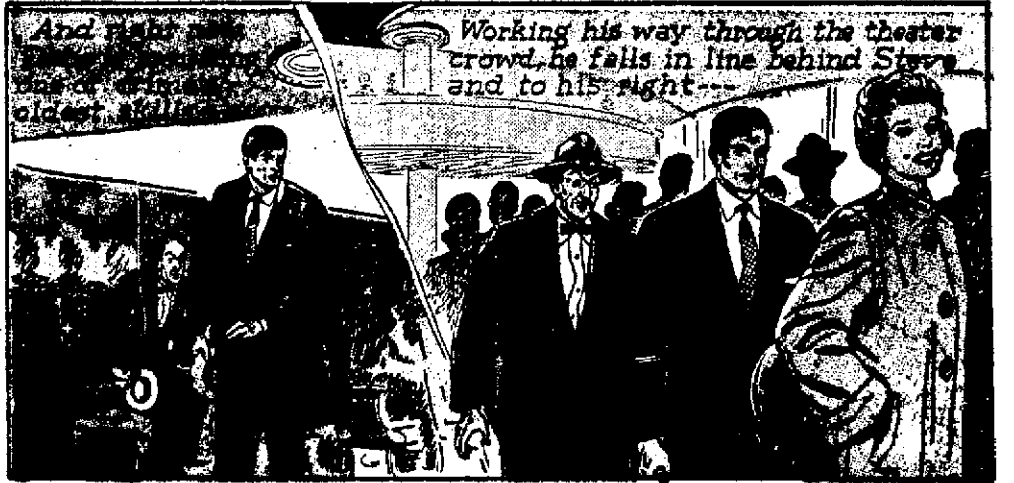

"WE TOOK AN AWFUL CHANCE WHEN WE SNATCHED THAT PAIR, HIGHBOY! ARE YA SURE IT WAS WORTH IT?"

THEN YOU'LL REALIZE HOW MUCH DEPENDS ON WHAT EDDIE IS DOING RIGHT NOW!

Working his way through the theater crowd, he falls in line behind Steve and to his right--

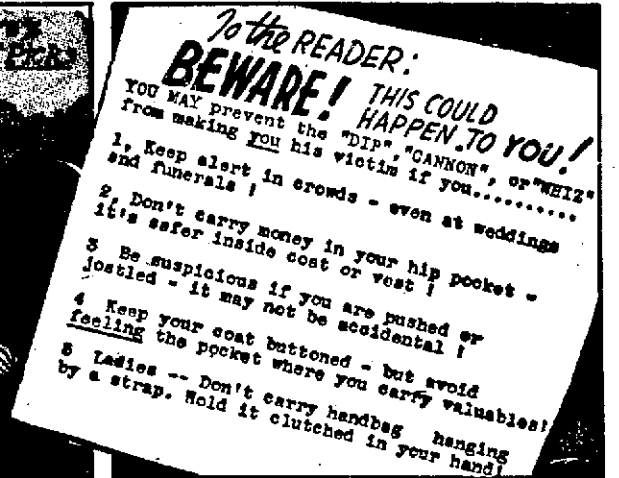

The natural swing of Steve's arm leaves his coat pocket unprotected for a split second--

With feather-light fingers, Eddie dips in to the pocket, grasps the small film can-- then--

--A slight bump-- and Steve's forward motion literally picks his own pocket!

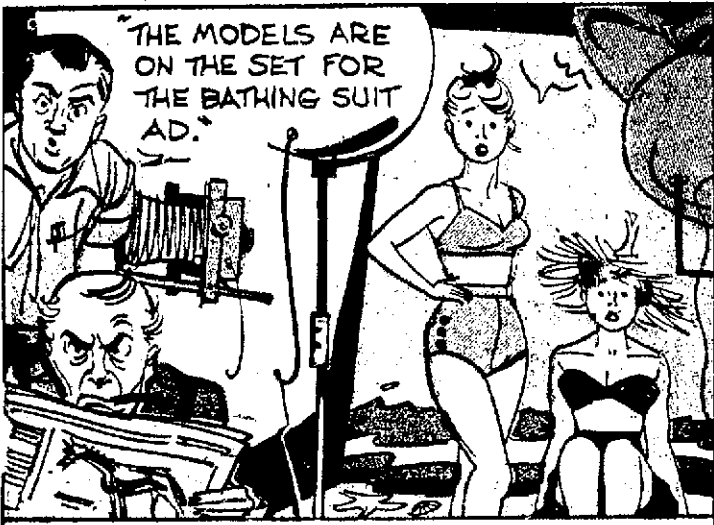

To the READER: BEWARE! THIS COULD HAPPEN TO YOU!

1. Keep alert in crowds - even at weddings and funerals!
2. Don't carry money in your hip pocket - it's safer inside coat or vest!
3. Be suspicious if you are pushed or jostled - it may not be accidental!
4. Keep your coat buttoned - but avoid feeling the pocket where you carry valuables!
5. Ladies -- Don't carry handbag hanging by a strap. Hold it clutched in your hand!
